IT IS THE FACT, Think as You Please

It is not generally known, but it is a fact readily proven by the investigations of science, that the real danger from every known ailment of mankind is caused by inflammation; cure the inflammation and you have conquered the disease in each case. Inflammation is manifested outwardly by redness, swelling and heat; inwardly by congestion of the blood vessels and growth of unsound tissue, causing pain and disease.

INFLAMMATION

External inflammation accompanies bruises, bites, cuts, stings, burns, scalds, chaps, cracks, strains, sprains, fractures, etc., and is the chief danger therefrom. Internal inflammation frequently causes outward swellings; as instances familiar to all we mention pimples, toothache, stiff joints and rheumatism. Yet the great majority of internal inflammations make no outside show, for which reason they are often more dangerous than the external forms.

Causes Every Known Disease!

Inflammation of the nervous system embraces the brain, spine, bones and muscles. The breathing organs have many forms of inflammation; such as colds, coughs, pleurisy, bronchitis, etc. The organs of digestion have a multitude of inflammatory troubles. The vital organs form one complete plan mutually dependent; therefore inflammation anywhere is felt more or less everywhere, and impairs the health. The late Dr. A. Johnson, an old fashioned Family Physician, originated JOHNSON'S ANODYNE LINIMENT, in 1810, to relieve pain and cure every form of inflammation. It is today the Universal Household Remedy.

Send us at once your name and address, and we will send you free, our New Illustrated Book, "TREATMENT FOR DISEASES," caused by inflammation. I. S. JOHNSON & Co., Boston, Mass.

CAMPAIGN NOTES.

—Speaking of the Quebec contingent in the new ministry the Toronto Mail and Empire says: "Messrs. Angers and Taillon were instrumental, the one in discovering a great and successful conspiracy against the public, and the other in repairing the damage the liberals had done. These gentlemen are now to meet in open conflict the very men whom they exposed a few years ago, for Mr. Laurier has working for him, either as agents or as candidates, all the surviving participants in the great scandal. It looks as if the gentlemen who ridded Quebec of a nest of rogues, some of whom, according to the Toronto Globe, ought to have been promptly put in gaol, have been providentially called into the federal arena to keep these same rascals out of the larger and richer field which they dearly wish to exploit."

—A Roentgen ray, applied to the head of Sir Oliver Mowat, just before he wrote his famous letter to Mr. Laurier, is said to have revealed the following train of thought:

"Well, Laurier wants me to help him in this election and he wants me badly. But I am very comfortable where I am. Still, his people are putting up such a big bluff about winning this time that if I refuse it will sort of make them feel sick. So I must let Laurier down gently. Let me see how far I can go. I can promise to join his Government if he succeeds in winning the election. That's safe enough, because he won't win. Yes, that's a good card and I'll play it, and I will also give him a bit of advice not to be too down on the N. P. or he won't have a ghost of a show. If he could only get rid of that fellow Cartwright he might have a chance, for he has sense enough to keep his mouth shut, and not offend people. Well here goes—Toronto, 2nd May, 1896. My dear Mr. Laurier, etc." P. S. (hitherto unpublished). "The above is for publication, and is not intended as an evidence of good faith. I may tell you on the strict q. t. that my opinion is that it is no go.—O. M."

—A language student in the west desires to be informed of the correct meaning of the term "talking through his hat,' Like many other phrases in the curious' but expressive speech of the United States, the words do not permit of an exact translation into the English tongue. Their spirit is best shown in an illustration. For instance, when a Liberal says he is inspired with the hope of victory at the sight of Sir Oliver Mowatt sitting in the Ontario Premier's chair waiting to see if Mr. Laurier will win the elections and give him a bigger job, that Liberal is "talking through his hat."

There is a marked and indeed significant difference between the conduct of Sir Charles Tupper or of Mr. Taillon and that of Sir Oliver with respect to the contest. Sir Charles renounced the High Commissionership, which he might have continued to hold, and accepted a position in the Government at a lower salary, which position he will relinquish if the country should go against him. Mr. Taillon gave up the Premiership of Quebec. But Sir Oliver, pleading old age, infirmity, and medical advice, holds tenaciously to the salary which he increased a few years ago, and for reasons which commend themselves to his judgment, will, under present conditions, take no chances as to the future.

The knight declares that there is a grave crisis on—"a crisis so grave that every personal sacrifice has to be made, and every incidental risk run if the country is to be rescued from the misgovernment the Dominion has so long been suffering from." He is canny enough, however, to make no sacrifice himself, and to take no risk, incidental or otherwise. All he does is to lend his name, in violation of the old reform policy of non-intervention, to the men who are making the sacrifices, on the understanding that if they win he shall be suitably remembered. This is precisely what he has done in the past, save that hitherto there has been no bargain as to the remuneration.

