INDIAN BATHS.

The Red Men's Knowledge of the Laws of Health.

"Turkish" and "Russian" Bath of Civilization Known to the Indians.—How They Do It.—A Lesson From Nature which the Wise will Heed—Kickapoo Indian Sagwa a Grand Remedy.

INDIANS TAKING VAPOR BATHS.

In this way an Indian takes a "Turkish" or a "Russian" bath: They dig a hole in the earth, in which they lay stones, and upon which they build a fire, heating the stones to a red heat; they then carefully remove the coals; cutting a number of saplings they stick one end in the ground, bend them over and place the other end also in the ground, these extend over the hot stones in the shape of a half hoop. Over these poles or hoops the Indians place skins of animals or blankets. If the "Russian" or vapor bath is desired, they then throw water upon the hot rocks, thus generating steam. Those desiring the vapor bath crawl underneath. After the pores of the skin are opened and they profusely perspire they crawl out and another Indian dashes buckets of cold water over them, or they plunge into a near by stream. They are then rubbed thoroughly with Kickapoo Indian Oil, and are given copious drafts of Kickapoo Indian Sagwa, after which they roll up in blankets and have a sound sleep.

Who can teach the Indians anything about health? His own physique answers for his superior knowledge.

His preparations of roots, barks and herbs, now given to the world for the first time in the Kickapoo Indian Remedies are unequalled by any discoveries of the medical world of the whites.

When you feel twinges of pain in your joints, look out, a slight cold might develop Rheumatic Fever. If you have pains in your back or sides your liver is congested or your kidneys are not performing their work and poison is gathering in your body.

Exposure to cold or contagious diseases would be fatal to you.

Pimples, blotches, and other humors indicate that the poison is working in your blood. You feel languid, heavy, dull; you awake in the morning unrested. Beware!

Drive these symptoms away at once!

Take Kickapoo Indian Sagwa. It will cleanse your system, heal your diseased organs, purify and enrich the blood, and drive every taint of poison from your body.

Then you will feel strong, bright, alert and active as the Indian does.

Kickapoo Indian Sagwa is composed of nature's remedies, gathered and prepared by nature's children, who depend not upon book knowledge for their cures, but upon the leaves, the flowers, the roots and the herbs that are placed in the earth by an all-wise Providence for the benefit of every living creature.

Why, look at the animals!

If your horse lacks his accustomed vigor you are taught to turn him out to pasture.

You do so. The horse gets well.

Why?

Because there grows in every field the tender leaves of some medicinal plant which instinct tells the animals to eat, and does for the poor old horse precisely what some other, or perhaps the same plant will do for a human being. Restores the wasted energies! Renews the lost strength! Revives the drooping spirits.

Why you take Cold and Cough.

Generally caused by exposure to cold, wet feet, sitting in a draught, coming from hot and crowded places, in thin dress, or wearing damp clothes, stockings, or any other cause tending to check suddenly the perspiration. The result produces inflammation of the lining membrane of the lungs or throat, and this causes phlegm or matter which nature tries to throw off by expectoration. In many cases she is unable to do so without assistance, and this is Why you use Allen's Lung Balsam.

Contributed by the W. C. T. U.

IS IT A SIN?

"Drinking liquor is a sin, but smoking is not. The W. C. T. U. women injure their cause by crying down tobacco. They made a great mistake?"

A Christian worker made the above assertion to me one day while we were discussing narcotics.

I took a decided stand in the opposite direction, but was gently smiled down only to rise in print with some statements from others older and wiser in experience to judge by.

Some years ago Dr. Woods, a celebrated physician in the United States, said, "The active or poisonous principle of tobacco is one of the most virulent poisons known, and a drop of it in a state of concentrated solution is sufficient to drstroy a dog, and birds perish as they approach a tub containing it."

In the light of these remarks, it seems to me that it would be sinful to tamper with tobacco. What no you think?

Wandering over to France and searching into records of wisdom, we find M. Joly in addressing the Academy of Science gives this terrible warning,—"The increase of lunacy keeps pace with the increase in the revenue of tobacco, and the immoderate use of the pipe produces a weakness of the brain and the spinal marrow, which causes madness."

Think of it! And yet a woman dares to say it is no sin to smoke.

