Take-Over Bids Feature Week's' Business Scene'

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

Take-over bids featured last week's business scene.

Shell Oil Company of Canada Ltd., Canadian arm of the vast international Royal Dutch-Shell group, bid $114,000,000 through a subsidiary for Canadian Oil Companies Ltd.

Rio Algom Mines Ltd., northern Ontario uranium producer and the Canadian arm of the British Rio Tinto group, said it expects to bid $45,000,000 plus 680,000 of its own shares for Atlas Steels Ltd. of Welland, Ont.

Triad Oil Co. Ltd., a member of the British Petroleum group of London, England, offered $7,991,000 for Devon-Palmer Oils Ltd.

British American Oil Co. Ltd. said it plans to offer to buy all 450,000 outstanding shares of Superior Propane Ltd. at $18 a share, or a total of $8,100,000.

Canadian Oil Companies, whose brand name is "White Rose" and whose Canadian ownership is a feature of its advertising, apparently was taken by surprise but says it is considering the Shell offer. Its responses, however, while polite, strike observers as chilly. And Power Corporation of Canada, which owns about 25 per cent of Canadian Oil, has questioned whether the offer, in the manner in which it was made, satisfied legal requirements.

The proposed Rio Algom-Atlas deal appeared to be agreeable to both companies in that they both announced it, but they emphasized that a number of factors have to be settled before there can be a definite agreement. Atlas figures that the offer is worth about $37 for each Atlas share.

The developments followed on a rash of other takeovers in recent months and, according to speculation, others are yet to come.

Meanwhile, the chartered banks twanged the "taut money" wire and sent a quiver through many businesses across the country. They decided to discontinue from Sept. 1 the system of overdrafts under which some individuals and firms have been allowed to temporarily draw upon more money than there is in their accounts.

USE OVERDRAFT

Some businesses did their short - term financing in this way. For instance, if a firm knows it wants $1,000 today, another $2,000 tomorrow, and perhaps $3,000 the day after, it may prefer to run an overdraft for those amounts as they are needed rather than borrowing and paying interest on $6,000 at the start. Overdrafts, of course, bear interest also.

In future, however, everyone will be expected to make definite loan arrangements if they are to get accommodation.

The present money scarcity probably had a bearing on the decision, partly because banks are watching all their available pennies, and perhaps partly because it seemed an opportune time for them to get rid of a system which, they say, caused an undue amount of work.

While money showed increasing signs of stringency at the banks, bond prices strengthened showing at least a temporary tendency towards lower general interest rates.

In another development, formation was announced of Canadian Helium Ltd. to develop production and sales of Saskatchewan's helium. The new company is owned by British American Oil Company, British Oxygen Company of London and L'Air Liquide of Paris.

Communists Reported Told To Infiltrate Several Groups

By RON LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP) — Calvin M. MacDonald, self - styled ex-double agent for the RCMP, says Canadian Communists have been instructed by the party to infiltrate the New Democratic Party, the Voice of Women and ban - the - bomb groups.

He told a press conference Saturday that Communist sleepers—secret members—have organized several NDP clubs in Ontario and have joined the VoW by the score.

The VoW is a relatively new organization opposed to nuclear testing, nuclear armaments, racial discrimination and anti-semitism. The NDP favors nuclear disarmament.

Mr. MacDonald, 39, who was expelled from the Ontario Communist party Friday, said he supports the aims of VoW and other peace organizations infiltrated by the Communists.

IS DANGER

"The danger is that the Communists will take control and twist their ideas to suit their own purposes," he said.

The VoW and the leadership of the Canadian campaign for nuclear disarmament have already been "used" by the Communists to spread the party's ideas, he said.

The party's objectives, he said, are first to keep nuclear weapons out of Canada, then press for withdrawal from NATO and NORAD, then seek the end of American investments in Canada and eventually Canadian neutrality in the cold war.

Meeting reporters for the second consecutive day at the home of a friend, Mr. MacDonald said he has no documentary evidence to show he reported regularly to RCMP contacts in the 10½ years he belonged to the Communist party.

He said he made photostats of secret Communist instructions to local organizers, gave the photostats to the RCMP and returned the original documents to Communist leaders. The RCMP has declined to comment in any way on the MacDonald case.

He said he received an average of $150 to $180 a month from the RCMP in recent years for his reports.

He said Communists supported most NDP candidates in the last federal election but opposed Douglas Fisher who was re-elected in Port Arthur.

"The Communist leaders really want to destroy the NDP, not help it."

In Toronto Mrs. Helen Tucker, president of the VoW, described charges that her organization was infiltrated by Communists as a lie.

Mrs. Tucker said of the VoW executive: "I know them right down to the last one and every one is highly respected."

She said External Affairs Minister Green had previously congratulated the VoW on what it had done for Canada.

WRITER'S ASSETS FROZEN

LONDON (AP) — A British court has frozen the assets of author Sir Giles Romilly, Sir Winston Churchill's nephew at his wife's request. Mrs. Romilly is seeking a divorce and custody of their three children. Her lawyer told the court she believes her husband is in New York with two of the children, Elizabeth, 12, and Edmund, 11. Justice Sir Seymour Karminski ordered the writer's assets frozen Monday until he obeys an earlier court order to return the children to Britain.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♥	Pass	2 ♥	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♠

Good bidding should get you to the best contract practically all the time. Each bid made sends a message which partner interprets and to which he replies in turn so that a maximum amount of information is exchanged.

Eventually, after the messages have shuttled back and forth for a while, a final contract is reached for better or worse.

For example, when South opens the bidding with a heart, he is saying he has an opening bid, though how strong or weak it is in high cards or distribution is not known at once.

When North responds two hearts, he sends a fairly exact message. He states he has from 6 to 9 points including heart support.

When South bids again, he shows values beyond a minimum opening bid; otherwise he would be expected to pass. The two spade bid furthermore proposes a different suit as trump and asks partner to choose between hearts and spades.

The raise to three spades guarantees four - card support and shows willingness to go along with South's advance towards game. The four spade bid closes the auction.

There is one serious drawback to such lengthy exchanges of information. While the partners are busy sending messages across the table for their own edification, the opponents can't help listening in. What they overhear frequently enables them to find the best line of defense.

West took advantage of the bidding in this deal to find the killing lead. He began with the ace and another heart, and there was then no way for declarer to prevent West from giving East a heart ruff to defeat the contract a trick.

West decided, reasonably enough, that North-South were bound to have at least eight hearts between them for the heart bid and raise. This meant that East would have at most two hearts and that a ruff was therefore possible either immediately or eventually.

If South had been less scientific during the bidding, and jumped directly to four hearts, he could not have been beaten.
