Betting At Fort Erie Track Up

FORT ERIE, Ont., (CP)—Wagering for the first 28 days of Fort Erie's 37-day summer meeting soared over the $10,000,000 mark, an increase of nearly $2,000,000 over the same period in 1953. Attendance at the first 28 days of the meeting has shown an increase of more than 15 per cent over the corresponding period in 1953.

The wagering hit the $10,000,000 mark despite the fact that Tuesday's crowd of slightly more than 4,000 was the smallest of the current season. Torrential rains which were general through this section of Ontario stopped only a few minutes before post time for the first race today.

Successful daily double bettors received $397.30 Tuesday. Lawford, owned by John Stuart and ridden by Bert Albert, won a photo finish from Diavan in the first race, and paid $18.60. Feature Story completed the daily double by winning the second race over Silent Honor. Feature Story, ridden by Gordon Nadeau, paid $34.60 straight.

Radio, TV Costs BEG $80,000 In Ticket Sales

VANCOUVER, (CP) — Television and radio broadcasts have cost the British Empire Games coffers an estimated $80,000, Sam Rosen, manager of ticket sales, said here Tuesday.

Rosen, who said he felt Vancouver should have been blacked out to telecasts of the games, predicted sales would fall about $35,000 short of expectations.

"It was a mistake we made," he said. "I don't think anyone realized how seriously it would affect the gates."

Telecasts of the Games are being carried by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation in the Vancouver area and by United States television interests in the Seattle area.

"It has hit us hardest in the Seattle area. They can get very good reception of most events down there and just aren't bothering to come up."

He said ticket sales will probably hit $350,000. The Games organization needed $385,000 to get out of the red and only $320,000 worth of tickets had been sold.

Nationalist Leaders Emerge From Exile In Tunisia; Map Plans For Comeback

By ROBERT MARX

PARIS, (Reuters) — Tunisia's powerful Neo-Destour nationalist party, outlawed for the last two years, today mapped plans for a triumphant comeback in the French North African protectorate.

Strategy meetings were held in Paris, Geneva and Tunis as the nationalist leaders emerged from detention or homes in exile under the stimulus of French Premier Pierre Mendes-France's revolutionary reform program.

But opposition within the French parliament to the premier's offer of Tunisian self-government took a menacing turn Tuesday night. A committee of 115 deputies led by former Conservative premier Antoine Pinay protested vehemently against the Tunisia reform.

PREMIER ACCUSED

They accused Mendes-France of abolishing treaties linking France and the Tunisian protectorate without consulting parliament first and called upon the group's adherents — independents, Guallists and Conservatives — to fight the action.

The Tunisia issue will be debated in the national assembly next Tuesday when deputies speaking for French Tunisian settlers will try to bring down the Mendes-France government.

Habis Bourghiba, exiled Neo Destour leader, Tuesday announced from his home in Montargis, near Paris, that his party will grant full support to moderate nationalist Tahar Ben Ammar, appointed premier by the Bey of Tunis Monday.

SUBMITS CABINET LIST

In Tunis Tuesday night, Ben Ammar submitted a tentative cabinet list to the Bey for approval.

Neither the names of the new ministers nor the participation by parties in the new government were announced. It is expected, however, that the Neo-Destour, no longer outlawed even technically, will join the new government.

Mendes-France, who last Saturday offered Tunisia self government in all but defence and foreign affairs, wants the government to be as broadly representative as possible.

Bourghiba said in a statement Tuesday that the new independent premier is a "good patriot" and he would do everything he could to facilitate his task.

Canadian Armor-Piercing Ammunition Adopted By Britain and United States

OTTAWA, (CP) — Canada has developed a new armor-piercing ammunition which has been accepted for standard use by Britain and the United States, the Defence Research Board says.

"Canada is recognized as a leader in this field of munitions development," the board said Tuesday in a statement outlining some of the things the Duke of Edinburgh will see during his three-hour visit Aug. 13 to the Canadian armament research and development establishment at Valcartier, Que.

The Board said a 17-pounder anti-tank gun will be fired, using pot sabot ammunition, "a Canadian development which provides almost phenomenal penetration against armor plate."