PAIN IN THE BACK.

A Certain Indication of the Lodgment of Kidney Disease.

It is a mistake to suppose that pain in the back is a result only of a cold, and is more of a rheumatic trouble than anything else. It is evidence that disease has lodged itself in the kidneys, and the warning is plain, if further trouble is not to be taken on, that the pain must be quickly got rid of. There is no remedy we can so completely recommend as South American Kidney Cure. Knowing what it will do, there is nothing extravagant in the statement of Count de Dory, who wrote from Neepawa, Man.: "During my travels I was induced to try South American Kidney Cure, from which remedy I received instant relief. I do not think it has an equal." For sale at Dodd's Medical Hall, Charlottetown.

The debt of the United States was increased six million dollars in April. So-called tariff reform does not appear to have saved the country.

CHRONIC HEADACHE.

The change in my Mother's condition marcellous.

Scott's Sarsaparilla is a Boon.

MONTREAL, August 29th, 1895.

GENTLEMEN:—There is such a change in my mother's health that I cannot restrain myself from writing you. She suffered for years past with a chronic headache, accompanied with a disordered stomach. She was weak and irritable, and we thought she was going into a decline. For three weeks she has been taking a course of Scott's Sarsaparilla, which was recommended to her by Mr. McGale, Druggist, Montreal. Her headache is now but a memory, her appetite is good, and she has gained five pounds in weight in twelve days. She is a different woman, and I feel that you, in God's hands, have been the means of restoring her to health. I shall always recommend Scott's Sarsaparilla to sufferers from head or digestive troubles. Thanking you again, I close.

Yours sincerely,

Hortense Gaviliere.

Scott's Sarsaparilla is a concentrated extract, pleasant to the taste, and is taken in small doses. It is the finest remedy for disorders of the stomach and liver, palpitation, scrofulous sores, eczema and skin diseases arising from impurities of the blood. It builds up the weak, the strong it maintains in health. $1 of all druggists.

It Was Hard Times.

I was riding in a mule-cart driven by an old man at whose cabin I had spent the previous night when we met a young man mounted on a horse, and the old man saluted:—

"Howdy, Jim? How's things down at the Co'ners?"

"Howdy, Uncle Jake?" replied the young man. "Not much a-doin' down our way."

"Shot any revenue fellers lately?"

"Only one, I believe. Hain't bin no good sezun fur shootin' revenue fellers."

"So I've hearn tell. Hev the Whites killed any mo' of the Tompkinses yit?"

"They shot Buk Tompkins last week, I believe, but he dun got away."

"Did, eh? Somebody was sayin' that Joe Hendricks had a pop at ole man Tolby a few days ago."

"Yaas, I reckon, but he didn't fetch him. Bullet jest went through his hat, or sunthin' of that sort."

"Any law-suits down thar?" continued the old man, evidently bent on unearthing some news of interest.

"Only one," was the reply, and that didn't amount to shucks. All got to shootin' befo' cote opened and the squar' dun run away. What yo' bin doin' since I saw yo' last?"

"Oh! Nuthin' much."

"Shoot off any mo' of the Williamses?"

"No. Durned critters keep so clus at home that I can't git a pop at 'em. Mighty pore times, Jim, take it all around?"

"Yaas, mighty pore."

After we had gone on for a little distance I asked of my companion:—

"Uncle Jake, what do you call good times around here?"

"Good times—good times?" he repeated as he flicked his whiplash at a big horse-fly on the mule's neck. "Why, sah, what I calls good times is when we pop over a revenue feller every day or two, and when I kin git a sure shot at some of the Williamses about three times a week! G'lang thar', Reuben—what yo' mean by hangin' back this way!"

The Theatrograph.

The "theatrograph" is the name of an ingenious modification of the kinetoscope, which enables pictures to be thrown life-size on a screen. By a simple piece of mechanism, the pictures are each brought into position for a tenth of a second, during which time they are stationary, and the light is cut off only during the very small fraction of a second while the pictures are being changed. Indeed, it is often found unnecessary to cut off the light at all. In this way sufficient light is obtained to give a bright reproduction on the screen, whereas, were the pictures to move continuously, and the light to be intermittent, as in the kinetoscope, the image would be hardly visible. By this apparatus the possessor of any lime light or electric lantern can project on the screen, in view of any number of spectators, any subject containing moving figures, which are represented in their natural motions. The apparatus takes any kinetoscope film. It is constructed of steel, gun metal and aluminum, and it is so compact as to go between the condenser and objective of an ordinary lantern. A French apparatus, operating almost on similar lines, has been exhibited with much success in London. In this device the photographs had been taken on a continuous band at the rate, it is said, of 900 views per minute, and by means of an electric light these were shown life-size upon a large screen at exactly the same rate, so that a changing picture was produced almost perfect in its fidelity and naturalness.

