Macquarrie Pleased At Birthdate Plans

Heath Macquarrie, MP for Queens, expressed pleasure at the Dominion Government's recent announcement of plans for commemorating the sesquicentennial of the birth of Sir John A. Macdonald which falls on January 16 next. "It is regrettable, however, that plans of a Postmaster General to have issued a stamp commemorating the first prime minister's birth. At the recent executive meeting of the Progressive Conservative party of Canada Mr. Macquarrie was appointed a member of a committee to arrange an appropriate party observance of the birth of its founder. The present Progressive Conservative party traces its origins to the Liberal Conservative coalition founded by Macdonald in 1854. Mr. Macquarrie expressed the hope that some type of celebration would be held in Prince Edward Island to mark Macdonald's anniversary.

CYRUS EATON

type ships in the Atlantic with nuclear missiles.

Except for a few more lines in his ruddy, checked face, Eaton appears to have aged little in the last few years. He stands tall and erect. His health is good and he still sits, rides horseback and walks long distances around his country estate before going to work each day.

He has no plans for retirement. In the years ahead he wants to devote more of his energies to helping win the cold war on the economic battlefield, with trade as the major weapon.

Eaton has been a subject of criticism and controversy since he became openly friendly with the Russians in 1957. ALWAYS ATTACKED

As one of the richest men in North America, he's been attacked for wanting to do more business with the Communist powers. Some - like say Eaton always apologizes for what the Russians are doing and seldom defends the U.S. position.

Eaton replies: "I'm utterly frank when in Russia, about the capitalistic system. I try hard to convince them that we don't hate them and want to get along.

"I believe in letting the other fellow make his own mistakes—philosophically, politically and economically.

"I think trade is one of the answers. If this country would lower certain trade barriers, it would have a tremendous effect on the rest of the world.

"By pumping in our products, we could raise their standard of living—making them want more things. There's not much chance of our getting them to adopt any of our ideas if they know we hate them so much we won't expand or trade with them.

"Of course we've got to remember that the first thing is to keep our country prosperous."

LEND-LEASE A BAR

There's another side to the financier's interest in world trade. He feels that because Washington has listed a settlement of Russia's Second World War lend-lease debt to the United States as a condition for any major trade increase, other countries have moved into the market.

"Remember that a lot of these plants over there were built with dollars belonging to U.S. taxpayers," said Eaton.

Recalling that he and Khrushchev hit it off well ever since their first meeting seven years ago, Eaton described the former Russian leader as a strong-willed man who held a job "as tough as that of the late Pope John XXIII."

One reason Eaton likes Khrushchev is because the one-time Soviet boss was bent on following a course of "peaceful coexistence" with the West. Eaton has pushed this policy for many years.

Eaton has entertained a number of Soviet leaders at his 800-acre Acadia Farm about 20 miles southeast of Cleveland.

Transportation Facilities Busy Over Weekend

A heavy volume of rail and air traffic moved to and from the province over the weekend. Because of the large number of passengers for the 6 p.m. flight from Moncton to the Island yesterday, Eastern Provincial Airways brought a load of Summerside passengers over on the 8 p.m. flight, returned to Moncton immediately and picked up a second load bound for Charlottetown.

An EPA spokesman said last night the Airways made other extra flights, including a flight to Grindstone, N.I., yesterday.

Fog Saturday prevented flights from Charlottetown airport all morning, but the spokesman said extra flights were made later in the day.

A heavy run of passengers was also reported on the train service from Charlottetown to Borden, Saturday.

CANADIAN SHRINERS

There are more than 19,000 Canadian Shriners in the nine "temples" in the country.

NO SURVIVORS OF 'COPTER CRASH

Coast Guard and volunteer workers search the wreckage of the Coast Guard helicopter which was lost since Thursday on a rescue mission. The craft was found about 30 miles from Eureka, Calif., in the Rocky Point area. All aboard the 'copter were found dead. The Coast Guard would not release the number of dead but there were rescued refugees aboard.

Mildness Is Mixed Blessing; Weight Restrictions Imposed

The rain and extremely mild temperatures of the holiday weekend appear to have been a mixed blessing, as far as highway traffic is concerned. Snow has been cleaned off all paved highways except the Trans-Canada Highway from Charlottetown to Borden. The restrictions went into effect at midnight Sunday. They call for a weight limit of 4,000 pounds per axle.

The restrictions are in effect until further notice or from 5 to 10 a.m. following a night during which the temperature falls to 20 degrees above zero.

York CGIT Holds Service

The York CGIT under the direction of their leaders, Mrs. Richard Vessey and Mrs. Reuben Waitis recently presented their annual Yesper Service in York United Church. Miss Beverly Swan was the organist.

The scripture readers were Miss Donna Walton and Miss Lenora Crockett. Candle-lighter was Miss Vera Mallet. The offering was received by Misses Jean and Hazel MacDonaid.

SCIENCE

"On the contrary, every Catholic, every Christian, every man of good will who has the choice of working on these weapons or doing research which he knows can only be used for these weapons, must consider with the most careful attention his obligations to his conscience and to mankind."

BLOOD TEST

(Continued from page 4) days apart. When the concentration of the second is higher, there is a good possibility that the woman had German measles. A therapeutic abortion may be suggested, depending upon the medical and religious viewpoints of those concerned.

Now and then a pregnant woman is exposed to the disease and, if susceptible, wants to know if a preventive is available. Several serums are used for this purpose, but they may not be successful. Best results are obtained when these products are given within seven or eight days after exposure.

In addition, the mother should be isolated from the child who had the disease for at least 21 days. The same plan should be followed when the susceptible children of a pregnant woman are exposed to the disease.
