R. C. M. P. Present Movies And Give Lecture

The spacious O'Leary United Church was packed on Thursday evening Jan. 18, when Constable Keefe of the R.C.M.P. detachment of Alberton presented an evening of splendid movies depicting the life and training of "Canada's Finest".
Everything from tracking murderers to finding lost wallets and cracking drug rings, comes under the wide-ranging eye of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. The Mounties continue "to get their man", 4,000 convictions in the year ending March 31st. They also saved life at sea, delivered mail, kept a watch on subversive elements and amid a host of other duties, police the vast Northwest Territories.

The first film was "Scarlet and Gold" showing the intensive training necessary to be a member of one of the most famous police forces in the world. The second film was "Dogs go to School" and showed the work and training of the famous police dogs as they work with their Masters to carry out the renowned slogan of the R.C.M.P. "Maintain the Right". The last film was entitled the Northwest Passage and showed the history making voyage of the R.C.M.P. schooner "St. Roc" from Vancouver to Lunenburg, N.S. over the roof of the world, through the famous Northwest passage in 1940. The voyage covered 10,000 miles. The scenes of the Eskimo life, sea lions, polar bears, huge icebergs etc. were superb. After the pictures, Constable Keefe was heard in a fine talk on the forces of the R.C.M.P. in the Northwest Territories where he spent three years as a Mountie in Port Simpson and other places. In the Arctic the officers use dogs, boats, planes, automobiles and snowshoes to travel the vast area.

Their half million miles included a 3,500 mile patrol last year to King William Island to establish a police post. The Mounties maintain about 250 sleigh dogs in the north, besides 15 "police service" dogs who help hunt criminals and find lost persons. The forces' annual report says that manpower of the force in the year ending March 31st has increased by 120, rising to 3,489 uniformed members. The R.C.M.P. also employs about 475 civilians and civil servants in the vast Northland specifically, crime is on the increase. To attend to all their duties there, members of the force patrolled 539,000 miles during the year, 46,860 by dog sled.

The evening's program was sponsored by the Young Peoples Unions of the Bloomfield and O'Leary United Churches. The minister, Rev. W. G. Dickson, cordially welcomed the guest speaker. Constable Keefe of Alberton also his companion Constable Cass of Alberton. The projector was operated by Douglas Hardy of O'Leary. This interesting, instructive and informative evening concluded by the National Anthem.
