AGRICULTURAL television, folk schools, short courses and evening classes and the development of more effective and better supported farm organizations.

CONCLUSION We regret that this Brief could not be more optimistic in tone, but the realities of the situation must be faced. The Prince Edward Islanders who have remained at home have accepted the necessity of making a greater effort in obtaining a living than might be necessary in other areas and other types of employment. This greater effort together with the willingness to forego many of the luxuries and amenities of living has kept the farmer in business.

However, the world is shrinking every day and young people are well aware of the fact that thousands of miles may be travelled in a few hours. The farm must compete with the labor markets of the St. Lawrence region and its survival will depend upon its ability to attract and hold workers.

Our organization expresses its thanks for the privilege of appearing before this Commission. We appreciate the courtesies extended in hearing our presentation and express our confidence in your work making an outstanding contribution to the development of this nation. Sgd. J. Lincoln Dewar, Secretary, P. E. I. Federation of Agriculture.

Montague Camera Club Meeting

Miss Charlotte Gordon was hostess to the Montague Camera Club on Thursday evening. The meeting opened with work session, the project being the mounting and framing of pictures. The new president, Dr. Bud Ings, then presented ideas to the group for future meetings. These suggestions were met with a great deal of enthusiasm by all the members.

The book "This Is Photography" is to be the club study for the winter months. The different members will take parts of the book to use as a basis for talks to be presented at each meeting. The names of the members were placed in "the hat" and each member was to take a portrait of the one whose name he drew. These portraits are to be finished by December 1, when the "unveiling" will take place at a Christmas party. After the discussion of several other matters, Walter Morton presented a gift to Vic and Joan Pepler on behalf of the club in appreciation of the help and encouragement they have been to the members since the club was formed. Lunch was served by the hostess and Mrs. Bud Ings and Vera Beck.

NEED FOR EXTENDING

Continued from page 2 The large increase in expenditure from 1928 is accounted for by increased costs in materials, labor, salaries, together with higher costs of education, debenture interest, payments to Sinking Funds, more and better public services, and increases in personnel and administration. As the future financial situation appears now, the population will increase. While it is generally true that municipal expenditures grow at a more rapid rate than the municipality itself, we cannot find the means of keeping costs sufficiently low to diminish the difference. Moreover, our indebtedness is about as high as it can go. Many local services which are increasing at the most rapid rates cannot pay for themselves. They require subsidies. The City now pays all it can by way of grants and exemption from taxes and the provincial contribution is substantial. The costs of these local services (i.e. in hospitals and schools) are increasing and the financial pressure on them is consequently great. But we must look after our sick and educate our children and the necessary money must be found.

There are a few limited ways in which more money could be secured from the Provincial Government, such as an increase in lieu of municipal income tax, assistance for upkeep of main thoroughfares, a share of the gasoline tax, business tax on government stores (i.e. liquor stores), or from the Federal Government, such as the granting of full powers to tax Federal sales tax. It appears, however, that more extensive changes will have to be made in the division of both responsibilities and revenue among the three levels of government if the municipal responsibilities are to be effectually handled and if competent and dedicated personnel are to be retained to do the work.

FACILITIES The housing requirements are not as great as in some other municipalities because the population has risen more gradually. But construction of houses and business establishments would undoubtedly rise sharply if the land were available in the City or if the City could afford to take in outlying centres and give them adequate service. Excellent possibilities exist if the funds are available. Yet there is expansion in the outlying areas despite their lack of facilities.

CITY LIMITS We feel, therefore, that within the next ten or fifteen years our present city limits will have to be extended to include them and the necessary services will have to be provided by a higher level of government. Where the money is coming from is uncertain, but it will have to be raised. We anticipate, too, that in the next decade we will be required to participate in the development of processing industries to handle the products of farm and sea. We must encourage such industries so as to develop our trade and provide a living for the young people whom we wish to hold here. We expect such industries to develop as we can provide the land and services. And we hope to welcome small industrial plants to serve the Maritime area and to remedy somewhat the lack of balance between our exports of primary products and our imports of processed products. An example of the changes required in existing facilities is the fact that the trend in food processing is away from canning to fresh-freezing. Seventy five per cent of the frozen foods sold in Canada is imported from the United States; if the possibilities of our participating in this field if the needed capital and direction are provided.
