P.M. To Speak At U.N. Today

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) Prime Minister Diefenbaker worked through the weekend with his advisers on Canada's policy statement due for presentation in the United Nations General Assembly today.

The Canadian leader is the only government head expected to speak for his country in the new 12th assembly. Following the speech he will fly back to Ottawa to resume preparations for the October opening of Parliament.

The prime minister arrived shortly after noon Saturday, and went immediately to a luncheon appointment with Dag Hammarskjold, secretary-general of the U.N. Later he held a series of conferences with members of the Canadian U.N. delegation here, including External Affairs Minister Sidney E. Smith.

It was understood that the prime minister's speech would be subject to last-minute revisions allowing the United States and Soviet policy declarations in the U.N. Thursday and Friday. But disarmament was expected to remain the key point in Canada's plans for the coming session.

Diefenbaker also is expected to confer with Britain's Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd on the Queen's visit to Ottawa for the opening of Parliament.

The prime minister is expected to address the assembly at about 11 a.m. EDT. He will be host at a dinner for other Commonwealth leaders before flying back to Ottawa late in the evening.

The Canadian leader made no airport statement Saturday. By contrast, the foreign minister of Syria, Salah Bitar, who arrived at about the same time, took the opportunity to criticize the U.S. for its Middle East policy.

This indicated that the Middle East problem will vie with disarmament as a major subject of contention in the U.N.'s general debate. The Syrian minister said that the "immediate crisis" involving his country and the U.S. was caused by American attempts to plan a coup d'etat against the increasingly Moscow-minded Damascus government.

Lloyd will make Britain's policy speech Tuesday, and is expected to leave for London shortly afterward.

Smith likely will follow the prime minister back to Ottawa within 10 days, in view of his expected nomination for the vacant Hastings - Frontenac House of Commons seat. However, it is understood that he hopes to make periodic visits to the U.N. during the course of the assembly.

WILL SPEAK

Hon. George Hees, Minister of Transport will arrive in Charlottetown today from Ottawa. Mr. Hees will be the guest speaker at a dinner tendered by the Government of Prince Edward Island tonight. As Minister of Transport, Mr. Hees is expected to have something to say about the Island Causeway, a matter on which all four Atlantic Premiers are in agreement.

P.M. Salutes Business Women

The following letter from Prime Minister John Diefenbaker has been received for publication from the National Chairman for Business Women's Week by Miss Agnes McQuaid, Chairman of Business Women's Week for the Charlottetown B. and P. Club:

"On the occasion of Business Women's Week, I am very happy to send my greetings and best wishes to the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs. I know well what a very useful contribution these Clubs make to the national life of Canada, not only to business and the professions, but also to the community at large.

The theme of this year's Week is, I think, a very apt one. In enthusiastically endorsing your "Salute to Women Who Work," I would like to include the name of my own wife who has more work to do than I have and does it much better!"

Says Khrushchev In Relaxed Mood

LONDON (AP)—Aneurin Bevan says he found Nikita Khrushchev in a relaxed mood when he talked with the Soviet Communist party leader five days ago.

There have been reports in western capitals that Khrushchev is facing difficulties on the home front and that his position is far from secure. But the labor party figure gave no indication of this in his report appearing in The News of The World.

Bevan, in line to become foreign secretary should Labor win the next general election, said he and his wife met Khrushchev while the Soviet leader was vacationing in the Crimea.

"Our host was in a relaxed mood," wrote Bevan, "very different from the strained and obviously fatigued condition he was in when I saw him in London last year."

Czech-Made Arms Seized

AMMAN, Jordan (Reuters) — Jordanian army patrols and police seized Czech-made machine-guns, automatic rifles, time bombs, ammunition and explosives in the Ramtha area of Jordan, the government announced Saturday.

The announcement said the arms were discovered near the Syrian-Jordan border. It did not give any more details. Police are investigating.

Though no Arab state was directly named, the Syrian army is equipped with similar arms.

Negroes To Show Up At Little Rock School Today

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—Dozens of city policemen will be on hand to preserve order when Negro students show up at Central high school this morning.

Assistant police chief Gene Smith asked how the city police will be armed, said details have not been worked out yet.

"They'll be equipped just like any police organization," Smith said.

Another police source said present plans are for officers to wear only billy clubs and regular service pistols.

SOUNDS OMINOUS NOTE
An ominous note was sounded by Governor Orva Faubus of Arkansas on his arrival for a southern governors conference at Sea Island, Ga.

