

CAN LIVE A CENTURY

If we Comply Promptly and Regularly with the Right Conditions.

We Must Keep the Wearing Out and the Building Up Process in the System in Equilibrium—Dodd's Kidney Pills do This, and so Ensure Long Life.

In the days of old, men and women lived to the age of several hundred years. They were youths, strong, lusty and vigorous, at an age at which we are old, bent, wrinkled and decrepit, and at which death comes as a welcome relief from troubles, pains and miseries that are now considered inseparable from old age.

A man or woman aged 90 years, is now a comparative rarity. In the old days men were in their youth when they were 90.

There is no reason why a man should not reach the age of a hundred in his own time.

If we took proper care of our health we could do so.

We grow old, and die because our system wears out, because the human machine is not repaired as rapidly as it wears out in its different parts.

Briefly give the system plenty of pure rich blood with which to repair its breakages, and its wear and tear, and to fortify and strengthen itself, and we can defy the ravages of old age.

To do this we must keep the Kidneys perfectly healthy, for it is the kidneys that keep the blood pure. If they become weak or diseased the blood becomes filthy and weak, and disease and death follow.

There is only one way in which we can keep the kidneys in continual and perfect health. That is by using Dodd's Kidney Pills. They, and they only, of all the medicines known to man, act on the kidneys in such a way as to make them work naturally, easily and effectively all the time.

Use Dodd's Kidney Pills and you put back old age for twenty years, make the body strong and healthy, and the mind bright and vigorous.

Light and Artificial Fog.

The production of cloud by the action of ultra violet light was demonstrated at a soiree at the Royal Society by C. T. E. Wilson. The beam from an arc lamp was focused by a quartz lens in a tube containing moist air free from dust. In a few minutes a blue fog was seen to form in the illuminated cone, and this fog could be made to move by applying heat to the tube locally. When the ultra violet rays were cut off by a sheet of mica, no such formation took place, and it is therefore suggested that the small particles which give rise to the blue of the sky are produced by the ultra violet rays of sunlight absorbed in the upper layers of the atmosphere.—Engineering.

TURNED IN A BLANKET.

Was Too Severe From Rheumatism to Have Even the Nurse's Trained Hand Touch Him—South American Rheumatic Cure Got Him Out of Bed in 24 Hours.

"Some time ago I was attacked with very severe rheumatic pains. My joints swelled, and stiffened. I had to be turned on to a blanket. I had best doctors and best nurses, but could not get relief. Death would have been welcome. A friend called and recommended South American Rheumatic Cure. I procured it and in twenty-four hours after taking it there was a wonderful change. I was able to get out of my bed into a chair without assistance. I have continued using it, and although 88 years of age, I do not feel within 20 years of it. I am my natural self again, free from pain. I trust you will use the testimony as you think best for suffering humanity's sake." Samuel Haight, Sparta, Ont. Sold by Dr S W Dodd and Geo E Hughes.

Embraced by a Devil Fish.

A diver engaged in Moyne river in Australia had a terrible experience with a sea devil. Having fired off a charge of dynamite and displaced a large quantity of stones he went to the bottom of the river and while engaged in rolling over a large stone he saw something moving about in front of him. This object quickly came in contact with him and coiled about his arm. The diver walked slowly and painfully along with the sea devil's feelers twined about his body and legs. He made tracks for the ladder and gained the boat, a curious looking object indeed, with this large ugly thing entangled about his legs. With the help of the sailors he was in time freed from his submarine companion. The body of the octopus was nearly about the size of a large soup plate, with eyes like a sheep's, but it possessed nine arms, each four feet in length, at the butt as thick as a man's wrist and tapering off at the end like a grapple. All along the under part of the feelers of this strange sea creature were suckers every quarter of an inch, giving it immense power.

SCRIP is what has given Hood's Sarsaparilla the largest sales in the world and enables it to accomplish thousands of wonderful CURES.

PEKIN'S COAL MOUNTAIN.

Large Supply of Coal Stored up Against a Day of Siege.

HOW THE CHINESE LEARNED A LESSON—A PLAIN CONVERT-ED INTO A COAL-HEAP.

In the heart of Pekin, the capital of China, stands a hill, the building on whose crown is the highest point within.

It is evident that the hill is not one of the original marks of the landscape, for the plain in which Pekin lies was at one time the bottom of a branch of the sea, which, receding, has now left it 150 miles from the coast, and the city lies in one of the level spots of the sandy plain. The history of the strange hill's formation is as follows:

In the early days of the northern capital the city was besieged for a long time by a tribe of Mongols who had come down through the mountains on one of their periodical raids. They ranged through the plain, murdering and plundering, and finally brought up before the gates of the city.

But the massive walls were ample protection against the plunderers, who were armed with no other weapons than their spears and arrows.

The city was well supplied with food to withstand a long siege, so with the great city gates closed and barred, the Emperor and people watch complacently the gathering hordes without, knowing that they could still be living well from their immense stores long after the besiegers had completely exhausted the resources of the barren plain around.

The siege had been on for some time when the people within discovered that while they had plenty of food and water their supply of fuel was almost exhausted. This was a very serious matter for them, for they had long known that without fuel to boil their water before using, epidemics and fevers were sure to riot among them.

Their buildings were almost entirely of brick and stone, so that there was little to be cleaned from that source. They carefully hoarded their diminishing stock of fuel but it finally disappeared, and in spite of every precaution fever and cholera broke out in the city and carried off thousands. But the diseases finally spread to the invaders, who, despairing of taking the city, gathered what plunder they could from the villages of the plain and retired through the mountain passes to their northern home.

