Gov't To Drop Mark VI Version Of Jet Fighter

OTTAWA (CP) — The government Friday night announced it will drop the Mark VI version of the CF-100 all-weather jet fighter interceptor from the defence budget at an estimated saving of $25,000,000 during the current budgetary year.

and Prince Philip for a four-day state visit.

NEED FOR ECONOMY

The statement read: "This decision resulted from a careful review of the defence program made as the result of the need for economy, and in view of the rising costs of the defence program generally."

"In order to continue higher priority projects and to keep the defence budget within bounds it is necessary that lower priority projects be cut back or discontinued."

Both the CF-100 and the 1,200-mile-an-hour CF-105, now under development, are products of a federal Avro Aircraft Company of Canada at Toronto.

Senior officials had said last month that consideration was being given to junking the Mark VI program because the all-weather jet fighter with which it was to be armed was nowhere near the production stage.

The RCAF's nine squadrons in Canada now are completing conversion to the Mark V version, which can climb higher than the earlier Mark IV. The four CF-100 squadrons in Germany are equipped with the Mark IV.

At Toronto the prospect of personnel layoffs by Avro Aircraft and Orenda Engines Limited appeared in the wake of a federal government announcement.

Predicts Public Inquiry Into MCA Crash In Nov.

OTTAWA (CP) — Transport Minister Hees said Friday a "wide open" public inquiry into the crash of a Maritime Central Airways DC-4 at Isouadun, Que., Aug. 11, is expected to open in about one month at Montreal.

He said the inquiry will hear anyone who may throw light on the cause of the accident, which took 79 lives, when the plane crashed in a swamp during a storm on a flight from Britain.

Meanwhile, two technical members of the inquiry board—Capt. J.D. Alexander, senior TCA pilot, and P. E. Halsey of the Havilland Aircraft, Toronto — have completed detailed examination of the wreckage.

They are reported to have satisfied themselves the aircraft control mechanisms and engines were functioning efficiently up to the minute of the crash but renewed examination could upset this theory.

Mr. Cantin said that in the face of evidence presented in the coroner's court, the six-man jury had no alternative but to render a verdict of accidental death.

LOGICAL CONCLUSION

"Inquests have no other purpose than to determine whether there is any criminal responsibility in violent death. The jury came to a logical conclusion and incriminated no one."

Mr. Cantin said a public inquiry into the causes of Canada's worst air tragedy will be held later.

Possibility B. C. Firm May Buy Souris Filleting Plant

It is understood that negotiations by a British Columbia firm are underway for the purchase of the fish filleting plant in Souris owned by Griffin Fish Ltd.

The British Columbia firm, it is believed, is anxious to put more and larger draggers into operation so as to insure a continuous supply of fresh fish for the plant.

In the event of an agreement being reached on the purchase of the Souris plant the new owners would discontinue dragger fishing during the months of August and September and switch to the long lining method of fishing.

The Griffin plant first came into operation last year after it had received substantial assistance from the Provincial Government under the Industrial Promotions Act. In addition to the filleting plant the Griffin Firm operates a fish cannery and a fishmeal plant known as Souris Sea By-Products.

Election Of Liberal Member For Yukon Is Declared Void

OTTAWA (CP) — Aubrey Simmons, Liberal member of the Commons for the Yukon whose election was declared void Friday by a court decision, still can take his seat in the Commons at the opening of Parliament Monday.

Officials said the seat cannot be declared vacant until the Speaker of the Commons formally receives official notification of the judgment and issues a warrant declaring its evanescence.

Mr. Simmons can appeal the judgment to the Supreme Court of Canada. If he does, he can retain his seat until a decision from that court confirms the judgment made Friday in Whitehorse.

He could not be re-elected immediately for comment.

Mr. Justice J. E. Gibben of the Yukon territorial court and Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson of the Supreme Court of British Columbia voided Mr. Simmons' election in the voting last June 10 because of controversies of the Election Act.

Two judges are required by law to hear applications to void a federal election.

Mr. Simmons, 60, has an eight-day period, from the date of the judgment, to signify his intention to appeal to the Supreme Court. If he does not decide to appeal, the judges are required by law to send official notification of their judgment to the Commons speaker within four days following the eight-day period.

The lawyers said they also will go into the federal appeals court Monday morning seeking to have the teamsters union cited for contempt of court.

Pakistan's Prime Minister Resigns

KARACHI, Pakistan (Reuters) — Prime Minister H. S. Suhrawardy resigned Friday in an internal political crisis but his departure is not expected to change the nation's pro-West foreign policy.

