WOMEN

MARY HAWORTH

Visiting Mother In-Law, Trouble

Dear Mary Haworth: I am a widow in my middle fifties. My husband died when our son was 10, and I have fended for myself and my boy for almost 25 years. He went into the Army 14 years ago and has never been my responsibility since . . .

Ten years ago he married, in a distant city. I was not at the wedding, but nobody was. I felt badly at the time, but cheered up a year later when his wife Polly wrote that they would love to have me come for a visit. Since then this visit has become an annual event, the high spot of my year.

I am visiting them now, and that is the problem. Every year Polly invites me for two weeks of my choosing. But in my family, short visits, such as two weeks, are considered hardly worthwhile. So I've always sent my reply to George, setting my stay for three or four weeks. He never said a word.

PLAIN SPEAKING

Polly didn't say anything at first. But as time grew longer between invitations and I had to send reminders, I finally spoke to her about it, and was shocked at what she told me . . . She said that she and George (this I don't believe) feel that their apartment is too small to have three people in residence for more than two weeks; that two weeks are fun for all, but more is a strain . . .

I consider such a speech to George's mother as impudent and unmannerly. I told her so; but she says it's equally bad manners to ignore the terms of an invitation. All this came to a head just after my arrival this time . . . I don't know whether to stick it out for my rights, or just go home at the end of two weeks.

Do you think I am imposing? Or that my son thinks I am imposing? Polly says I make him so nervous after two weeks that they quarrel; and that after my visit last year they quarreled so badly that George left home for three days L.S.

STONE BLIND

Dear L.S.: Your statement of the case (here cut in half) is really astounding. It reveals you as being stone blind to your destructive overriding selfishness, in relation to Polly. Truly your attitude illustrates the proverb: "There are none so blind as those who will not see."

In this painful dispute over the propriety of your habitually overstaying your annual invitation, you are absolutely and overwhelmingly in the wrong. You haven't a leg to stand on, in trying to defend your rabid exploitation of Polly's commendable hospitality.

It seems obvious that Polly is a warm-hearted unselfish person, with a real aptitude for loving and giving, in family relationships. In breaking the ice for your first annual visit, she was expressing love of her husband, of course, and showing a consequent disposition to be fond of you, as his mother. She was hoping to give happiness to both of you, and further a spirit of family unity, in getting you together under one roof—after long separation.

FAR OFF BASE

Evidently George has been out of touch with you for years, prior to these visits—not even writing much of the time, after quitting your control and joing the army. This fade-out, and the fact that you don't know (or don't want to know) what he thinks of you nowadays, would indicate that he's never felt free to "be himself" around you. With Polly he's different, I gather; so that she knows him far better than you do (or will permit yourself to).

In straining to make your wrong attitude seem right, you talk a lot about "how we do things in our family"—as if you are an oracle of social correctness, and Polly a nobody - ignoramus, whose fair ideas have no status. Actually you are a mile off base, in trying to concoct any justification for your bad behavior in the disputed matter. My advice is, do go home at the end of two weeks — because you have no "rights" to stay longer than the hostess suggests. M.H.

"Secret Weapon" Found For Dieter's Campaign

By Ida Bailey Allen

"Madame, I cannot wait to reveal my latest discovery. It might even be called 'secret weapon' This one can be used in the 'less calorie' campaign, but, at the same time, it is glamorous enough for a party," announced the Chef.

He stepped to the refrigerator and triumphantly brought out his glamorous chef d'oeuvre.

Cherry Melon Bombe: Stir 1 pkg orange-flavored gelatin into 1 c. boiling water. When dissolved, add ¾ c. cold water. Refrigerate 30 min.

Meantime, wash and pit 1¼ c. dark sweet cherries. Peel and slice 1 small banana. Add ½ c. quartered marshmallows. Fold into the gelatin.

Next, remove the rind from 1 medium-sized ripe honeydew melon. Cut off a 2" slice from one end. Spoon out all seeds and pulp from both the end and the center.

Spoon the gelatin mixture into the center cavity of the melon. Fill the end slice and place back on the melon. Wrap in waxed paper. Refrigerate 5 hrs

Place on a serving plate. Garnish with fresh cherries. Pass a sauce made of ½ pt. commercial sour cream mixed with 2 tbsp. honey and 1 tbsp. lemon juice.

Tomorrow's Dinner: Chilled or hot cream of tomato soup; roast veal; pan-gravy; pan - roast potatoes-carrots - onions; cucumber-cress salad; cherry melon bombe; hot or iced coffee or tea or milk

All measurements are level recipes proportioned to serve 4 to 6.

