

U.S. Senator Asks Backing For Quoddy

BOSTON (AP)—U.S. Senator Edmund Muskie, Maine Democrat, has urged New Englanders to give full support to the Passamaquoddy power project.

At a hearing in the federal building, Muskie said the project is "visionary yet practical, daring yet sound."

The proposal envisages harnessing the tides of Passamaquoddy near Eastport, Me., to provide electric power for New England and the Canadian Maritime provinces.

Others at the session included Kenneth Holm, assistant secretary of the interior, and Morgan D. Dubrow, department of interior engineer.

Dubrow said similar projects have "inspired local private firms to greater efficiency and to lower rates."

The Quoddy project, first proposed after the First World War was approved by the interior department last month. At that time secretary Stewart Udall called it "ingeniously sound and economically feasible."

SEE WASTE
The Boston Edison Co. in a statement, called the Quoddy tidal power project "a totally uneconomic and unjustified project that would waste more than a billion dollars of taxpayers' money."

"Even based on the figures prepared by the department of interior," Edison said, "the average of Quoddy power at the site will be 15.6 mills per kilowatt hour, and would be available only one hour a day, whereas new, efficient generators provide power 24 hours a day."

Little other opposition was heard at the hearing, which attracted about 75 persons.

A special committee headed by Muskie is touring New England to explain the benefits of the proposal.

Holm said the project would take 15 years to complete but sections of it will be available for use earlier. When completed, he said, 1,057,000 kilowatts of power will be available.

Discontent In China Is Reported

WASHINGTON (AP)—State department officials have disclosed the U.S. government has obtained voluminous secret journals of the Red Chinese Army showing widespread military and civilian discontent in China during 1960 and 1961.

This was a period of widespread food shortages and economic failures.

Experts, however, believe the documents indicate the army leaders were successful in overcoming the disaffection and low morale in army ranks.

How the documents reached Washington was not revealed. But they are now being made available to U.S. scholars—in the original Chinese and at $40 a copy.

The New York Times printed a story Monday disclosing the existence of the documents and their contents.
