"Oh, Celia!" Her eyes were enormous and she had lost her appetite completely. "Oh, Celia, you're not going away? I thought you were going to live here! You won't get to see Yippee's kittens, and Tiger Lil's babies are just beginning to know you and—oh, Celia!"

"I've already made arrangements for Celia to stay at a very good hotel there—the Barbizon," answered Aunt Judith efficiently.

"You sound as though Celia were forty-seven and long in the tooth and with no hope of ever marrying. For Pete's sake, she's the loveliest thing that ever lived, and you don't have to be pushed around if you don't want to be!"

"And just who is pushing her around, Mr. Randolph?" she demanded haughtily.

"The current battles in the Suez Canal Zone and riotous demonstrations in Cairo are not new experiences for either Egyptians or the British. The strategic Suez Zone and the Nile Valley have echoed the sounds of many anti-British riots, armed clashes and demonstrations since Queen Victoria's forces took over rule of Egypt in 1882.

1922 British Tommies and Egyptian firemen speed into action after rioters set fire to Cairo railway station. This year Egypt became independent, shaking off the British protectorate.

1928 Riot clubs swing as police put down a student uprising at gates of nationalist party headquarters in Cairo. As usual, subject in dispute was independence of British influence.

doesn't want to do. I merely thought that, being a spinster myself and knowing a bit about what it means to reach my age with no special interest in life, I thought it would be nice if Celia had a career, to compensate her for not being married.

ject of what I do with my life?" "The gentleness, the very mildness of her words silenced the others, and they looked at her with interest. Rusty was flushed and angry, his eyes blazing; Aunt Judith was composed, neat, perfectly herself; Honey was puzzled, looking from one to the other; Doc and Bugs were giving their attention to the platter of fried chicken before them; Susan was clinging to Celia's arm, her face white and frightened, her eyes enormous.

"I certainly would!" said Celia firmly. "Beginning tomorrow morning, I'd like to go with Honey and learn to build ships!"

tests were put on by Wanda Buchanan and Joyce MacDonald, prizes being won by Wilma MacLeod and Mrs. Garfield MacFadyen.

Next meeting is to be held at the home of Shirley and Joyce MacDonald, with roll call to be answered with something for fish pond.

At the close of the meeting a dainty lunch was served by the hostess, assisted by Catherine MacFadyen.

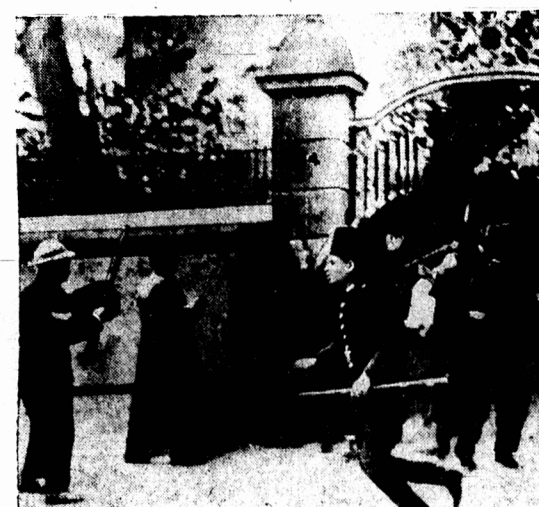

ETERNAL YOUTH WINNIPEG—(CP)—A person 80 years old can do anything that can be done at 18, said Dr. A.E. Cragg of the United College here. He told of a luncheon meeting: "If you can keep the part above your eyes alive, the rest of you won't go dead either."

DOROTHY DIX SAYS—Continued from page 3 with lipstick on his clothing. He always has an explanation but they are hard to believe. I can't bear to think that he is unfaithful. He is so good to me and our children and seems to love us all very much. I am becoming a nervous wreck trying to believe in him. Am I just the suspicious type or have I reason to be alarmed? LINDA V.

ANSWER: If your husband is everything you say he is, you are allowing these incidents to have more importance than they deserve. There are any number of ways in which a man may innocently get lipstick on his clothing. Turn to trusting instead of doubting until you have more definite proof.

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a boy 22 with two years of college. Ever since I can remember my parents have picked my friends and playmates—usually girls. While in high school and college I found it extremely difficult to make friends with the boys. Now I live in a small town but have an opportunity to accept a job in a large city. Should I take it?