The establishment will also show the Duke the various component parts of its new air-to-air guided missile and a new bazooka-type anti-tank infantry weapon known as The Heller. Details of both these weapons are secret.

SEE SPECIAL RANGE

The Duke will also see the aeroballistics range, a 750-by-20-foot concrete tunnel in which trajectories of bullets, shells and guided missile models are studied while in flight at subsonic and supersonic speeds.

The range is the only one of its kind in the British Commonwealth and is fitted with high-speed cameras, special lights and electronic telemetering equipment. The range can measure not only the speed of munitions in flight but also pitch and yaw, important factors in the development of accurate, hard-hitting armaments.

Italian Team Conquers Second Highest Peak In World, Brief Message Says

SKARDU, Kashmir (Reuters)—Italian mountaineers reported Tuesday they have conquered the world's second highest mountain after a three-month ordeal costing the life of one climber.

A brief message delivered by native runners to this foothill town said the 11-man expedition reached the icy, wind-swept peak of 28,250-foot Mount Godwin Austen, known as K-2, last Saturday.

Two Americans and three Sherpa guides had lost their lives in unsuccessful expeditions since 1938 before the Italian team began scaling K-2 April 30. The chilling weather claimed a sixth life when Mario Puchez, considered the hardiest Italian climber, succumbed to pneumonia at Camp Two 19,000 feet up. He was buried at the foot of the mountain.

FLAGS AT PEAK

Beaten back by blizzards and monsoons early in July, the Italian team regrouped at 25,000 feet for a second assault. The brief victory message said they planted the Italian and Pakistan flags on the peak. Names of the men who made the final ascent were not given.

ROME (Reuters)—Flags were hoisted and floodlights were turned on churches and public buildings Tuesday night as evening newspapers proclaimed the Italian conquest of K-2 in huge headlines.

President Luigi Einaudi wired Italy's congratulations to the leader of the Italian Alpine Club expedition, Prof. Ardito Desio.

Mount Godwin Austen, located in the Karakoram range of the Himalayas in the Pakistan-held area of Kashmir, is only 891 feet lower than Mt. Everest, conquered by a British expedition May 29, 1953.

When Sir Edmund Hillary, co-conqueror of Everest, heard about a 13-day blizzard that struck an American expedition on K-2 last year, he said: "It makes me realize what an easy time we had on Everest."

SEVERAL KILLED

Arthur Gilkey, 26, a Columbia University geology student, was killed in August, 1953, when all nine climbers of the American expedition, roped together, plunged 100 feet while crossing a knife-edge ridge during their descent.

K-2, so called because of its reference on old maps and charts, claimed four lives in 1938 when Dudley Wolf, an American, was stranded at 24,500 feet. Three Sherpa guides sent to rescue him all failed to return.

The conquest of K-2 leaves 28,146-foot Kichinjanga, another Himalayan peak, as the highest unclimbed mountain in the world. Second highest now is 26,629-foot Nanga Parbat, also in the Himalayas.

Rail Dispute Climax On August 11

MONTREAL, (CP)—The lengthy dispute between the nation's railways and their non-operating employees will reach a climax Aug 11 with the announcement of the result of a nation-wide strike vote

Frank Hall, head of the unions' negotiating committee, said Friday a meeting of union leaders will be held here Aug. 11, after which the outcome of the vote will be made known. Some 135,000 non-operating workers are eligible to cast ballots.

Results are arriving from locals of the 14 unions involved in the dispute, Mr. Hall said in an interview. He described the vote as "heavy" throughout the country.

NO WAGE DEMANDS

If the employees vote in favor of the strike a walkout could be called at any time after the result is announced but further negotiations would not be precluded.

No wage demands are involved in the dispute but the unions are asking for fringe benefits which the railways say would cost $60,000,000 a year. Both the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways have said they are financially unable to meet the demands because of declining revenues.

Prime Minister St. Laurent said Wednesday Parliament may have to meet in special session in August if strike action is taken.

Workers involved in the dispute constitute practcally the same group that went on strike for nine days in 1950. That walkout ended when the government intervened and named an arbitrator whose decisions were final.