Suhrawardy, prime minister for 18 months, tendered his resignation after President Iskander Mirza refused his request for a special parliamentary session at which the prime minister could seek a vote of confidence following the defection of the 25 Republican party members of the governing coalition.

After he quit, Suhrawardy's Awami League supporters put on a protest march charging he was forced out. Police put down the demonstration with clubs and were reported to have injured and reached the well-guarded home of President Mirza.

Good Flight Is Predicted For Royal Couple Today

THE QUEEN OF CANADA

Annette's Quiet Wedding Shattered By Cameramen

MONTREAL (CP) — Amid the whirl of movie cameras and the glare of flashbulbs, Annette Dionne Friday became the first of the famous Dionne quintuplets to marry.

Her marriage to Germain Allard, 24-year-old junior executive of a finance company, was to have been a simple, intimate, family affair in ultra-modern Notre-Dame-de-la-Salette church in downtown Montreal.

While the ceremony was simple, the intimacy was shattered by a dozen uninvited photographers who managed to gain entrance to the church whose main doors had been locked almost two hours before the wedding. At one point the photographers were told they did not stop wandering about the church; there were no further incidents.

Before the couple exchanged marriage vows, Father Lalonde told them their families had set an example for them to follow. If they did that, he said, they could face life with confidence.

Then the couple and the 16 guests moved to the basement of the church for a quiet reception. A three-tier wedding cake was the centrepiece of the head table.

It was through the basement that the photographers gained entrance to the wedding ceremony.

There were reports that the bridegroom was furious about the invasion of photographers. Mr. Langlois was quoted as telling friends that he will take steps to see that a similar incident does not occur during his marriage to Cecile.

First Flu Death Reported In N. S.

HALIFAX (CP) — The first death in the Atlantic provinces attributed to the current flu epidemic occurred Friday.

A steelworker died in a Sydney hospital from pneumonia that developed from influenza. Percy Sullivan, 41, caught the flu on a trip to Halifax for a medical checkup on a heart ailment.

School attendance continued below normal in the Annapolis Valley of Nova Scotia.

SNEAKED IN

Word of where the wedding was to be held leaked out only a few hours before the ceremony. Newspaper men and photographers had been told that the church would be locked to all without an invitation. An "official" photographer and his helpers were to take the only pictures inside the church.

Reporters took up positions inside the church long before the doors were locked. They were not asked to leave. As the time for the ceremony approached about a dozen photographers converged on the scene and were told they could not be admitted.

A RUSHED "OUI"

Looking solemn, the petite 23-year-old Annette said "oui" in a hesitant, hushed voice barely audible in some sections of the church, one of the most beautiful in Montreal.

Rev. Germain-Marie Lalonde, provincial of the fathers of the Holy Cross and a personal friend of the Allard family, performed the wedding ceremony. There were 18 invited guests, including two of the four surviving quintuplets. The fifth quint, Emilie, died in 1954 during an epileptic seizure.

Cecile Dionne, who is to wed Philippe Langlois Nov. 28, sat with her fiancé, Marie, frailest and shiest of the quintuplets, at immediately behind Cecile with a girl friend of Annette's, Yvonne, the other of the quint sisters, was in hospital with the flu and was unable to attend the ceremony. She is reported to be in serious though not desperate condition.

Before leaving on her honeymoon, Annette visited Yvonne in the hospital and gave her the wedding bouquet of red roses.

GUT FROM SAME CLOTH

Garbed in a simple brown suit and beige hat, Annette walked slowly down the aisle on her father's arm against a background of soft organ music played by Rev. Gilles - Allard, brother of the groom and a member of the Holy Cross order.

The bridegroom was dressed in a brown suit cut from the same bolt as Annette's. He was accompanied by his father Pierre Allard of Drummondville, Que.

One of the groom's brothers, Maurice, sang in the choir, and two other brothers, Luc, 16, and Claude, 18, served as altar boys.

Queen Gives Small Party On Eve Of Overseas Flight

LONDON (Reuters) — Queen Elizabeth gave a small farewell party Friday night as the weatherman forecast she will have a "good flight" to Canada today.

A BOAC spokesman said the Queen's DC-7 should set down at Uplands Airport in Ottawa at 4:30 p.m. EDT (5:30 p.m. ADT) after the 13½-hour transatlantic flight. This is the scheduled arrival time.

"Conditions over the Atlantic and Canada generally are pretty good" the spokesman said.

However, the Queen and Prince Philip may leave a slightly foggy London Airport when their plane takes off at 4 a.m. ADT on its 3,400-mile non-stop flight.

The Queen greeted Prime Minister MacMillan, Canadian High Commissioner George Drew, U.S. Ambassador John Hay Whitney and other sat her send-off gathering in Buckingham Palace.