Coming home to Canada we listen with marked attention to Mrs. Elizabeth Bradley, of England, as she gives her evidence before the Ontario Prison Reform Commissioners in Hamilton: "My own conviction is that the use of tobacco has a terribly demoralizing effect, far more so than is generally understood. Some young ladies were engaged in rescuing the daughters of professional men, and there came under their attention the daughter of a clergyman, that was in connection with our work in London, England. There seemed here to be such a positive tendency to vice that we thought there was some other cause than the apparent temptation to which she was subjected. On enquiring we found that there had been great degeneracy in her ancestry. Her grandfather and father had been inveterate smokers. We set physicians to study this. My own conviction is that girls and boys who have come from a stock of this kind have a predilection to sensual vice. They are weak in that direction, and the result is a terrible increase in vice of this kind.

To me this evidence is appalling. I found it quoted at more length by "D. C." in the Home Department of the Montreal Witness. Of all letters which have appeared there on this theme no one seemed so terrible as this one. I hope all the "Y's" read it and that they may have the wisdom never to marry a man who smokes. I believe that if women were to set their wills like flint, subservient only to their Master, this evil would be swept away.

The first work is that of the individual. I knew one woman who taught her children to despise smokers and sellers of tobacco. They in turn, by God's blessing, converted their father to her views. He began preaching to his class in Sabbath school, and one boy said laughingly to another, "Why, our minister smokes; papa has to order the very best brand of tobacco for him."

The words were reported to the teacher, and he went to the minister and laid the matter before him. I am glad to say that that minister decided to give up the habit, although his wife was much opposed to his doing so. She said that his pipe soothed him so much and was such a comfort to her husband she hated to see him give it up.

Can we still consider it no sin to smoke when we remember how selfish men and boys become who use tobacco, and also the extravagance it incurs, and lastly, worst of all, ever remember that the use of one narcotic often leads to the use of others. "Tobacco prepares the way for alcohol, alcohol for opium."

Mothers, watch your little boys; examine their mouths and see to it that on their way to and from school they are not learning to smoke by picking up the stumps of cigars they found on the sidewalks. I know of children who are now smokers from this practice.

SALOMA.

A Temperance Tale.

A mouse fell into a beer vat, poor thing, and a cat passing by saw the struggling little creature.

The mouse said to the cat:

"Help me out of my difficulty."

"If I do, I shall eat you," said the cat.

"Very well," replied the mouse, "I would rather be eaten by a decent cat than drowned in such a horrible mess of stuff as this."

It was a sensible cat and said, "I certainly shall eat you, and you must promise me on your word of honor that I may do so."

"Very well, I will give you the promise."

So the cat fished the mouse out, and trusting to the promise, the dropped it for an instant.

"But didn't you promise me that I might eat you?" said puss.

"Yes, I did," replied the mouse, "but you know that when I made that promise I was in liquor?"

And how many promises made in liquor have been broken!—Selected.

PROGRESS.

It is very important in this age of vast material progress that a remedy be pleasing to the taste and to the eye, easily taken, acceptable to the stomach and healthy in its nature and effects. Possessing these qualities, Syrup of Figs is the one perfect laxative and most gentle diuretic known.

A Double Header.

Oregon newspapers tell of a double headed lizard alleged to have been found recently near the Dalles. The heads are said to be at opposite ends of the body and the feet "so arranged that the reptile could propel itself in either direction." The tail is not to be accounted for. The story comes suspiciously close after one printed recently about the "double-ender snakes" of California, which are decribed as being built according to specifications similar to The Dalles lizard.

Do Not Kiss the Cat.

It must be a terrifying revelation to those foreign ladies who kiss their cats that has been made by Prof. Fiocci, the Italian chemist. He has found by experiment that when a cat licks its lips it spreads over them a saliva in which there are swarms of minute bacilli not free from danger to human beings. When he inoculated rabbits and guinea pigs with this noxious substance they died within 24 hours, and he has come to the conclusion that it is dangerous for ladies to indulge in the habit of kissing their cats. The old maids of Italy are, therefore, warned against it.

THE GERMAN SCHOOLBOY.

No Other Student Studies So Hard or Knows So Little About Sport.

Years after year the gymnasia, high schools and universities send out into the world, there to look for a living multitudes of over-wrought youths, teeming with instruction which has unfitted them for bread-earning by the practice of any purely mechanical craft or petty trade, and has imbued them with many of the tastes and sympathies that can only be productive of happiness, or even enjoyment, to those who are enabled to take their stand and I maintain it in one of the upper social spheres. These youths have been "put through the mill" with a severity of which the British public schoolboy and university "man" have not an even approximate notion. Nothing is less like the school-life of England than that of Germany. In the first place it is entirely devoid of the element of play. Games, such as those which constitute an important feature of our educational curriculum and are specifically associative in character, are unknown to the boys who attend German Gymnasia and Realschulen. All these establishments are in the nature of day schools. They do not take in boarders, no leisure moment of the scholar's life is spent within their precincts, consequently no playgrounds are attached to them, and they are exclusively utilized for study. There is no such thing as cricket or football, rowing or paper-chasing at a German school, nor were those or any other open-air sports tolerated by the management of an educational institution, would there be any time for indulgence in them.

