HANKERCHIEF FLIRTATION. Drawing across the lips—Desiring a flirtation. Twisting in the left hand—I desire to be rid of you. Twisting to the right—I am thinking of you. Winding it around the third finger—I am married. Winding it around the forefinger—I am engaged to be married. Blowing on the right ear—Has your hour changed? Drawing across the forehead—Look, we are watched. Holding opposite corners in both hands—Do wait for me. Holding by all four corners—I love another. Drawing it through the hands—I hate you. Holding it pressed to the right cheek—Yes. Holding it pressed to the left cheek—No. Twirling in right hand—I will meet you. Twirling in left hand—Appointment. Drawing it across the eyes—I am sorry. Twirling in both hands—Indifference. Drawing it across the cheek—I love you. Folding it carefully—I wish to speak with you. Dropping it—I am sure we will be friends. Waving it over the right shoulder—Follow me. Waving it over the left shoulder—Farewell.

POINTS FOR THE FAIR SEX. A bridesmaid, especially at an at-home wedding, should wear a high-necked bodice. When calling, a gentleman removes his top-coat and hat in the hall and leaves them there. In writing to an intimate friend it would be quite proper to begin the letter "My Dear Mr. Gray." Pale blue and pale gray note paper are liked by some people, but clear white paper is always in good taste. On the street the lady bows first. It is not in good taste to offer your hand to a man with whom your acquaintance is slight. In inviting even one's nearest or dearest friend to visit one it is proper to state the length of time the visit is to be over. Any lady may accept flowers from a gentleman. When they are sent to her she should acknowledge them by a note of thanks. Dyspepsia and Indigestion, common diseases, but hard to cure with ordinary remedies, yield readily to Manley's Celery-Nerve Compound.

W. H. Buckingham, 396 King St. East, Hamilton, Ont., says: "I was troubled with Dyspepsia and Indigestion for a long time, and could get no relief until I tried Manley's Celery-Nerve Compound, which cured me, and I cannot speak too highly in its praise."

ROYAL Baking Powder ABSOLUTELY PURE. Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U.S. Gov't Report. BRIEF BUT INTERESTING. Men who try to serve God for gain are willing to serve the devil for nothing. If everybody else is dancing then surely a little may dance at her own wedding. The British museum receives an average annual instalment of 250,000 newspapers. The amount of money held by the various London banks is not far short of £250,000,000. There has been a remarkable absence of serious agrarian crime in Ireland during the past three months. Before a Chinaman can quit Australia he is compelled to register his departure and leave his photograph. Scarlet fever kills yearly, on the average, about 21,000 persons, chiefly children not exceeding ten years of age. A healthy man requires 16 or 20 times a minute, or over 20,000 a day; a child, 25 or 35 times a minute. Lectures double the size of those given in the ordinary way have been obtained by the new process of irrigating the soil below the surface. A manufacturer of artistic furniture in Paris has just completed a chair, the forelegs of which are of solid gold. It is valued at $25,000. The smallest salary paid to the head of a civilized Government is $15 a year to the president of the republic of Andora, in the Pyrenees. The mace used in the House of Commons is not that "fool's bauble" which Cromwell ordered to be taken away, but the mace made at the Restoration.

POINTS ABOUT CLOTHES. Never gore both sides of the widths of a thin cotton gown. Black petticoats are made of tulle, silk, alpaca, cotton and noren. A plain black satin duchesse is the most fashionable material for a black silk costume. Stiffly starched white petticoats are no longer considered good form for any occasion. The underclothing worn in traveling depends entirely upon where one is going. Heavy winter hannels are not too warm for an ocean trip. Suede kid gloves are always preferred for evening wear, and are also worn for day occasions, though the glove kid is preferred for the latter use. For a nice woolen gown for all occasions have a black mohair or finely twisted serge. Then wear different colored criss collars of velvet or ribbon with it.—Ladies' Home Journal. Beautiful designs in Louis XVI. trimmings are broad bands of black lace, with irregular or straight edges, covered with natural-tinted flowers, and renaissance lace scrolls in white. When a petticoat pushes toward the front it shows that it has fullness there which ought to be in the back, and it may also mean that the back of the skirt is too long.

Hood's Sarsaparilla has over and over again proved by its cures, when all other preparations failed, that it is the One True BLOOD Purifier. WILLIAM L. STRICKLAND, Attorney and Counsellor-at-Law, 82 WATER STREET, ROOM 12, Boston, Mass. Late a Member of Prince Edward Island Bar. Special attention given to business received from this Province. MULTUM IN PARVO. All power appears only in transition. Half our knowledge we must snatch, not take. Give up no science entirely, for science is but one. It is astonishing how little one feels poverty when one loves. Labor is the great substantial interest on which we all stand. Age makes us not childish, as some say; it finds us still true children. Genius may be almost defined as the faculty of acquiring poverty. Rich happiness is cheap enough, yet how dearly we pay for its counterfeit. Wait for the season when to cast good counsels upon subsiding passions. Knowledge and timber should not be much used until they are seasoned. Brahma once asked of "Fore" a question "stronger than thou?" she replied, "Address."

In ancient times, the sacred plow which was to sow the seeds of civilization, was drawn by oxen and not by men. The height of ability consists in a thorough knowledge of the real value of things, and of the genius of the age we live in. There is certainly something of exquisite kindness and thoughtful benevolence in that rarest of gifts—fine breeding. The great error is, placing such an estimate on it, as if our being dependent on it, and we were nothing after death. The height of ability consists in a thorough knowledge of the real value of things, and of the genius of the age we live in. There is certainly something of exquisite kindness and thoughtful benevolence in that rarest of gifts—fine breeding. The great error is, placing such an estimate on it, as if our being dependent on it, and we were nothing after death.

Man is an animal that cannot long be left in safety without education, and the growth of his fallow nature is apt to run into weeds. Ah! how much suffering might be spared sometimes by a single abstinence, by a single act of self-denial, in a firm tone to the voice of seduction. Adversity has been considered as the state in which a man, most easily becomes acquainted with himself, particularly being free from flatterers. As the unthought-of accident is particularly what we wildly do, so we profess ourselves to be the slaves of chance, and flies of every wind that blows. Men are often capable of greater things than they perform. They are absent to the world with bills of credit, and seldom draw to their full extent. Heroes in history seem to us poetic because they are dead. Just as we should tell the simple truth of some of our neighbors, it would sound like poetry. No man's abilities are so remarkably shining as not to stand in need of a proper opportunity, a patron, and even the promise of a friend, to recommend him to the notice of the world. God can say much to the poor that he cannot make known to the rich. Using the rod will do no good, unless the hand that holds it is moved by love. The more an enemy hates us, the hotter the fire kindness will kindle on his head. The man who can learn from his own mistakes, can always be learning something. The lessons we learn in the school of experience cost the most, but they are remembered the longest. The devil never wants any powder or the man who only wants to be religious to make him feel good. In His wisdom, God has ordained that the same golden opportunity shall never knock at the same door twice. Laying to please God, is the most important of all things to us, because nothing else can do so much for us.

WISDOMS. The way of the world is to make laws, but follow customs. One with more soul in his face than words on his tongue. Our own hearts, and not other men's opinions of us, form our true honor. There is only one real failure in life possible, and that is not to be true to the best one knows. Do not wait for extraordinary circumstances to do good actions; try to use ordinary situations. There is no property, trade, city or great material wealth of any kind but if you trace it home you will find it rooted in a thought of some individual man.
