CARNIVAL '78

Well, Carnival Week is finally over. It would appear that no matter how well planned something is, there are always a certain number of unknown factors which seem to pop up and destroy or ruin things.

A lot of people worked at Carnival 78, the best ever at U.P.E.I. It is too bad that a few inconsiderate immature, selfish children ruined this. These "children" not only ruined Carnival 78 but they have also caused the question to be raised if there will be carnivals in the future. What's the sense of a number of students wasting their time trying to provide an enjoyable time for their fellow students only to be kicked in the face for their efforts.

Carnival Week was going well. The movie on Sunday was packed. A number of students had to be turned away.

Monday's Grafitti meal in the cafeteria was a great success and the inter-residence party in the Barn went over well.

The Square dance on Tuesday was one of the best times held this semester.

The band was called back FOUR times to continue playing.

Wednesday's Beer Bash was sold out and went over well with music provided by Frenz.

Thursday night was sold out as well. The dance floor was packed from the first set. Everyone seemed to be having a great time until the fracas broke out at about 12:15. It seemed a couple of punks from one of the Junior A Hockey teams had to prove their masculinity by pushing a few people around. Well, pushing led to words, words led to blows, and then suddenly everyone was

"NOW IF THESE PEOPLE'LL SHUT-UP AND IF THE PICTURE COMES IN I'LL BE ALL SET"
