CORRESPONDENCE.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

DEAR SIR,—In the Patriot of 23rd ult. there appears a long letter from Mr. S. F.
Perry in reply to Mr. Gavin. The editors of this district, so far as I know, take no very deep interest in the newspaper con-troverly at present going on between those gentlemen. There is an old and true axiom which says "you had better wash your dirty linen at home," which would apply well in this case. If those gentlemen have any personal difficulties to settle, I think it would be to their advantage, as well as to that of the public, to wait till the House meets, when they will have a favorable opportunity of settling their troubles on the floor of Parliament. Mr.
Perry, appears, however, to be completely worsted in the newspaper warfare, and if he cannot make any better defence in the presence of the Speaker, he will be wholly at the mercy of his formidable opponent, although it must be admitted that, considering the disadvantages under which he labored, he has made a pretty good fight.
His record, it is true, is too well known in this district to be successfully defended, and his last effort is that of a desperate man who finds that place and power are fast slipping from his grasp, and consequently resorts to artifices and means for the purpose of defending himself that, under ordinary circumstances, would be scorned by an honorable man. In his letter Mr. Perry reveals a career of political tergiversation and deceit on his part that should for ever cover his name with infamy and disgrace. I can scarcely believe that any man in his sober sense could sit down and write for publication in the press of this Province a history of his political career so replete with the details of his own political deceit and treachery as Mr. Perry did in his last letter. He states that in 1873 himself and Mr. Howland contested this district in opposition to the Laird-Haythorne Government, and that they were elected by large majorities. That an element in the canvass was opposition to the terms of Confederation obtained by Mr. Laird and his confederates, but that if better terms could be secured they were willing to support them. A Government was formed, under the leadership of Mr. Pope, and Mr. Perry was endorsed in the sunny position of Speaker of the House, with a salary of $500 per annum. But Mr. Perry forgot to mention that this was twice the amount hitherto paid the Speaker, and that the additional $250 was paid him in consideration of his supporting the Government. He further states that Messrs.
Pope and Howland proceeded to Ottawa and succeeded in obtaining for this Province better terms to the extent of $28,000 a year, which were almost unanimously adopted by Parliament.

He does not stop to consider the great benefit this large sum, obtained by those gentlemen, has been to this Province, which they succeeded in securing in opposition to men who he now calls his political friends, and which sum those great Liberals did all in their power to prevent this impoverished country from obtaining—going so far as to telegraph the Government of the Dominion not to give Pope and Howland any better terms. Those gentlemen, however, notwithstanding this opposition, according to Mr. Perry, did succeed in obtaining $28,000 a year for this Island, more than Laird and Haythorne agreed to accept, which fact should entitle them to the everlasting thanks and gratitude of the people of this Province. But how did Mr.
Perry set on this occasion? One would suppose that he would do all in his power for the men who appointed him to an honorable and lucrative position, and who had also proved themselves the true friends of the people. The sequel shows that he did not do so. On the contrary, according to his own statement, while holding the high position of Speaker of the House at the hands of the Conservative Party, the party who had by their superior ability secured $28,000 a year better terms for the Province, he was plotting on the other side, and had promised Messrs. Yeo and McDonald, the nominees of the Laird party, his support at the Dominion Elections. Such conduct on the part of Mr.
Perry was both mean and contemptible, and should brand him in the opinion of every high minded person, as being the most mercenary and dishonorable of politicians. His own recital of the facts connected with his infamous escapade in 1873, is sufficient to establish this beyond all doubts. This controversy in the newspapers has been the means of bringing his gross misconduct, his business and his treachery directly to the notice of an intelligent public who will show him on the first opportunity that they have a proper appreciation of his many acts of political dishonesty and deceit.

ELECTOR.

Tignish, 6th March, 1882.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

SIR,—That disinterested philanthropist, J.
T. Jenkins, still continues to lore the public with his "Innate" writings. He is posing as a public benefactor, and hence he feels it to be his duty to affix his signature to his letters.

My attention was, by a friend, directed to his opening paragraph in Saturday's EXAMINER.
He says:—"Such a one, were he in freedom, would be a fit companion for those quaint and wretched who, from behind the hedge or wall, pour a volley of sins into those against whom they have a grudge." What does he mean by this language? What right has he thus to wantonly insult Irishmen? The Irish are neither "wretches" nor "quaint" If he means to insinuate that the Irish are such "wretches" that they cowardly shoot those against whom they have a grudge, I have no hesitation in telling him that he is an "unmitigated" libeler. The idea that the Irish are such "wretches" may exist in the fancy of loungers in low London bar-rooms or gin-mills; and if it was from such "companions" Doctor Jenkins imbibed his conceptions of the Irish, I think the Government of Prince Edward Island did a wise thing in excluding such a character from the position of Medical Superintendent of our Asylum.

