FACE EXTORTION CHARGE—Two Summerside youths, Thomas Brewer, 17, and Donald Steele, 18, today will face preliminary hearing before Stipendiary Magistrate E. H. Strong on charges of extortion. Last week a Summerside merchant, Mr. Karel Delaney, received three notes warning that unless he placed $50 in bills behind a local stable on a given evening, his store would be robbed or burned out or he would be shot. When the first threatening note arrived Delaney thought he was the victim of a practical joke, but when two others arrived carrying more ominous threats he notified the police. Dressed in civilian clothing Police Chief Percy Kinch appeared behind the stable with Delaney on the night the merchant was to make payment. Chief Kinch collared the two boys, Brewer and Steele, when they appeared for the purpose of collecting.

O'Leary And Vicinity

The stork visited O'Leary last week and left a baby girl with Mr. and Mrs. George McDonald. Congratulations.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. William Ellis on the arrival of a big baby boy.

The many friends of Mrs. Alex. McDonald will be sorry to hear that she has been confined to her home through illness.

Mrs. Fulton Thomson returned on Friday from a visit with her mother and brothers, who live in River Heights, Nova Scotia.

We are sorry to learn that Mrs. Allan McIsaac, Hebron, received a severe shock during the recent electric storm. She was standing near the stove when she received the shock.

A meeting of the Community Club, O'Leary, was held in the Odd-fellows' Hall on Tuesday, April 21st. Mr. Sanford Phillips occupied the chair in the absence of the President, Mr. W. H. Dennis, who is at present in Charlottetown. It was decided to repair and straighten up the sidewalks as they are in a bad condition in some places. It was also decided to put on a banquet in the near future in honour of the President. Mr. Dennis has been president of the Club since its organization and has been a hard and faithful worker in its interests. It was also decided to hold the annual picnic of the Club on July 15th.

Those who had no radios to receive the bulletins sent from the Moose River Mine last week were very grateful to Mr. Keith Matheson, who hooked up his "sound system" to his radio and one could stay in his place of business and receive a report every half hour.

Mr. and Mrs. William Rogerson have moved to Hazelbrook, P. E. I. Mr. Rogerson was the butter-maker in O'Leary Dairying and Cold Storage during the past year. While here, although a short time, this couple made many friends and will be greatly missed. Mr. John Pippy of Hazelbrook will take Mr. Rogerson's place at the factory.

The Psalmist here states a rule for life, that rule is the hiding or laying up of the word of God in the heart. It is not merely a casual reading or studying of the word of God. It is rather a real and a real thoughtful study and reading of the word and making it a rule for life. The purpose of this rule for life is that we might not sin against God. Every sin is against God. The Christian's desire is to live a life in conformity with the will of God, and to live that life it is necessary that we hide God's word in our hearts. There may be some who are very much attracted by a beautiful christian life and who desire such a beautiful life. Resident in Alberta since 1912 and widely known in Calgary and Innisfail. Mrs. Catherine McKay, wife of J. K. McKay, died at her home 10432 149th Street, Edmonton, Alberta, Saturday, April 4.

The late Mrs. McKay was born at Spring Valley, Prince Edward Island, on July 23rd, 1860, and with her husband and family came to Alberta in October 1912, residing in Calgary until September 1917, when they moved to Innisfail, where they resided until coming to Edmonton in August 1934.

She leaves besides her husband two sons and four daughters, Art McKay, Mrs. G. T. Oyer, Miss Lois, of Edmonton; Lee McKay of Ponoka; Mrs. Charles Knight of Calgary and Mrs. John C. Duggan of Kensington, Prince Edward Island. Also surviving is one sister, Mrs. J. Duggan of Kensington.

The funeral services were conducted by the Hon. E. C. Manning on Tuesday, April 7th, at one o'clock, from the parlors of Howard & McBride, Edmonton.

There was widespread sorrow over the news of the death of Reta Stewart, beloved wife of Eric MacMurdo, which occurred at her home in Kelvin Grove, early Sunday evening, April 19th, at the age of 21 years. Possessed of a sweet and unassuming disposition, she will be sorely missed in the home and by a large circle of friends and her passing at such an early age is deeply regretted by the whole community and the sympathy of all goes out to the sadly bereaved husband and the sorrow parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Stewart, of Norboro, the sisters, George, Doris and Eliza and the brothers, Brenton, Chester and Layton.

The funeral, which was very largely attended was held at the home in Kelvin Grove on Tuesday afternoon, April 21st. Rev. B. C. Salter of the United Church, Kensington, conducted the services, assisted by Rev. Wm. O. Rhoad of the Presbyterian Church, who read the Scripture lesson, and by Rev. Mr. Williamson of Malpeque, who delivered the address.

