A Good Suggestion.

The Charlottetown correspondent of the St. John Sun telegraphs:—

"As arrangements are being perfected for a cattle steamer to run regularly between your port and England, would it not be well for the parties having the matter in hand to place themselves in communication with leading men here that unity of action may be secured, and arrangements perfected for low rates of freight from all parts of the Lower Provinces to St. John for cattle and sheep over the Government railways and connecting lines and boats. A change of port could be arranged for occasionally, as this Island could supply hold cargoes of grain, etc., as well as cattle for the deck-load. Unfortunately, we have no Board of Trade to take up such matters officially.

Protection in the States.

The conviction in financial circles that a repeal of our protective tariff laws would have a disastrous effect upon securities, is seen by the recent estimate of the president of the New York chamber of commerce that the advance in government bonds, listed stocks and properties such as railways, telegraphs, steamboats, etc., made of materials protected by duties, on the morning after the Indiana and Ohio elections, which were considered to be in favor of protection, was not less than two hundred and fifty millions of dollars. Certain it is that bonds and stocks took an upward jump and continue active. The advocates of free trade for the United States are, for the most part, either mere theorists who have no personal concern in American industries, and speak of what they do not understand, or they are foreigners who are only too anxious to have us stop our own manufacturing and let them supply us. If the two political parties were—as they are not—squarely arrayed before the people on the question of protection or free trade, the freetraders would be beaten out of sight.—Railway Age.

Local Works.

A correspondent of the Argus writes:—"The Hon. William Campbell, the Commissioner of Public Works, and T. J. Bailey, the Government Engineer, were in Souris last week. Their mission was opening a new street and arranging about land damages. By this visit Mr. Campbell has saved the Government some hundreds of dollars. The Commissioner of Public Works appears to be a working man, and assiduously attends to the Public Works of the country. During the past summer the following new bridges were built in King's County: Munn's Bridge, cost $95; Cran's Bridge, $40; Bridge at R. E. McDonald's, $78; Bridge at Victoria Cross, $80; Bridge on Union Road, $60; Baldwin's Road new Bridge, $30; new Bridge on Peake's Road, $220. The new bridge on Cardigan River cost the handsome sum of $2,800. Repairing between Mount Stewart and St. Peter's cost $160. Now building in the First and Second Districts of King's County; new Bridge on Cow River, $150; new Bridge on Hay River, $150; new Bridge on Bay Fortune cost $50, and repairs now going on to Rollo Bay Wharf, $60. This is only a part of the whole number of bridges built in King's County, during the past summer. A new bridge on Grand River (West) Prince County this last summer, cost the Government $3,000.

The New Minister of Militia at the Club Cartier.

Says the Quebec Chronicle of Friday:

Notwithstanding the very inclement weather, and the short notice given, there was a large and influential meeting of the Club Cartier, and other friends of the Honorable Mr. Caron in the club rooms last evening. Amongst others were the President, Mr. T. C. Casgrain, Hon. Attorney-General Loranger, Hon. Solicitor-General Lynch, Hon. P. Garneau, Mr. Vallee, M. P., Mr. Tourangeau, Mr. Valin, Mr. Hamel and Hon. Mr. Sullivan, Premier of Prince Edward Island. A resolution was adopted amid loud cheering, congratulating the Hon. Mr. Caron on his being called to the Privy Council, to which the hon. gentleman replied in a happy speech. A resolution was also adopted, thanking Hon. Mr. Sullivan for his attendance, who replied, thanking the meeting for their kind reception of him. The hon. gentleman is a pleasing, and, to judge by his few remarks, an eloquent speaker. Hon. Messrs. Loranger, Lynch and others also addressed the meeting—all promising assistance in the event of a contest, but which the general impression seemed to be would not take place. On the departure of Mr. Sullivan, about nine o'clock, he was sent off with three rousing cheers. It was announced, about ten o'clock, that Hon. Mr. Caron would address the electors of the county of La Jeune Lorette on the 14th inst., and all friends were invited to be present, and the meeting adjourned with three hearty cheers for Hon. Mr. Caron.

The Rev. Dr. Pusey says that London is, in all probability, one of the largest heathen cities in the world, and that many of its inhabitants will be judged, he supposes by the same law as the heathen in China and Japan.

Greek prisoners now in the hands of the Turks are to be shot. The Sultan, it is said, is preparing for war with Greece.

A Citizen's Complaint.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

SIR,—For some days past our streets have been rendered rather uncomfortable and dangerous from the fact that two roughs, well fitted out with a horse and covered buggy, have been driving at a furious rate through our principal thoroughfares, passing and repassing private carriages at such a rate as to encourage spirited and even quiet horses to run away, endangering life and property. Now, this may be an exceedingly agreeable line for the low-lived of our race; but it is, I can assure you, anything but pleasant to the parties being annoyed. The writer would recommend the police authorities to be on the look out for this pair of rowdies, as they carry upon their countenance the stamp of the black leg.

Yours truly,
B. M.

Word-Hunting—I.

UMPIRE—GULLIVER.

Max Muller, speaking of the science of Etymology, says: "Mere guesses, however plausible, are completely discarded from the science of Etymology. We know words to be of the same origin which have not a single letter in common, and which differ in meaning as much as black and white. A derivation, even though it be true, is of no real value if it cannot be proved—a case which happens not unfrequently." Bearing these words in mind, these papers will endeavor to prove the derivation of the words presented. If the proof cannot be given—a case which happens not unfrequently—the suggestion must be taken for what it is worth.

With reference to the word Umpire, conjectural Etymology has been very busy. Accurate scholars have found that the old spelling nonpays (Piers Ploungiman's vision) left no doubt that this word came from the old French nonpair, uneven, odd. But now, there is much doubt concerning this derivation. A truly wretched guess is that given by Webster, viz.: imperium, command. In accepting nonpair as the origin of the word, we should be taking a simple adjective as representing a person, which is very objectionable if we can find a substantive. A substantive is soon found. The French homme, man and pair, equal, shew to us at once THE IMPARTIAL MAN, the great quality of impartiality being desired in a referee. Homme pair, or Homo-par (Latin), have some resemblance to Umpire.

Commentators have been found expounding on the most philosophical and recondite principles, parts of Goethe's "Faust," which the author himself pronounced to be not only without meaning but absolute nonsense. The same principle prompts some persons to deduce the name of Swift's hero "Gulliver" from the words Gull-i-ver, to deceive or gull in truth. To gull in truth, would be a very awkward expression, and there is a strong presumption that "Gulliver" possessed no such intentional meaning on the author's part. To the present day, in that part of the country where Swift spent many years, the name Gulliver is a well known name, and many families rejoice in its well known reputation.