It may be said of the average German schoolboy that during the seven years or so which he passes in working his way up from "Sexta" to "Prima" his labors never cease save during meal times and sleeping hours, and are only lightened to a certain extent by his annual summer vacation, which, however, is abundantly fraught with tasks calling for careful fulfilment ere he returns to the regular routine of school life. This routine begins at 8 a.m. and lasts, with an interval for necessary refreshment, until a late hour of the afternoon. Should the "gymnasiast" happen to reside at any considerable distance from his school he is compelled to rise at 6 or a little after in order to dress, get his breakfast, cast a glance at his lesson-books and exercises, and reach the gymnasium in time to avert an imposition for unpunctuality. When he returns home at the end of school hours he carries with him a quantity of work, the adequate preparation of which for submission to his teachers next morning will occupy him until 10 p.m. if he be a quick student, and probably until midnight if a slow one. For healthful recreation—nay, for absolute rest, he has not had five minutes at his disposal throughout the working day. Week in, week out, excepting on Sundays, with him it is toil and trudge, toil and trudge.

STRANGELY REUNITED.

Advertised for a Wife and Found the One He Had Lost 21 Years Ago.

After a separation lasting twenty-one years, John H. Morrison and his wife have been reunited. In 1865 'Squire Morrison wedded Miss Fry, in York County, and five years later came here to reside. He remained here for two years, and, meeting business reverses, went west, leaving his wife and four daughters here, and nothing was heard of him until last March, when an advertisement for a wife appeared in a Harrisburg paper, signed John H. Morrison.

It was seen by one of his daughters. She answered it. Morrison received 617 answers to his advertisement, but replied only to the one written by his daughter. In the correspondence which followed their relationship was disclosed, and when he learned his wife was still living he made arrangements to take her to his western home. A letter received yesterday states that they recognized each other on sight at the railway station in Oklahoma.—Philadelphia Record.

Beauty and Expression.

It is in the vital part of every organism that its expression, and therefore that its beauty, lies. A face devoid of expression—and expression ever changing—might be even faultless in form; but it would be totally devoid of charm:

Faultily faultless, icily regular, splendidly null.

This may explain that many types of beauty which have fascinated not only artists, but men and women in general, have been far from perfect in form. Some witchery of expression, a grace behind the charm, has been the source of the charm. A unity might be lifeless; and it is only when life animates the harmonious forms of the phenomenal world that they become expressive. It was the principle of life that, in the first instance, shaped the forms; life, that is to say, in the large sense of the cosmic force—the natura naturans — which evolved individual vital things; but then, those phenomenal forms, in which beauty was for a time disclosed, was not the life itself. The universal life of the world always moves on and leaves each phenomenal form behind it that it may animate others and disclose itself successfully by means of them. It is in this life that the ultimate beauty of the universe resides and reveals itself.—William Knight.

A Deserter's Good Fortune.

A deserter is not always a deserter, even though branded with a great big "D," according to the laws of Queen Victoria's realm. Some time ago a well-known English resident of Wilmington, Del., applied to the British Consul here for a pension, claiming to have served his country in an Australian regiment. He admitted having had his breast branded with a red iron, with the letter "D," which marked him forever as a deserter, but claimed to have rejoined his regiment after his punishment and served out the term of enlistment. The British Home Office found that he was right, and the pension has come to him after a long wait.—Philadelphia Record.

To Make Paris a Seaport.

Once more an old scheme for making Paris into a seaport by means of a ship canal has been brought forward; and it is said that nearly half of the total cost which is estimated at six millions sterling, has already been provided for. The suggestion is that the present waterway between Havre and Rouen should be extended to Paris, so as to enable sea-going vessels to come direct to the French capital. The total length of the waterway would be 115 miles, its depth about twenty-two feet, with an average width of 114 feet. The canal would require only four locks, and in other respects its construction would present no unusual difficulties.

They Do Not Despair.

An utter loss of hope is no not characteristic of consumptives, though no other form of disease is so fatal, unless its progress is arrested by use of Scott's Emulsion, which is Cod Liver Oil made as palatable as cream.