Mr. Harold Laird sang very feelingly as a solo "Do not Jesus Care," and the hymns by the choir: "Forever With the Lord" and "Safe in the Arms of Jesus." The floral expressions of love and sympathy by their large number and great beauty were silent evidence of how greatly he was beloved. The pall bearers were Messrs. Isaac Walker, Arnold Walker, Leaman Casely, Walter Croken, Gerald Bonness and Earl Taylor. Interment was in the People's Cemetery, Kensington.

Mr. and Mrs. Orr, Kensington, were visitors to Summerside recently.

Miss Winnie Smith, Tryon, is visiting at the United Church parsonage, Kensington, the guest of Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Somers.

Canadian Maple Products in U.S.

Exports of Canadian maple sugar and maple syrup to the United States are necessary in order to fill the consumption demands of that country. The amount of Canadian maple sugar and maple syrup imported into the United States during the years 1930 to 1935 averaged 4,143,487 pounds annually. In 1930 Canada exported 7,354,819 pounds to the United States; 2,697,249 pounds in 1931; 3,409,578 pounds in 1932; 2,718,953 pounds in 1933; 4,292,427 pounds in 1934, and 4,387,896 pounds (preliminary estimate) in 1935.

The large imports of maple sugar and maple syrup in 1930 occurred while the revision of the United States tariff was under consideration and just before the increased duty provided in the Tariff Act of 1930 became effective. As a result of these large increases in 1930, the imports for the years 1931, 1932 and 1933 were considerably smaller, as there was an accumulation of stocks and it took several years to absorb the surplus supply. However, inventories are normal again, and imports for 1934 and 1935 increased to over 4,000,000 pounds for each of these years.

The Canadian imports do not affect the United States "breakfast table" except as they appear in blended syrups (15 per cent to 20 per cent maple blended with 80 to 85 per cent cane sugar). These blended syrups and maple syrup domestic maple syrup but rather make available to a large number of United States families a table syrup which they could not otherwise obtain. The Canadian maple sugar and maple syrup do not enter the retail trade in any appreciable extent. It is almost entirely a commercial product, sold at wholesale to manufacturers, of various flavouring purposes, to blenders, and to manufacturers of commercial flavourings.

Returned Missionary Preaches in Kensington

On Sunday the 26th, both morning and evening services in the United Church were conducted by Rev. George Murray, at present supplying in Malpeque United Church, but who until this past year was on duty as a missionary in Trinidad.

The morning service was of a missionary character. Led by the choir, with Mrs. Donald MacKenzie at the organ, appropriate hymns were sung. "Breathe on Us Now," "Jesus Shall Reign Where'er the Sun," and the children's hymn, "Once Again, Dear Lord, We Pray for the Children Far Away." The anthem by the choir was "Come, Ye Disconsolate," by Judson.

Mr. Murray spoke with great interest to his hearers on the scriptural lesson read from St. John 1:9. He said that in particular the 16th verse, "And other sheep I have, which are not of this fold: These also I must bring, and they shall hear my voice; and there shall be one fold, and one shepherd," with special emphasis on the last part, "There shall be one fold, and one shepherd." Christ had a great mission to perform. He said, "I am the door by which all men shall be saved." He came not only to bring salvation to His own, but to all men, regardless of race or colour. "If any man enter," the world was his parish, it was universal. Christ revealed Himself and His Father, God, to His own people, and told them to go tell others. He never intended the gospel to be limited.

All down through the ages there are instances of special revelations of Divine Truth, God speaking to man, and always God found a man through whom He could reveal Himself, and who would in turn reveal God to others.

God spoke to Abraham and singled him out for a special revelation and purpose. "I will bless thee," and thou shalt be a blessing."

We have another missionary story in the book of Jonah. "And the word of the Lord came to Jonah saying, arise, go . . . and preach . . . the preaching that I bid thee."

God is not willing that a single soul should perish, all should know Him, and all should know Him through God's use of human agency. This is why the Christian Church should share that knowledge with others; this is why the Christian Church should be a great missionary endeavor. "I am the door, if any man enter in he shall be saved. And other sheep I have, which are not of this fold . . . and there shall be one fold and one shepherd."