Although he blows considerably of "mental capacity and professional acquirements," a person who is not a gentleman could, perhaps, allude to those to whom, from behind a professional M. D., he had "given a pill" more deadly and unerring than the "volley of slugs" from "those horrid Irish."

Yours truly,
FISHMAN.

March 14, 1882.

A Severe Loss by Fire.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

DEAR SIR,—Be pleased to give the following a place in your valuable paper, and oblige: —On the morning of Tuesday, the 7th inst., the barn and stables of Mr. James Waddell, of Crapaud, Lot 29, were totally destroyed by fire. Unfortunately, at the time, there were in the stables six head of fine cattle, one horse and three hogs, all of which perished in the flames.
The barn contained about 300 bushels of oats, a large quantity of hay and straw, together with harness, carts and other farming utensils, all of which were consumed.

Mr. Waddell was a thrifty, hard-working man, and is now under the pain of seeing his industry of years reduced to ashes. He was absent at the time. The cause of the fire is not properly known. Mr. Waddell has the sympathy of very many, and we trust he will have their assistance also, in aiding him to bear the heavy loss which he has sustained.
No insurance.

Yours truly,
A. NICHOLSON.

March 14th, 1882.

Crapaud Notes.

The Messrs Myers, who have the contract of Victoria Bridge, although the weather has been so stormy, are doing good work, and have almost completed the contract. Men who are capable of judging of such work say it is well done.

Mr. Lamont, who has the contract of the wharf, is now hauling timber. There has been such a depth of snow in the woods it was almost impossible for him to get the material required.

Farmers are now hauling mangel mud lively. There are twenty diggers now on the river in full blast.

People here are rejecting over the bill to be brought before the Government to repeal the Assessment Act. The Government of to-day is very popular in this part of the country.

Diphtheria is doing its fatal work here. Ten children in this neighborhood have died since the first of November last, with this disease.

Crapaud Corner, March 15, 1882.

Winnipeg.

The faith of speculators, as to the rapid development of the North-West, is very strong. Accounts from Winnipeg report that the property fever in the city is as intense as ever. The hotels are crowded, and there is a regular jam at meal time—the accommodation being quite inadequate to meet the requirements of the crowds who, from all quarters, repair to the city.
A number of mammoth hotels are to be immediately erected. At present every available space is utilized for sleeping purposes. One building lot was recently sold in the city, which brought $30,000, dollars, or one thousand nine hundred and forty four dollars per foot frontage, being equal to a hundred and sixty-two dollars per inch! Knox's Church has been brought to the hammer, and the first bid for it was one hundred and ten thousand dollars, which was rapidly increased, till the offer rose to one hundred and twenty-six thousand, at which figure it was knocked down to a syndicate. After the sale was over a responsible party in the building offered to lease it for five years as it stood, and to make all his own alterations, at a rental of seventeen thousand five hundred dollars. These facts indicate how confident speculators are as to the rapid growth of the city.

Land is being sold rapidly and at high prices. Properties many miles from the city, which could have been purchased last fall at about fifty dollars per acre, are now bought at prices ranging from two hundred and fifty to a thousand dollars per acre.
There will doubtless be a reaction, for these enormous advances cannot be maintained.
It is the remarkable vigor with which the construction of the railway has been prospected, which has led to the development of a speculative spirit. When the richness and extent of the land to be possessed are taken into account, it is impossible to estimate the increase which may take place in the population of the great North West during the coming decade. There are only driftlets of emigration from Europe at present, but a full flow may be confidently anticipated, which will continue to increase in volume for many successive years, until the country is teeming with millions of busy and prosperous inhabitants.—Halifax Herald.

W. W. Danenhawer, of Washington, has received a letter from Lieutenant Danenhawer, saying that the "Jennette" party had to travel several hundred miles over ice from the ship to the mouth of the Lena. After wading two miles to land they were forced to travel one hundred miles further before reaching shelter. Danenhawer was up five days and four nights without sleep or rest. He says that out of the thirty-three comprising the crew and officers of the "Jennette," only thirteen are known to be living. The Governor of Yakouisk treated them with the greatest consideration. He sent sleighs for them, and gave them a supper on Christmas Eve.

Advices received at Victoria, B. C., from Ottawa, states that a syndicate of California capitalists has been formed to build the Island Railway.

Ross has declined to enter the contest for the new Sportman's Cup unless Hanlan is a competitor, which the latter's previous engagements render improbable.