TURN DOWN FINDINGS

Negotiations between the unions and the railways in the current dispute broke down June 22. The unions turned down the findings of a federal conciliation board on the grounds that the three members failed to follow proper procedure. Each member of the board filed a separate report.

A. J. Wickens, the union representative on the board, recommended seven of the eight statutory paid holidays asked for by the unions; three weeks vacation after 15 years' service and two weeks for hourly-rated employees after two years; and a study of a health plan.

The unions had asked for three weeks vacation after 10 years and a bonus for Sunday work.

Supreme Court Justice R. L. Kellock, chairman of the board, called for three paid holidays a year, three weeks holidays after 15 years' service and a health plan.

M. M. Porter, the companies' representative, rejected all the demands

Extension Of Air Raid Warning System Considered

By DAVE McINTOSH
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian and American defence planners are giving close study to the next move in extending the continent's early-warning system.

Officials here said Tuesday there is no doubt that the system will be extended farther north but no final decision has yet been taken.

They were commenting on a statement at Washington Saturday by retiring U.S. Assistant Defence Secretary John A. Hanna that Canada is going ahead with a "third" cross-country radar chain.

Actually, former Defence Minister Claxton announced last November that Canada was going to build this chain, known as the "Mid-Canada" line.

This will be the second radar chain in Canada and it won't be finished for several years. The first is the "Pine Tree" chain, now almost complete, which has been built "upward and outward" from main target areas in parts of Canada and the U.S. and extends roughly along the Canada-U. S. border.

ONE IN ALASKA

Officials said Mr. Hanna apparently referred to the Mid-Canada line as the "third" chain because the Americans have built what is known as the "Dew Line" in Alaska. The word "line" is a misnomer at present because this network comprises only a few stations. There are also a small number of these stations in Canada's far north.

Officials declined to say whether the radar extension being considered is a lengthening of the Dew Line across the rim of the Arctic. Such a scheme was ruled out about eight years ago as being too expensive and not particularly effective. However, now that progress has been made on early-warning systems in the south, a far-north chain may be found feasible though the cost of installing and maintaining it would be enormous. Too, the range of Russian bombers is being increased all the time.

Officials denied reports published in the U.S. that Canada has not been kept informed by the U.S. of its early-warning plans. They said there has been the closest co-operation in this field between the two countries.

CONFUSED REPORTS

Officials said confusion seems to break out every time the continent's early-warning system is mentioned.

A Washington report, for instance, said the Pine Tree chain runs generally along the 54th parallel from British Columbia to Labrador. Actually, this is the general region where the Mid-Canada line is being built. Pine Tree is 400 miles south of this.

Mr. Claxton said last fall that Canada and the U.S. can't afford a foolproof air defence system, even if one could be devised.

GAPS IN NET

Officials admit there are gaps in the radar networks. And although Canada has some 37 regular and reserve air force squadrons, only three are equipped with long-range CF-100 jet interceptors.

The Mid-Canada line would provide only warning of enemy aircraft. It would not be able to direct interceptors against these aircraft as Pine Tree can do. The Mid - Canada line will employ equipment known as the "McGill Fence." Once installed, it does not have to be manned continuously as Pine Tree does.

Will Expand Navy Arsenal

OTTAWA, (CP)—The defence department has decided to expand the navy's big arsenal at Bedford, near Halifax, it was learned Friday.

The project has been approved in principle, but it is still in the design stage and details of the plan have not yet been completed.

It is understood the cost will be less than $1,000,000 and tenders for construction are not expected to be called before next year. The navy magazine supplies the east coast fleet with torpedoes, sheils and other armaments and munitions.

Maggie Going On Training Cruise

OTTAWA, (CP)—HMCS Magnificent, under command of Commodore H. S. Rayner of Clinton, Ont., and Halifax, will sail from Halifax Sept. 21 for a 10-week autumn training cruise.

The navy announced Friday that the aircraft carrier will call at Colon and Baloa in the Panama canal zone and spend three weeks in the Esquimalt and Vancouver areas, arriving at Esquimalt in mid-October. It will be the first cruise to the west coast for the Magnificent since she was acquired by the navy in 1948.