Queen Mother Elizabeth and Princess Margaret are expected to see the Queen and Philip off. It was a busy day for the 31-year-old Queen—but not as busy as the grueling schedule facing her during her four days in Canada and six in the United States.

Before the party, she had to handle the normal flow of official documents, see a new ambassador from Libya, attend a Royal Family memorial service for Norway's King Haakon and receive the Earl of Listowel, new Governor-General of Ghana.

Plotting the royal plane will be Capt. Gordon Store, 51, a South African who has flown the Atlantic 332 times since 1939. The crew of 11 will include three more pilots, a navigator, engineer, radio officer and two stewardesses. The Queen and Philip are returning to North America for the first time since 1951.

Prince Philip To Wear The Uniform Of Admiral Of Fleet

OTTAWA (CP) — Prince Philip is to wear the uniform of admiral of the fleet, with the Order of the Garter with blue sash and star and his service medals, at the opening of Parliament Monday.

He is expected to wear the same uniform at the wealth placing ceremony at the National War Memorial Sunday. At the state dinner Monday night he is to wear white tie and decorations.

The royal visit information committee which issued the details on the prince's attire made no mention of what Queen Elizabeth will wear on those occasions. Her choice of clothes is a closely-guarded secret and likely won't be known until the time of each event on the royal visit program.

Royal Couple Said Looking Forward To Visit To Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip are looking forward to visiting Canada's capital today.

That was her message in a cable from London Friday on the eve of her departure by air for Ottawa. In reply to a "bon voyage" wish from Prime Minister Diefenbaker she said:

"I send you my very warm thanks for your message of welcome to Canada. My husband and I are looking forward so much to our arrival at Ottawa."

The anticipation she expressed was mutual. Mr. Diefenbaker earlier had cabled to her in London:

"On the eve of Your Majesty's journey to our realm of Canada I send to Your Majesty and Prince Philip, with humble duty, the affectionate wishes of all Canadians for a good passage. Fair weather, bon voyage and God speed."

people with a countrywide radio and TV speech over the CBC Sunday night at 10 o'clock.

She and Philip dine with Prime Minister Diefenbaker, the Governor-General, cabinet ministers, provincial premiers and lieutenant-governors, diplomatic and church dignitaries at a state dinner Government House Monday night. Afterwards 500 persons join them at a state reception.

FAMILY DINNER

The Diefenbakers are to give the royal couple a quiet family dinner Tuesday night at the prime minister's residence.

On Sunday the Queen and Philip attend church services at Christ Church Anglican Cathedral. Before the service the Queen is to pause at the National War Memorial in Confederation Square to place a wreath.

Philip will receive his diploma as an honorary fellow of the Royal Society of Canada, which he was awarded last June, in a Government House ceremony Monday. Earlier Her Majesty will preside at a meeting of the Canadian Privy Council and then receive heads of Commonwealth and foreign diplomatic missions and their wives.

The Prince Tuesday noon will receive the 29 Canadians who attended his study conference on human problems of Commonwealth industrial communities, held at Oxford in July, 1956. Afterwards he is to make a radio broadcast.

The tour ends Wednesday after a stop for a special children's program in Lansdowne Park on the route to Uplands from Government House. About 15,000 school children are to attend. From Ottawa Friday the royal couple fly to Williamsburg, Va., to start a United States visit.

ST. LAURENT'S Decision Final

OTTAWA (CP) — The Liberal parliamentary group Friday asked Louis St. Laurent to stay on as leader, but he said he is quitting as soon as the party can choose a new chief.

The 75-year-old former prime minister said to reporters that he told the party caucus—a meeting of Commons members and senators preliminary to Monday's opening of Parliament—that his decision is "irrevocable."

He made it clear, however, he intends to stay in parliament as Commons member for Quebec East, at least until the next federal general election.

Elizabeth will be the first ruler ever to open Canada's Parliament. The highlight of her visit is Monday afternoon when she reads the speech from the throne, written by the new Progressive Conservative government, to open the first session of the 23rd Parliament.

Her father in 1939 gave royal assent to a few bills of legislation while in Ottawa, but Parliament was in the midst of its session then.

TRAVEL BY AIRLINER

The royal couple are travelling from London aboard a luxurious four-engine aileron of British Overseas Airways Corporation. It is due to touch down at Uplands airport, on the southern outskirts, at 5:25 p.m. ADT.

The Queen and Philip then make a processional drive to the official residence of Governor-General Massey. They will stay there, in the same royal suite the Queen's parents occupied in 1939. She makes her first "live" television broadcast directly to her