Faubus said he is "a little apprehensive" of trouble if Negroes try to attend the school.

For the 110,000 residents it may be the end of the tense three-week drama, or the forerunner of more unrest and uncertainty.

Three of the nine Negro students turned away previously by armed state militia guardsmen said Saturday they will try to enter the 2,000-pupil white school today.

They had received tacit encouragement a few hours earlier from Mayor Woodrow Wilson Mann, who inherited the "preserver of the peace" role from Governor Faubus.

Mann wasted no time when Faubus withdrew the troops Friday following an injunction issued by the U.S. district court here.

A few hours after Faubus left for the governors' meeting, Mann called a press conference and announced city police would crack down on any troublemakers at the school.

He emphasized that police will not try to block integration as the guardsmen did. But the mayor also said police will not escort Negro students into the school building.

Another report said Mann may give orders to disperse adult onlookers and keep them moving out of the area — a step never taken by the guardsmen who rimged the school.

It is not spoken segregationists also had plans, they were not revealing them. An air of uncertainty seemed to pervade their ranks Sunday.

Mann, who asked ministers to pray Sunday for peace in the city said he expects no violence.

President Eisenhower Saturday expressed confidence "any violence by extremists" will be opposed vigorously by law-abiding citizens in Little Rock.

Eisenhower's first statement, issued before leaving for his daily golf, called the withdrawal of troops "a necessary step in the right direction."

Haitians Turn Out In Large Numbers To Vote

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (AP)—Haitians turned out in droves Sunday to vote under army protection for a president and a new congress. Women, balloting for the first time in the 153-year history of this black republic, dominated the outpouring.

Indications were that more than 1,000,000 of the 1,600,000 eligibles would vote before the polls closed.

The rush reflected a desperate hope that whoever is elected president will end the political warfare which brought six governments since last December and wrecked the economy.

There were no reports of violence in early balloting but potential trouble lay ahead.

Supporters of former senator Louis Dejeu openly threatened to burn this capital city if he is not elected.

Because of slow counting and poor communications the result may not be known before Tuesday or Wednesday.

ACTRESS WEDS ACTOR

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP)—Lillie Palmer, German-born movie actress and her Argentine fiancé, actor Carlos Thompson, were married here Saturday in a civil ceremony. The actress was divorced last February from British actor Rex Harrison.

Norway's New King Takes Oath

OSLO, Norway (Reuters)—Crown Prince Olav took the oath of allegiance as new king of Norway Saturday two hours after the death of his father, King Haakon, Europe's oldest reigning monarch.

The accession was a simple act. King Olav V presented to the cabinet a written oath of allegiance to the constitution and was confirmed as new sovereign.

King Olav, 34, was at the bedside of his 85-year-old father until the last.

The old king ruled Norway for 52 years since the kingdom separated from Sweden. He had been failing health, for several weeks. Weakened by circulation trouble and bronchial catarrh, he took a turn for the worse last week.

While most of Norway was still asleep, Oav published a proclamation in which he said he will retain his father's motto, Al for Norway.

Leaders of all political parties — from Conservatives to Communists — met later and decided to cancel their election campaign until after King Haakon's funeral Oct. 1. Voting follows Oct. 7.

Norway's neighbors, Sweden and Denmark, joined in paying homage to the king.

Tage Erlander, Swedish premier, said his country received news of the death with grief. He said Haakon represented "the best in his people — simplicity, courage and endurance."

Queen Elizabeth proclaimed two weeks of mourning in her court. President Eisenhower expressed "deep sympathy" at his vacation headquarters in Newport, R.I.

Premiers Discuss Problems Today With APEC Members

Premiers of the four Atlantic provinces meet here today to talk over their region's economic problems with members of the Atlantic Provinces Economic Council.

Its the second time the premiers have got together in a little more than four months. Their last meeting was at Halifax in May.

They're expected to carry further the plans they laid then for getting more federal financial aid for the Atlantic region. Two ways they hope to get it are in federal grants for capital projects and compensation for northern territories of Canada annexed to other provinces.

Premiers Fleming of New Brunswick, Matheson of Prince Edward Island, Smallwood of Newfoundland and Stanfield of Nova Scotia will open their conference at a joint session with businessmen of the Atlantic Provinces Economic Council. APEC is holding its annual meeting here at the same time.

Then the premiers will go behind closed doors with their advisers for private discussions. They'll meet again in a windup session with APEC members Tuesday.