Authorize Use Of Wound Stripes, Service Chevrons

OTTAWA, (CP)—Wound stripes and service chevrons will be authorized for wear this fall by officers and men o the Canadian Army militia.

The army said Tuesday that for each officially-recorded wound received by enemy action during the Second World War or in Korea, the militia soldier will wear one gold stripe on his left sleeve. Wounds incurred in other wars will be represented by one red stripe.

Service chevrons have been authorized on the basis of one chevron for every two years' service up to 10 years. On completion of 10 years' service, a maple leaf will be worn above the five service chevrons on the right sleeves.

Personnel with more than 12 years' service are qualified for the Canadian Forces Decoration and this, together with rosettes, indicates long service.

The chevrons will be French grey instead of the red ones issued for each year of service during the Second World War. Personnel on active duty during the first year of the Second World War were entitled to wear one silver chevron.

Wearing of insignia indicating wounds and length of service was discontinued after the Second World War.

American Airlines Sues Pilots' Ass'n

NEW YORK (AP) — American Airlines said Tuesday it has filed a $1,250,000 breach of contract suit against the striking AFL airline pilots association.

The federal court suit asks $1,000,000 damages for the four-day strike of pilots and an added $250,000 for the union's influence on striking pilots.

Named as defendants were Clarence Sayen, president of the union; J. J. O'Connell, chairman of its American Airlines division, and C. H. Daudt, New York chairman of the union.

IN MEMORIAM

MRS. WILFRED L. CAMPBELL

—The community of Irishtown and vicinity was saddened on Monday, July 19, by the passing of one who by her exemplary character and beautiful personality had earned and was accorded an exceptional measure of affection and esteem. Mrs Wilfred L. Campbell, the former Sadie Althea MacNeill of Cavendish, passed away at her home at Irishtown only five days after her return from the Prince County Hospital, to which he had been admitted several weeks previously having broken her hip in a fall at her home. Further illness developed and at the last she was stricken with paralysis with fatal effect. She was 67.

Prior to her marriage the late Mrs. Campbell was a successful school teacher. She was a charter member of Irishtown Women's Institute, a member of Long River Presbyterian W. M. S. and had at various times held office in both organizations.

She was a daughter of the late William MacNeill and his wife Elizabeth Donald. Left to mourn the loss of a loving wife and mother are her husband and seven sons and daughters, Irving and his wife, Eileen at home, Glen, Mrs. Eddie Murphy, Sea View; Norris in Ontario; (Helen), Mrs Hayden Dixon, Summerside; (Erma), Mrs. Al Carsia, Fairbanks, Alaska; (Louise), Mr. P. L. LeRoy, Halifax, and Ian at home. Also surviving are one sister, Mrs. Frank Ramsay, Clifton, and two brothers, Townsend and Alvah MacNeill, Cavendih, and 14 grand-children.

The funeral was held from her late home on Wednesday when the service was conducted by the Rev. E. H. Bean of Kensington who had visited her during her illness. The text chosen by M. Bean for his discourse is found in Psalm 37 verse 37, "Mark the perfect Man and behold the Upright: for the end of the man is Peace!" fitting words to apply to one who had lived the christian life as nearly as it is given imperfect man to do, and who radiated an inward peace, even tho the sunshine in her life was darkened by many a cloud.

The hymns chosen were: "There is no Night in Heaven," "Asleep in Jesus," and "Shall we gather at the River?"

Pallbearers were lifelong friends and neighbors of the family: Messrs. Keneth, James and Heath MacLeod, Lorne, Thomas and Preston Campbell.

The many beautiful floral offerings and exceptionally large concourse of sorrowing friends attested to the esteem in which the deceased was held. Burial was in the Geddie Memorial Cemetery, New London.

Card Of Thanks

The family of the late Mrs. Wilfred L. Campbell take this opportunity to offer their sincere thanks to all those who in any way assisted in her care while a patient in the Prince County Hospital; to neighbors and friends for their messages of cheer, and for their many kind acts then, and during her final illness; to the Rev. E. H. Bean, and to all who eased the burden of their bereavement with flowers, cards and other expressions of sympathy.