British Postal Savings.

One of the greatest bankers is the British Government. As a bank it holds nearly $500,000,000 in post-office deposits payable practically on call, and pays interest at the rate of 2½ per cent. per annum to its depositors. Last year the deposits increased $50,000,000.—Philadelphia Press.

I was therefore [illegible] sole audience on two or three occa[illegible]ons. [illegible] have known most of the good conver[illegible]alists and raconteurs of my time, [illegible] except perhaps, Robert Louis Steven[illegible] he was by far the best. I understand that a biography of Mr. Spurgeon has lately appeared; but I have not seen it, and doubt if the author has preserved the following anecdote, which I venture to write down, as nearly as I can remember in his own words—

"You wouldn't guess what calling I wanted to foll[illegible] I wanted to be a whipper-in [illegible] hounds. Yes; there was never a [illegible] where I was brought up without [illegible] attending; and many a long run I h[illegible], often across ploughed fields; and many a time I was alone at the death. I could not do it now"—and then he looked at his ample waistcoat, and laughed. I never heard a more pleasant laugh, nor one more sympathetic and infectious. He continued:—

"You wouldn't guess how I came to be a smoker. When I was sixteen, I went to my father, and told him there was a vacancy, and that I should like to go in for it. 'A vacancy for what?' he asked. 'For a whipper-in to the hounds, and I should be sure to get it.' He answered, very solemnly, 'Charles, my son, you shall be a whipper-in of souls;' and he sent me down into the Fen country to preach in the villages. When I came home I developed a violent cold, with a good deal of fever, and some twinges of rheumatism. I told my father all my experiences—how I had been received—how they had crowded in; but there was one thing in particular I dwelt on. I had observed in every cottage that the old people sat in the chimney corners, and that the table before me was ornamented with two long pipes crossed, between two jars of tobacco and two hymn books. At one of these meetings, just as I was about to speak, an old man took up and filled a pipe, and then, drawing a hot cinder from the fire, proceeded to offer it to me. I gave him a look, intended to wither him up, for I allowed no levity"—here another laugh. "'I see,'' said my father, 'how you have acquired that heavy cold.' When I was better, I started on another tour; but before I left home my father said, in his most impressive tones, 'Charles, my son, if they fill and light a pipe for you, smoke it; if they don't, fill and light for yourself. And, in any case, don't keep them from their tobacco. In that climate and at this time of year, smoking is your best protection against feverish colds.'"—The Realm.

Shooting From an Elephant.

The elephant's howdah is that bed of Procrustes, in which one can neither sit nor stand with any approach to reasonable ease, and in which a recumbent attitude is impossible. Its advantages are: First, that standing in it, a man can shoot on every side of him; second, that it is convenient for the carriage of the occupant's paraphernalia—his guns on racks on either side, his ammunition in a trough in front, his other requisites in leather pockets here and there on the sides of the machine, and his bed blanket on the seat; and third, that in a hinder compartment an attendant can stand to hold that monstrous umbrella over his head, or when quick loading is required, take from his hand the gun just fired and recharge it. These are the advantages; otherwise the howdah is an abomination.

According to late advices from Constantinople, serious disturbances have taken place at Aksheh between the Kurds and the Armenians who are connected with the work of constructing the railway between Aksheh and Konishf in Asia Minor but no details of the rioting have yet been received. The number of arrests of Armenians in Constantinople has recently been largely increased.

The "Finley House."

The Misses Finley beg to announce that they have removed to that large and commodious Brick Building situated on the corner of Pownal and King Streets, for sometime known as the "Aberdeen House." Will now be known as the "Finley House." The house has been thoroughly papered and painted and is heated throughout with hot air. In rear of the premises there is a good stable.

Boarders will find the House very comfortable and in every way satisfactory. Board on reasonable terms.

ALLIE CLAY.

The celebrated stallion Allie Clay, No. 2931, arrived by steamer Thursday last and will remain for the season. Breeders should see him, as he is without doubt a great sire, having six in the charmed list, with a dozen more knocking at the door. All of his colts are large and resolute drivers. For terms and other particulars see handbills.