Chilled Cream of Tomato Soup: To 1 can chilled condensed tomato soup, add 1 tbsp minced chives, 1½ c milk and ½ c. commercial sour cream. Beat with a rotary beater until mixed. Garnish with minced chives.

Trick of the Chef:

Baste roasting veal with 1-3 c melted butter containing 2 tbsp. lemon juice and ¼ tsp. garlic salt.

Simple Utility, Mark Of Modern Furniture Design

By OLI DAUM
Canadian Press Staf Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Simply-designed furniture in simple arrangement is the mark of a modern home, the experts say.

Spaces between furniture are clear; fabric of drapes and upholstery is smooth in texture—not as nobby as has been the vogue during the last few years.

Gleaming tiles, sisal floor coverings and small rugs of muted tones replace large, lavish rugs. Lighting is generally direct from hanging lamps, the globes frosted and of definite form such as the bullet, sphere or melon, and used for a specific purpose—not for decoration. Knick - knacks are practical as well as decorative. Windows are large.

Everything is designed to give the uncluttered look.

INVITING LOOK

The woman living in a home furnished with comfortable, oversized chairs and chesterfield, frilly curtains and all kinds of knick-knacks may say the modern home is uninviting and austere.

Not so, says Bob Jameson, interior decorator at a large department store here. A young man whose aptitude in the store's art department gained him a course in interior decorating, Mr. Jameson says the modern home is warm and relaxing.

It is light and efficient, providing maximum comfort with minimum effort. Mr. Jameson has illustrated his ideas in a model home now on display in the store's home-furnishing department.

While furniture design is simple, colors are strong and clear. The dining-livingroom is tiled in light- and dark-brown cork from Denmark and is furnished in walnut.

Pastel green walls blend with the chesterfield and chairs upholstered in deep night blue. Casualness is introduced by a low, rectangular - shaped yellow iron table used to hold a television set.

BIRD-CAGE VASE

Inviting tones of brown and green predominate in the bedroom. The floor is carpeted in brown tweed to offset walls of antique white and maple sugar. On the bed is a tailored spread of beige cotton and rayon boucle and on it are three circular cushions in olive green to match a big, square ottoman near the doorway. A bird cage is used as a vase to hold a bouquet.

In the relaxation room, also carpeted in brown tweed, a wallpaper mural map of the world covers one wall. The map's background color matches maple sugar toned walls. Built-in units for television, recordings and radio are in mocha brown.

An upholstered sofa is in lemon-peel color to match chairs grouped around a black card table. The recessed window boasts a lavish arrangement of greenery as a decorative note.

Mr. Jameson has used furniture of Canadian design and manufacture with accessories garnered from the four corners of the world. This, he says, is a recognition of the existence of good, contemporary design the world over and is a practical illustration of the ability of all to blend.

CPL. AND MRS. JOSEPH T. DOUCETTE

Pretty Wedding At Clinton Of Charlottetown Airman

The marriage was solemnized at St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church, Clinton, Ontario, on Saturday, July 21, 1956, at 10 a.m. of Corporal Joseph Theodore Doucette, Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Doucette, Charlottetown, and Elizabeth Pawliw, daughter of Mrs. Adeline Pawliw and the late John Pawliw of Ituna., Saskatchewan. Reverend Father Graham performed a double ring ceremony. The bride was given in marriage by Corporal M. Tally.

Corporal Doucette is stationed at R.C.A.F. Station, Clinton, Ontario.

Mrs. C. Bailey, Toronto, was the matron of honor.

Gordon MacDonald, R.C.A.F., Station, Clinton, was the groomsman.

The bride wore a ballerina length strapless gown with bodice of Chantilly lace. The skirt was very full fashioned with bands of the lace on nylon tulle over taffeta. The matching lace jacket buttoned up the front with tiny buttons and had long lily point sleeves. The bride's headdress was embroidered with pearls and sequins and held in place the finger-length veil of embroidered tulle.

The bridesmaid's dress was blue net over taffeta. The style was ballerina with a very full skirt, and a headdress of the same material as dress. She carried a bouquet of pink roses.

Miss Evans, of Clinton, was the organist and the reception was held at the Goderich Pavilion.

Mrs. Pawliw wore a light blue suit with matching accessories. Her corsage was white carnations.

Guests from a distance for the wedding were the bride's mother and a brother Irvin who arrived from Ituna, Saskatchewan, as well as guests from Hamilton.

Corporal and Mrs. Doucette left on a wedding trip to Niagara Falls and points east. The bride's travelling costume was a light green dress with matching accessories.

