ROUND AND NUT COAL cheap for cash by W. W. CLARKE, Agent. Head Lord's Wharf, Charlottetown, Nov. 28.

H. W. Vinnicombe, No. 35 Water St., Charlottetown.

Resident Piano Tuner & Regulator.

HAS adopted the Dollar system of Tuning, six visits a year, at one dollar per visit. This system is much more economical and satisfactory than any other, as the cost is less, and the instrument is kept constantly in tune and repair.

A visit will be made to all parts of the Island once a year, or oftner if desired. Pianos tuned by Hamilton's system of even temperament.

Orders may be left at Mr. Fletcher's Music Store, or at Bremner Bros., Queen Street.

Jan. 6, 1879.

DENTISTRY.

THE cry of "Hard times" and "No money" is universal. Yet people lose their teeth, and in consequence their health. Again, recent improvements have cheapened the cost of Dental material;—considering which I have decided to reduce my prices, and for three months from the date of this I will make a set of teeth for Ten Dollars. Parts of sets correspondingly cheap. More than this—I will use good material and guarantee, in every case, a perfect fit.

ALEX. MUNN. Southport, Dec. 24, 1878—1m eod

Repeal of the French Tariff.

No little excitement is caused in the manufacturing cities of Great Britain by the news that the French Government has given notice of its intention to abrogate, at the expiration of a given time, all commercial treaties now existing between her and other nations. The most important of these treaties are those with England, Belgium, Germany and the United States. The exact purpose of this notification is not yet positively ascertained, but it is believed to be only a measure intended to procure better terms with Germany and Austria. Under existing treaties, both of these countries claim from France, under the "most favored nation" clause, all the privileges that she gives England, Belgium and the United States. Now Prince Bismarck proposes to make modifications which will seriously injure French interests, and against which France can guard only by abrogating all present treaties and negotiating new ones.

An Old Soldier.

Alphonse Demers lives in Pointe Lane, off St. Joseph street. He is a relic of the grande armee of Napoleon I. He was born in the town of St. Etienne, France, and is just verging upon 93 years of age. When 20 years of age he was conscripted into the French army, and served under Napoleon in nearly all his campaigns from that time. He served in the disastrous march to Russia, the evil effects of which he speaks with horror and dread to this very day. On his return he was drafted into the Imperial Guards, and did duty with them throughout the Prussian campaign, and finally finished his career as a soldier on the field of Waterloo. Being a strong supporter of Napoleon, he was subsequently arrested, but, effecting his escape, fled to Canada, where he has since resided. His body is one mass of scars, honorably gained—a sword cut on the head at the battle of Eylau, the loss of the left arm at Waterloo, an eye at Leipsic, the left thumb at Friedland and innumerable other cuts. In fact, it is truly surprising how the aged man is so hearty to-day. While narrating his exploits, his only eye glistened and brightened with the enthusiasm and ardor of his youthful days. The Legion of Honor was pinned on his breast by the Emperor himself, immediately after the battle of Dresden. He was subsequently offered a commission in a line corps, but he preferred remaining in the Imperial Guards. The old man is well worth a visit by anyone wishing to see such a grand old relic of the former days of the French Napoleonic grandeur.—Montreal Post.

Canadians Honored.

There are at present ten Canadian knights and two baronets. Sir John A. Macdonald was created a K. C. B. in 1867 for his services on behalf of confederation. Sir Alexander T. Galt was made a Knight Commander of the Order of St. Michael and St. George for similar services in 1869, though he had expressed himself in favor of the independence of Canada. Sir John William Buell Richards, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the Dominion, was knighted in 1877 with Sir A. A. Dorion, Chief Justice of Quebec. Sir Francis Hincks was knighted many years ago, when, after a stormy political career in Canada, he was appointed to a colonial governorship in the West Indies, which he abandoned on his return here in 1868. Sir Edward Kenyon, of Halifax, and Sir Narcisse Beliveau, of Quebec, were knighted in 1877. Sir Albert J. Smith was knighted for his services as Minister of Marine and Fisheries during the Halifax Commission. Sir William Young, Chief Justice of Nova Scotia, was knighted in 1869, and Sir Hugh Allan in 1869. Sir John Rose Bart., of the London banking firm of Morton, Rose & Co., was knighted for his confederation and other services to Canada, just before leaving this country, and has since been made a baronet. Sir James L. Robinson, Bart., is the son of a former chief justice of Upper Canada, who was created a baronet for his services to the Crown. The present Sir James is now a clerk at a small salary in the law courts over which his father used to preside. Hugh Miller, in one of his works, tells of a Scotch baronetcy which was held by a hod-carrier, to whom the masons were wont to cry, "Sir So-and-So, some more mortar!" In Osgoode Hall the lawyers call on Sir James Lukin Robinson, Bart., to register this or make another copy of that with the utmost disregard for his dignity. Besides these there are a number of C. B's and C. M. G's. Dr. Tupper, M. Langevin, Mr. Tilley, Mr. McDougall and others are Commanders of the Bath, while many prominent Government officials have been admitted into the Commandery of St. Michael and St. George.