TWO YEARS OLD
APEC is an organization of Atlantic region business and industrial men who aim through cooperative action to bring more prosperity to the area. They formed the council two years ago.

About 150 representatives of primary and secondary industry, business, labor, education and other fields inside and outside the Atlantic provinces are expected to attend.

Transport Minister Hees will speak at a dinner tonight. Prince Edward Islanders hope he may have something to say about prospects for a nine-mile causeway to join the island to the Canadian mainland.

A.R. Williams of Toronto, assistant to the president of a A. V. Roe Canada Limited, will speak Tuesday night. He is expected to talk about Avro's plans for the Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation, the biggest single industry in the Atlantic region. Avro wants to buy enough stock to control Dosco.

COMMITTEES TO REPORT
APEC members will get reports from their four permanent committees on agriculture, power trade and the tourist business. Agriculture reports will include one on prospects for increasing beef cattle production.

Norman T. Smith, general manager of the Nova Scotia Light and Power Company will report on APEC's progress in co-ordinating electric power facilities in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick.

Both the premiers and APEC are expected to take definite action to set up a joint Atlantic provinces office in the United Kingdom.

APEC members will choose their officers for the next year with R. J. Rankin of Halifax likely to be returned as president.

Adenauer Sees "Some Unrest" In Soviet Union

WASHINGTON (AP)—Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of West Germany says "there is some unrest, some fermentation in the Soviet Union." He said the Russians have dealt two severe blows in recent weeks.

The blows were his own re-election and the United Nations vote condemning Russia's suppression of the Hungarian revolution.

Adenauer said in a television interview Sunday that because of these setbacks this is no time for a four power conference to tackle East-West problems. "I think we should give them some time to recover," he said.

As for his victory in the elections, Adenauer said the Russians took "great pains to influence them in their way and their favor." But he said they were shown "the Germans are not prepared to do the will of the Russians."

SEES NEIGHBORLINESS
"I can very well imagine that in the coming four years, Russia will come to realize this and will wish to live on good neighborly terms with us," he added.

He said he looks for considerable progress toward controlled international disarmament and German reunification.

Testing of the pipeline now is underway in preparation for delivery of gas to Winnipeg.

Announce Wage Increase For Newfoundland Ferry Crews

NORTH SYDNEY, N.S. (CP)—The CNR Saturday announced an average $615 annual wage increase effective immediately for 413 seamen on 16 of its Newfoundland service ships, but union officials said the move "will not influence the men or the situation."

The union is due today to collect strike ballots cast by the seamen Sunday. They are all members of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees and Other Transport Workers Union (CLC).

Lloyd K. Abbott, their Maritime representative, said in a statement Sunday the increase "is a move by the CNR designed to confuse the men or the eve of taking a strike ballot. It is puzzling to determine just how the $615 overage was worked out."

Douglas V. Gonder, CNR vice-president and general manager in the Atlantic region, said the hike was made as a result of a conciliation board report.

"It had put into immediate effect the increased wages and other benefits recommended." Increases range from 10 to 13 per cent and are retroactive to Dec. 1, 1956, for engineer officers and to May 1, 1957, for purser, chief stewards, other officers and unlicensed personnel.

Mr. Gonder said the steamship employees would also receive substantial concessions in overtime pay statutory holiday days, health and welfare benefits and premium rates for cleaning boilers.

In Ottawa William J. Smith, president of the union said he hopes to know the result of a strike vote by next weekend.

He said in an interview the increase was designed "to influence employees in their vote." Such procedures are not conducive to

Two Lifeboats And Raft Seen But No Sign Of Crew

LONDON (CP)—U.S. Air Force planes searching the stormy mid-Atlantic reported Sunday night they had spotted two lifeboats and one raft, but no sign of the German barque Pamir or any survivors.

The four-masted sailing ship, carrying a crew of 86 and a cargo of barley, left a voyage from Buenos Aires to Hamburg, was caught Saturday in hurricane Carrie about 600 miles west of the Azores and radioed that she was sinking.

The raft spotted from the air carried the word Luebeck, the West German city where the 3-102-ton, four-masted ship is registered. The raft and the lifeboats were empty.

AUTHOR AMONG MISSING
Zerssen and company in Luebeck, which has operated the Pamir as a grain carrier and training ship for the German shipping industry and the government foundation which owned her, said the Pamir carried 86 German officers, sailors and maritime cadets — an Austrian cadet and a German sea author, Capt. Fred Schmidt.