Mr. Murray spoke with courage and conviction, coming to present problems and our share in God's plan and purpose, and went on to give first hand knowledge of conditions in the special corner of the vineyard where he has laboured for fourteen years—in the little island of Trinidad and among the East Indians. Many people have asked why there are East Indians in British West India Islands. Africa the slaves were set at liberty, the owners of the cane plantations, most of their workers and they turned to India and imported cheap labourers, who came, bringing their religions with them. Thus they have some 140,000, or more than one third of the population, who were either Hindu or Moslems.

The natives of Trinidad are mostly negroes—who call themselves Christians—but their Christianity is of such a low order that the East Indian does not care to make the exchange, in other words, to abandon their own religion for something worse. But if they can be convinced that Christianity has really something better, something more soul satisfying, something more helpful for human living than Mohammed has to offer, then they are glad and eager to embrace it.

It is among these people, the alien, and almost equally benighted natives, that our missionaries are working. "Other sheep I have, them also I must bring." And the word of the Lord comes to us—"Go ye . . . and there shall be one fold and one shepherd."

Dr. and Mrs. Morton were the first missionaries to go, beginning work there in 1867, the year of Confederation. Dr. Coffin from this Island laboured there the greater part of his life, also Dr. Grant. Coming nearer home, Rev. W. I. Green from Clifton, P. E. I., gave his best years, only returning when the Church made for him necessary for him to withdraw.

There are 70 schools established on the island of Trinidad, with 25,000 pupils. A secondary school for girls and one for boys, a theological college and training schools.

The missionaries are affiliated with the Department of Education, and there is one hour out of every day—from nine till ten in the morning—given to religious training in all the schools. This is something for us to ponder over—the youth of Trinidad are receiving more religious training than the youth in our own land.

With the recall of several of our missionaries, due to lack of funds, the work is especially difficult, and this is where the training schools are proving of inestimable help. By degrees there is being raised up an excellent staff of native teachers to carry on the work.

Who's Who in The French Elections

Following are random sketches of some of the prominent figures in the French elections April 26 and May 3:

LEON BLUM—Leader of the Socialist party which has made known its readiness to participate in a leftist ministry after the elections. Leon Blum is one of the ablest debaters in contemporary French political life.

The Socialists have been waging a relentless campaign, and have engaged in numerous clashes with Rightist groups, particularly the Croix de Feu. In December last Blum was instrumental in forcing through the Chamber a bill providing for the dissolution of all military and semi-military political formations. Thus on Feb. 13 all Royalist organizations were dissolved, and the Cameliers du Feu had attacked and severely injured the Socialist leader.

Blum is an internationalist. In the present Rhineland crisis he has constantly urged consideration of the German proposals. He fiercely opposed the occupation of the Ruhr, and early in 1924, participated in the Le Cartel which led to the downfall of Poincare and Millerand.

Tall, angular, sharp-nosed, Blum is a writer and scholar. He has been an active Socialist since 1899, although not elected to the Chamber until 1919.

EDOUARD DALDIER—Leader of the Left wing of the Radical-Socialist party. Edouard Daldier became premier of France for the second time during the troubled days of February, 1934. His ministry resigned after a night of the severest rioting Paris has known since the days of the Commune in 1871. He is succeeded by Gaston Doumergue's National Union.

Known as a disciple of Edouard Herriot, Daldier recently has veered to the Left, and in January replaced his chief as president of the party. He has the reputation of being an aggressive man of action. A forceful, simple orator, he lacks the driving force of Herriot or the legalistic and literary finish of Joseph Paul-Boncour. He dominates an audience by his bulk and height, considerably above that of the average Frenchman.

Like Herriot, he began life as a school-teacher. Elected to the Chamber of Deputies at 35, he held numerous ministerial posts, and first held the premiership at the comparatively early age of 48.

In the present campaign he is a leading figure in the "Popular Front." In foreign affairs he is known to be rather indifferent to the League of Nations.

PIERRE-ETIENNE FLANDIN—Foreign Minister through the trying weeks following Germany's remilitarization of the Rhineland, Pierre Etienne Flandin campaigned as such as his duties at the Quai d'Orsay would allow.

Flandin is well known to Canadians as the leader of the French delegation to the Jacques Cartier celebration in 1934 when he was minister of public works in Gaston Doumergue's ministry. He became premier when Doumergue was overthrown in November of that year, his ministry lasting until June, 1935.

The Foreign Minister is a member of the Left Republican Party, which is actually a Conservative holding a place in the Right Centre of the political lineup. He was one of the first young men in France to take up aviation seriously. A licensed pilot in 1912 at the age of 23, he joined the French air force in 1914 and participated in the French operations at Ypres.