"So you were a slave and a coloured man," said an Englishman to a darkey as he looked at his black face and wondered what gave him such a complexion. "Yes, massa, I was a slave, but I se not a coloured man," was the reply. "Not coloured?" and there was surprise in his tones. "No massa, not coloured: I was born' so."

"Two months with but a single stew, two spoons that dip as one," as the young man remarked to his dearly beloved after giving his economical order of "one stew, two spoons."

The Dukedom of Bedford.

(From the New York World.)

There is a rumor in London that the title and estates of the Dukedom of Bedford will be claimed by a person professing to be the eldest son, by a private marriage, of the eighth Duke, who died, ostensibly unmarried, in May, 1872, and was then succeeded by his cousin, Francis Charles Hastings Russell, eldest son of Lord George William Russell and grandson of John, sixth Duke Bedford. The present Duke is an older brother of Lord Arthur Russell, M. P., well-known in this country, and of Lord Odo Russell, now British Ambassador at Berlin. Thirty years ago he married the eldest daughter of the fifth Earl of Delaware, and by her has four children, the oldest of whom, George William, called by courtesy the Marquis of Tavistock, was married only the other day. A successful law suit brought by a new claimant would make a tremendous tempest in the social teapot of London aristocratic life, for the fortune of the ducal house of Bedford is one of the largest held in the Peerage. Much of it came into the family through the plundering of the church in the sixteenth century, when John Russell, of Berwick, in Dorsetshire, got himself into the royal favor under Henry VII., and contrived to keep in that wholesome sunshine through the reigns of Henry VIII., Edward VI., and Queen Mary, being created Earl of Bedford by Edward VI., and made a Knight of the Garter by Mary. The Earldom became a dukedom under William III. in 1694. The family own an immense estate in the metropolis, which has increased in value greatly during the last half century.

General Grant in Ireland.

The Herald's Londonderry special reports that Gen. Grant left Dublin quietly on the 6th inst. At Dunlax, Armagh, Strahane and other stations large crowds assembled. The people cheered, putting their hands into the cars, and shaking hands whenever possible. The expression of ill-feeling Cork had aroused the Protestant sentiments of Ulster in his favor. At Derry, an immense crowd assembled. The Mayor welcomed Gen. Grant cordially, and he left the station amid great cheering, mingled with groans from the Nationalists who called out "Why didn't you receive O'Connor Power." The great majority of the crowd cheered madly, and followed Grant's carriage to the hotel. The ships in the harbor were decorated, and the town en fete. A remarkably cold driving rain set in just at Gen. Grant drove in state to the ancient town hall. The crowd was so dense near the hall that progress was difficult. At the entrance the Mayor and Council, in their robes of office, received the ex-President. An address was read extolling the military and civil career of Gen. Grant, which was pronounced second in honor only to that of Washington. General Grant then signed the roll, thus making himself an Ulster Irishman. He said no incident of his trip was more pleasant than accepting citizenship at the hands of the representatives of this ancient and honored city, with whose history the people of America were so familiar. He regretted his stay in Ireland would be so brief; he had originally intended embarking from Queenstown direct for the United States, in which case he would have remained a much longer time on the snug little Island, but having resolved to visit India he was compelled to make his stay short. He could not return home without seeing Ireland and the people in whose welfare the people of the United States took so deep an interest.

A stout lady in Boston, during a sermon, exhibited symptoms of fainting, when a young physician, not much more than half her weight, gallantly put his arms about her waist and dragged her into the aisle, but was unable to take her further. One of the deacons came to the rescue, and seizing the lady by the pedal extremities, the two carried her bodily out into the vestibule, when she speedily "came to," and indignantly demanded of her kind friends what she had done that she should be so forcibly removed, the truth being that she was only indulging in a good nap.
