Attacked By Locusts.

A detachment of Russian troops, bound for General Lazaroff's expedition against the Turcomans, is reported by the Kavkaz to have met with a curious misadventure near the Georgian town of Elizavetopool. At a few versts from the town the soldiers encountered the wing of an army of locusts reputed to be twenty miles in length and broad in proportion. The officer in charge did not like to turn back, repelled by the mere insects, and pushing on, soon became surrounded by the locusts. These appear to have mistaken the soldiers for trees, and swarmed by thousands around them, 'crawling over their bodies, lodging themselves inside their helmets, penetrating their cloths and their knapsacks, filling the barrels of their rifles, and striving to force themselves into the unfortunate men's ears and noses.' The commander gave the order to the troops to push on double quick for Elizavetopool, but the road was so blocked with locusts that the soldiers grew frightened, and after wavering a few minutes, a regular stampede took place. Led by the non-commissioned officers of keen vision who had observed a few huts a short distance from the road, the troops dashed across the fields, slipping about over the crushed and greasy bodies of the locusts as though they had been on ice.' The huts were soon reached, and the officers rushed inside, but the refuge proved to be of little value, as the premises were already in the possession of the enemy. The peasants told the correspondent of the Kavkaz that for days they had been besieged by the vermin, the insects filling the wells and tainting the water, crowding into the ovens and spoiling the bread, and preventing any food being cooked or stored. At intervals the villagers issued from their houses and made onslaughts on the locusts, killing them by thousands, and carting them away afterwards to the fields for manure. The soldiers were detained prisoners by the insects for forty-eight hours, and on their march to Elizavetopool in the rear of the locust army they found every blade of grass and green leaf destroyed, and the peasants reduced to beggary.

CHARLES READE, the irascible apostle of ambidexterity, has found an enthusiastic supporter in a correspondent of the New York Sun, who proposes the formation of a society for the development of the left hand to the full capacity of the right one. The writer asserts that such training would bring immediate benefit to those whose occupation requires a constant use of the right hand. The writer's palsy would be unknown, for both hands being used alternately, each would have the requisite rest. In addition he contends that their would be a higher development of one-half of the brain which is poorly developed on account of the lack of stimulus. There is really no reason, excepting custom, why a man should not use his left hand as well as his right, but we doubt whether any reformatory effort will avail to change a deep seated and inherited habit.

CATARRH.

Constitutional Catarrh Remedy CURES CATARRH.

Hear what a Reverend Gentleman says of the Constitutional Remedy.

T. J. B. HARDING, Esq., Brockville, Ont.:—

DEAR SIR—It is now two years since your "Constitutional Catarrh Remedy' was introduced to me. I have waited this long to see if the cure would remain permanent before doing this, my duty, to you, as at first the happy effects seemed to me to be "too good to be true."

I was afflicted in my head for years before I suspected it to be Catarrh. In reading in your Circular I saw my case described in many particulars. The inward "drop" from the head had become very disagreeable, and a choking sensation often preventing me from lying long, I would feel like smothering and be compelled to sit up in the bed. My health and spirits were seriously affected. When your agent came to Walkertown in August, 1876, I secured three bottles. Before I had used a quarter of the contents of one bottle I found decided relief, and when I had used two bottles and a third, I quit taking it, feeling quite cured of that ailment, and have not used any since until of late I have taken some for a cold in my head.

A sense of duty to sufferers from that loathsome disease, Catarrh, prompts me to send you this Certificate, unsolicited, with leave to make what use of it yon may see proper
Yours truly,
W. TINDALL, Methodist Minister.