Earlier, an empty, broken lifeboat was found in the distress area by a British tanker.

The 3,103-ton, 32-year-old Pamir included 54 merchant ship cadets among crew members.

The ship was believed about 600 miles west, southwest of the Azores or at a point 35.37 north latitude, 40.20 west longitude. Flares in that area were reported Saturday night by the American freighter President Taylor and the Liberian freighter Penn Trader.

CRUSADER REACHES AREA
Rescue vessels headed for the scene, and the Canadian destroyer Crusader was reported early Sunday to have reached the distress area.

The Crusader steamed to the area after receiving a radio message from a naval station in England. The Canadian Atlantic Command at Halifax said the destroyer was on exercises and en route to the Azores when it received the emergency call.

Before noon New York time Sunday, the British tanker San Silvestre radioed it came alongside an empty, damaged lifeboat. The San Silvestre gave its position as 35.38 north latitude, 40.21 west longitude.

Letting on in the lifeboat, the tanker reported, indicated Luebeck, Germany, as port of registry.

The U.S. coast guard in New York quoted the San Silvestre as reporting: "Examination shows the bow sliced off as by falling debris. Rudder still lashed in position on board. Suggest boat could have washed overboard considerable time before the Pamir foundered."

The Pamir has six lifeboats in addition to three rubber rafts on deck. The vessel was equipped with an auxiliary engine, a 900-

horse-power submarine diesel. WAS LISTING BADLY
The Pamir had reported she was listing at a 45-degree angle. The San Silvestre reported 10-foot seas in the area but that visibility was good—10 to 15 miles.

Hurricane Carrie apparently had left that area and was reported headed for the Azores, where bad weather was blamed on poor communications between the islands and the Portuguese mainland.

U.S. Air Force planes based on the Azores, including a C-54 rescue plane carrying rafts, swept into the teeth of hurricane Carrie.

The C-54 searched for four hours without finding anything. The hurricane prevented the plane from returning to the Azores and instead it flew to Bermuda.

The Dutch tug Zwartee Zee—said to be the biggest rescue tug in the world—also was reported to be trying to save the barque and her crew.

In Hamburg, Otto Wachs, chairman of the shipowners trust which owns the Pamir said Capt. Dieblich, 61-year-old commander of the Pamir, had considerable experience with sailing vessels but that this was his first voyage with the windjammer. Capt. Hermann Eggers, who normally commands her, is ill.

The Pamir was launched in Hamburg in 1905. She was captured as a war prize by Britain in the First World War. In 1931 she was sold to Finland and until the Second World War transported wheat from Australia to Europe. New Zealand seized the Pamir.

In 1951 she was converted into a training ship for the German Navy, and in 1956 was sold to the West German shipowners trust for use as a boys' training ship on the South American run.

She is believed to be the only sailing ship still on ocean cargo hauls.

Making his first tour of Prince Edward Island since his recent appointment, Douglas V. Gonder vice-president and general manager of the Atlantic region of the Canadian National Railway arrived here yesterday on a three day visit.

Mr. Gonder, who was formerly general superintendent of motive power and car equipment of the Atlantic region, made frequent trips to the province between 1944-49 and has since vacationed here on numerous occasions.

Born of Canadian missionary parents at Pingyao, China, where he received his formal education, Mr. Gonder came to Canada as a youth and began a brilliant railway career in 1925 as an apprentice in the CNR Shops at Stratford, Ont. He became a draughtsman in 1930 and was successively promoted to the positions of mechanical inspector, assistant engineer, erecting shop foreman, and roundhouse foreman.

YOUNGEST ON RECORD
The youngest man ever to hold the post, he was named superintendent of the CNR shops at Montreal, the largest on the system, in 1942. Two years later he moved to Moncton, N.B., as general superintendent of motive power and car equipment for the Atlantic region and in 1949 was promoted to assistant general manager of the Western region at Winnipeg. He became general manager a year later. He was appointed assistant vice-president of operation for the system in 1950.

MR. D.V. GONDER

In 1953 when the CNR introduced a staff training course for administration, he became the first director and played an important part in its successful development.

He is a director of the Canadian Premier Life Insurance Company, the Admiral Realty Hotel, the Inter Varsity Christian Fellowship; an officer of the Baptist Church; and a member of the Canadian Club Canadian Railway Club, the Moncton Golf and Country Club, the Gideons the American Society of Mechanical Engineers and McGill Associates.