Flandin stands six feet, six inches. EDOUARD HERRIOT—The chunky, black-haired mayor of Lyons who as leader of the Right wing of the powerful Radical-Socialist party is in the thick of the current election campaign, is said to have a great ambition, which is not political. He formed the premier of France, it is said Edouard Herriot, aspires to a seat among the "forty immortals" in the French Academy.

He is famed as a scholar not less than as a statesman. Left a penniless orphan at 17, the ex-premier has always made a living by his pen. His book on Madame Camille, Napoleon's days is already considered a classic. His "Life of Beethoven" has won wide appreciation and his reverie on "The Norman Forest" has charmed many readers.

After ministerial experience during the last year of the Great War, Herriot rapidly became a noted French politician. He led the Radical-Socialist party in 1924 and after the elections formed the famous Left Cartel ministry, which governed France for 12 stormy months.

Financial problems, together with the bitter religious feeling aroused by the cartels' school policy in Alsace-Lorraine, brought the cabinet down to defeat on Good Friday, 1925. The following year he formed his second ministry, which lasted 48 hours, and later participated in Raymond Poincare's "save-the-franc" government.

The elections of 1932 again brought Herriot to the premiership. Again his ministry was short-lived. Insistence on payment of the war debt instigated to the United States brought the cabinet's overthrow in December of that year. In 1934, after the Stavisky scandal and the subsequent riots, he became minister of state in the National Union Government of Gaston Doumergue, a post he held in successive ministries until a few months ago.

LOUIS MARIN—One of the most colorful personalities of the French election campaign is Louis Marin, since 1925 leader of the Republican again to us—"Go ye . . . and tell."

Canada's Offer To Sportsmen

With the arrival of Spring Mr. Sportsman is looking over his equipment and has vague ideas as to where he will go for his first 1936 fishing or hunting expedition. "With this in mind, the Fish and Game Department of the Canadian National Railways has for the past six months been amassing considerable information concerning the better localities the sportsman can visit and in bringing up to date, particulars respecting the fishing and hunting regulations as apply in the various provinces of Canada," stated C. K. Howard, manager of the department. "This information is contained in the 1936 edition of the booklet 'Hunting, Fishing and Game Trips in Canada,' stated Mr. Howard, "which will be found as accurate and complete as any publication of this nature can be."

Canada, with 3,700,000 square miles of territory, including 800,000 square miles of forest and countless thousands of lakes, rivers and streams, offers to the lover of the out-of-doors every facility for enjoyment of his favorite recreation, whether it be hunting, fishing, canoeing or simply the joy of life amid unspoiled surroundings.

In addition to the regular water for game fishing from coast to coast, new fishing lakes have been discovered and opened to sportsmen; new waters have been planted with big game animals on the North American continent. "The Canadian National Railways give ready access to the greatest hunting territories on the continent," stated Mr. Howard. "Their lines traverse the 800,000 square miles of game forest; they cross the Rockies, the home of Bighorn Mountain sheep, Mountain goats, Grizzly bear and other big game animals, while other parts of the country are home of the outliner, or pack-train, carries the sportsman to various fine hunting areas."

A multitude of lakes and rivers call the canoeist. Such trips may be "back of beyond" where travelers are away from civilization for weeks, or it may be a "civilized" canoe trip, where each day ends at a small hotel on the bank of a stream. For such trips, blueprint charts and complete descriptive articles have been prepared.

"Guides and outfitters are located at every worthwhile fishing and hunting area from Atlantic to Pacific," stated Mr. Howard. "They are men who are especially qualified to handle sportsmen and their accommodation ranges from the log cabin and tent to the more luxurious lodge with all modern comforts and conveniences."

Former Miner Recalls Early Cariboo Rush

VICTORIA, B.C., April 27—Incidents in the days of British Columbia's Cariboo gold rush are recalled in a letter to Hon. George S. Parsons, provincial minister of mines.

Henry Boursin, New York, one of the first British Columbia prospectors, has asked the government for a copy of the department's annual report, and adds some of his first experiences.

The romance and adventure of the old Cariboo Trail is picturesquely related by the old miner in a manner all his own.

"I headed north in 1894," he says, "on the hurricane deck of a buxskin pinto cayuse. That spring cayuses like mine were being killed for their hides and the flesh canned for dog food. The horse, saddle and bridle cost me $10."

At Osoyoos, B. C., however, a customs officer assessed the horse at $100 for duty purposes. "I tried to convince him it was not that kind of a horse," he writes, "but he was adamant. So I gracefully yielded and to show there was no rancor I bought the first 24 successive miner's certificates to Barkerville, which at that time was said to be one end of the longest stage-road on the continent."