TAUGHT A LESSON.

The hardships which they had suffered through the siege had taught the people a lesson, and the Emperor did not intend that his capital should be caught in such a plight again, so he soon had the invaders disappeared than he began bringing into the city immense supplies of coal. Month after month continuous trains of camels moved back and forth between the mines and the city and the pile of coal in the city grew higher and higher until it became a small mountain.

When it was deemed to have reached a sufficient size it was carefully covered with earth and planted with trees to hide its true character, while tea-houses and walks were built upon it to give it the appearance of a pleasure resort.

So there in the heart of the Chinese capital has stood for centuries this hill of coal, a mountainous pile of fuel stored up against the city's day of need.

A YOUNG HEROINE.

A Little Girl Allows Her Skin to be Taken to Save Her Burned Brother's Life.

The following story of heroism comes from Toronto:—Charlie, the eight-year-old son of Mr. Hugh Smith, of the Custom House, was nearly burned to death. His left side, back and arm were so badly burned that the physicians in attendance almost gave up hope for his life. A consultation was held, at which it was concluded that the only way to heal the burns and save the use of the muscles to the boy was to graft skin upon them. The doctors looked in vain for someone that would permit the skin to be cut from his body to graft on to Charlie.

At last Charlie's little sister, Eva, who is but twelve years old, and who heard her parents talking the matter over, went to the family doctor, and said:—

"If it will make brother better, you can cut off my skin."

The parents consented and the skin was removed from both her thighs from hip to knee, and grafted upon her brother's burns. Although it was more than a week before she was able to run about again, the brave little girl never uttered one word of complaint, and only laughed at her pain.

Charlie is doing nicely, and will soon be well, while the doctors say they will never forget the little heroine that lives at 144 Liegar street.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND.

Archbishop of Canterbury's Decision.

NEW YORK, Oct 18.—Mr. N. Ford cables to the Tribune:—"The Archbishop of Canterbury deserves to be known as the Grand Old Man of the English Church. He has discussed during the last five days nearly every burning question now agitating the religious fold over which he had charge. He has taken up the Eucharist, prayers for the dead, confession, ritual and discipline, and has clearly stated what the law allows and what is distinctly illegal. These addresses have been delivered without notes, since he is nearly blind and can no longer make use of them. He has been forced to depend on his memory and talent for thinking aloud while deliberately feeling his way through an intricate maze of religious polemics, with extremists watching intently, and eager to trip him up at every turn. It is doubtful if a finer exhibition of intellect has been offered by any previous occupant of the See of Canterbury. The general effect of this remarkable charge is to clear the air and to centre the attention of Church-men upon essential principles rather than side issues. The extremists are offended on both sides by the positive and explicit manner in which he has expounded controversial questions, but the courage, sincerity, dialectic skill, and conservative spirit which he has displayed command general respect.

ESTEEMED EXCHANGES

Montreal Gazette: It would seem as if Sir Wilfrid Laurier were passing into the silence that has swallowed up Sir Richard Cartwright, the economist. The papers are filled from time to time with accounts of and comments on Mr Tarte's peculiar way of giving out Government contracts, or the doing of Mr Sifton's Yukon officials, or the blunders of Mr Blair's railway operatives, or the greatness or other qualities of Mr Mulock's lop-sided postal changes, or the lack of substance in Mr Fielding's surplus, or Mr Fisher's prohibition eloquence, or Sir Henri Joly de Lotbiniere's anti-declaration; but the Premier is hardly heard from. He seems to have lapsed into noxious desuetude.

Almost Ready to Quit.

When the dog licenses were collected by the collector of queen's taxes a few years ago, a Sussex farmer was written to to pay, and among other charges was one for a dog. He wrote back, "Now, Mr. Brown, I've paid this tax for two years and have not had a dog, and I pay it this time, but if you don't find me a dog at once I will not pay it again."—London Telegraph.

WHILE WAITING TILL PROHIBITION COMES.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets are the Best "Bracer" Known.

They Steady the Nerves, Cool the Blood, and Brace the Whole System, Giving it Strength, Steadiness, Freshness and Vigor.

Prohibition may put an end to the consumption of alcoholic liquors, and it may not.

Some think it will, others think it won't.

Whether it will or not, remains to be seen. In the meantime, people will have their "glass of ale," their "toddy," and their "B. & S." etc.

"Some fellows" will, sometimes, take a little to much. Next morning they'll be sorry for it, even as thousands of "other fellows" have been sorry for similar mistakes, thousands of times before. Their heads will ache, their eyes will be bloodshot, and "glarey" their nerves unstrung, their hands shaky; there'll be a ringing, or a roaring in their ears, and they will yearn, with a great yearning, for "a bracer."

The best, surest, and speediest bracer, in a case of this kind, is one (or two) of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets will cool the fevered blood, calm the shaking nerve, soothe the aching brain, tone and brace up the entire system, and impart steadiness, freshness, strength and vigor to the frame.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets can be carried easily in the vest pocket; they are pleasant as "candy" to the taste, and positive, rapid and permanent in their effect.

One or two of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets taken just after meals, will correct acidity of the stomach, cure Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Heartburn, Biliousness, and all other stomach troubles, except cancer.

Fifty cents a box; six boxes $2.50, of all druggists.