Corporal and Mrs. Doucette will reside in Clinton, Ontario.

Doctor Weds Nurse In Ceremony At Murray Harbour

Murray Harbour United Church was the scene of a very pretty wedding Saturday, July 21st., when Miss Gail Nevis LeLacheur R.N. daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roland LeLacheur, was united in the bonds of Holy Matrimony with Gerald William Archibald, M.D., son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Archibald of Truro, N.S. The doublering ceremony was performed by the Rev. L.S. Woolfrey, B.A.

Before the bridal party entered the church Mrs Catherina Caras sang The Wedding Prayer". The bride entered the church on the arm of her father, to the strains of the Wedding March.

The bride wore a floor length gown of white organdy over taffeta with matching headpiece and a tulle allusion veil with sequins. She carried a nosegay of red roses with sweet heart rose streamers.

The matron of honour, Mrs. Warren Lord, the bride's maid Miss Molly MacLean R.N. and the flower girl little Miss Judy Hooper all wore white over taffeta gowns with matching head pieces, and carried nosegays of white and yellow mums.

The mother of the bride wore a blue nylon dress with white accessories and wore a pink and white corsage. The mother of the groom wore a pink and white dress with white accessories and a pink and white corsage.

During the signing of the register, Miss Catherina Caras sang The Lord's Prayer."

The groom was supported by Mr. William Lzall who acted as best man. The ushers for the occasion were Messrs Elwyn Archibald and Edward McCarthy.

Following the ceremony the following ladies served a delicious lunch at the home of the bride's parents. Misses Helen Bell, R.N., Irma Bell, Lorraine McClure, Catherina Caras, Zelma MacInnis, and Mistresses Oril Hooper, Lorne Lewis and William Stewart. Mrs. William Bell, aunt of the bride poured.

The newly wedded couple received many beautiful and useful gifts. The grooms gift to the bride was a single strand of pearls. The groom's gifts to the bride's attendants were Music Powder boxes."

The bride's going away costume was a two-piece dress suit of blue silk with a corsage of red roses. The newly wedded and happy couple will reside in Toronto, where the groom has set up a promising and profitable practice.

ELLEN'S DIARY

A Day At The Shore

In a magic chariot which travelled in exquisite moonlight and close to the witching hour, we came away a distance from Alderlea last night to spend a brief holiday with kin.

We left home unexpectedly, after making one of those inexplicable decisions which easily might have been either for or against, but which in consequence of choice could prove to be worlds apart. Yet we go or remain at a whim and are unaware either of what we have missed or escaped in our choosing, for though we may later read the tale, it is after all, written for us only in part.

So we chose and came away. And tonight find that we are once more within sight, if not actually within sound of the Strait. Or is there not a pleasant whisper of its voice coming in at the open window; because after all we are only a meadow or two distant from the lapping waves? It's sigh, perhaps we hear. Maybe a bit lonesome for the old days and the young years which come back go us so "full and free" whenever we revisit old scenes.

Today enjoying much the scene, we watched the full tide ebb. . . high against red cliff and sand, and then falling, baring steadily the shingly bars, going out to meet the far misty haze. For this has been a showery day born in moonlit hours. And disappointing to the farmers who would be about the affairs of their haying.

But "there will be other days for the haying" we said and loved the gentle showers which brought refreshment to the root-crops and grain. Though we went back in mind to St. Swithin's Day to recall whether or not it had been showery or fair!

At a roomy white house we holiday, one set comfortably and prettily amid its yards and its fields. It's wide verandahs are festooned with the green of Virginia Creeper and it was there in the quiet of this afternoon, a little damp sparrow stopped to sing to us. Beyond-below, the roses in the garden in a lovely profusion of blossoms and shades awaited the sunshine.

This is a home whence most of the family of six, including Ellen niece and namesake is gone, though in nice compensation for the years' ch ges, as at Alderlea, bring in their young voices and smiles to add a winsome brightness to their elders' now-quiet days.

So instead of the be-treed countryside about Alderlea, and the mill with its pond and stream, we saw today the waves and tthe bat and off-shore the busy soaring dipping wings of the sea-birds. . .But now the moon struggles to breal through the cloud-bands above th Strait and in fancy we see he climb above an old valley, up. . up spreading her magic of silver There is of course world-over fo every wanderer "No place lik home" but this is an exceedingly pleasant place to be, with nigh now calm and fair over Strai and land and the sea-scent com ing in to give us engaging warn upon which presently we shal weave a lovely length of dreams

Until tomorrow — — — Diary Good-night.
