Remarks Of Visitors Boost Island Pride

How to increase your provincial pride. Lesson one: Step A. Drop in at the provincial travel bureau on the corner of Richmond and Great George Streets, Step B. Step boldly up to the counter and begin leafing through the guest book. Step C. Read the comments tourists have been making about the Island. For example, "Your province is a gem." Step D. Gloat.

Comments in such a book run the gamut from complaints to gushingly enthusiastic praise.

There are notes of appreciation for the services of the bureau itself, which a Miami couple described as "the most helpful... we have found".

The Island gets tagged with such adjectives as "peaceful," "beautiful," "different," "interesting," "lovely," "friendly," "breath-taking," "keen," "excellent," "pretty," "magnificent," "wonderful," "splendid," "fabulous," and "tops."

A Massachusetts couple, who said they were "back home" from a resident of St. John's, who admitted that the Island is "almost as nice as Newfoundland."

"Of the 27 states and seven provinces I have visited, P.E.I. is the best I have found for an extended vacation or a short one", commented an Ohio man.

Someone signing in as "Jayne Mansfield" (resident of Hollywood, California, travelling in company with one Rock Hudson) found the Island to be "bigger than expected".

Most people enjoyed themselves in the book are honest. An Ottawa lady wrote that her party had "enjoyed ourselves immensely, dined sumptuously, relaxed gloriously".

But the supreme compliment comes from a resident of St. John's, who admitted that the Island is "almost as nice as Newfoundland."
