

Mental Grasp of the Journalist.

Journalism results in a universality of mind. The true journalist takes an active interest in the greatest variety of subjects. Politics, science, art, metaphysics, commerce—in short, all the varied fields of human activity occupy his attention.

Newly-Discovered Terra Cottas.

Writing of the newly-discovered terra cottas in the excavations of Naucratis, a correspondent notices the Asiatic type of the figures on broken vases, their obliquely set eyes and smiling expressions.

The portrait heads, however, are by far the most attractive objects of this epoch. Their variety is endless. Some old, some young, some bluff and hearty, some thin and hollow-cheeked, some laughing, some sad, they bring before us, almost as vividly as might be done by photography, the dead and gone people of this long-lost city.

A CARO.—To all who are suffering from errors and indiscretions of youth, nervous weakness, early decay, loss of manhood, &c. I will send a recipe that will cure you, FREE OF CHARGE.
