

Hong Kong Girl To Assist At P. E. I. Hospital

Yesterday Miss Grace Lai arrived in Charlottetown to work for the summer. A summer student from Macdonald College, Quebec, where she was a third year student in Home Economics, she will be assisting Miss Lucille Turnbull, head dietitian at the Prince Edward Island Hospital.

Twenty years old, Miss Lai spoke of her home in Hong Kong and of her family and plans for the future. Devoted during the war the British Colony is still being rebuilt. After she graduates and internes for a year maybe she'll go back to her people and help them rebuild and plan for peace and happiness.

Miss Lai spoke of the terribly crowded conditions and explained that in the Hong Kong Colony, including a part of the mainland known as Kowloon, there are over 2 million people living in an area of some 394 square miles, Hong Kong, an island has an area of only 32 square miles.

She expressed her early interest in nutrition and diet which prompted her to come to Canada to study. She has a brother who will be graduating this year from McGill University with a B.Sc. degree. A sister is attending Queen's University at Kingston, Ontario.

This is Miss Lai's first trip here but she has heard a great deal about "Spud Island" from the many Prince Edward Island students attending the College.

Asked if it was usual for Chinese parents to allow their children to choose where they would go to school she replied, "Not usually but everything is changing to-day, even in China."

Charges Delay in Vital Information

CHICAGO (AP)—An atomic scientist-author charged Monday that the U. S. government secrecy in the U. S. caused "a year of paralysis" in civil defence preparations to meet the new peril of radioactive dust.

Dr. Ralph E. Lapp, writing in the Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists, said the Atomic Energy Commission waited nearly a year after the March 1, 1954, Bikini bomb test before revealing "some facts" about its radioactive fallout to the American people.

Declaring the knowledge could have been "life and death importance" had nuclear war broken out, Lapp said: "The federal government has given no consistent nor adequate reason for its failure to inform its people about the dangers of fallout."

He called for a "massive review" of America's atomic secrecy policy to civil defence planners will have more than "half-facts or unofficial information" upon which to build plans.

New Organist Appointed For Trinity United Church

Mr. Donald Forbes, organist and choir director of St. John's United Church, Halifax, has been accepted to fill the same position at Trinity United Church here starting August first. His application was accepted following the resignation of the present organist, Mr. George Thompson, who leaves at the end of June for his home in England.

Mr. Forbes is about 30 years of age and is unmarried. He studied music at Acadia University and the Toronto Conservatory of Music and for an number of years has been a pupil of Mr. Maitland Farmer, organist at All Saints Cathedral, Halifax. His father, the Rev. J. E. Forbes, is a minister of the United Church at Baddeck, N.S.

As a choir leader and director of choral groups, Mr. Forbes has distinguished himself at a number of musical festivals. He is keenly interested in the musical education of boys and girls and is anxiously looking forward to playing a prominent part in the musical life, not only of Trinity but of Charlottetown as a whole. He was sought by the music committee of Trinity Church five years ago, but declined the invitation owing to the fact that he was anxious to further his musical studies in Halifax at that time.

Sorority Model Summer Fashions at "Y" Last Night

Fashions for summer—frowny, swinging, full-skirted evening dresses to sleek slim swim suits were modelled against a multi-colored background in an informal setting at the Y.M.C.A. at two showings last night.

Graduation dresses to match the mood of that important day were shown—one exquisite gown was of white dotted net over tulle with a Peter Pan collar, and ribbon buttons. Another dress of white floral tulle with a scooped neckline, featuring the new low waistline, would thrill any college girl on graduation day. Worn with both these dresses were white low-cut pumps and white gloves.

Still popular after many summers are separate, dirndl skirts with accompanying blouses—which are ideal for the working girl. One interesting color combination was tangerine and black and still another black, red and yellow.

Crisp and fresh for warm days to come was a cotton dress of romance blue with white polka dots. Its matching bolero had a detachable navy bow giving it added versatility. Completing this costume was a white Panama cloche, and white purse, gloves and shoes.

Three bridal gowns, which were of much interest to brides-to-be, were modelled, and a trend of the times in these gowns were the matching boleros which, when removed, revealed perfect dancing dresses. One was of white net over tulle with a lace bodice, full skirt and a lace waist insert down the front, with this was worn a white sequined coronet with a finger-tip veil of tulle.

An outstanding success was an afternoon ensemble consisting of a turquoise linen duster and white paper tulle dress with turquoise polka dots. It was of princess line and the popular Empire waist line. The accompanying duster was lined with material similar to the dress. The model chose to wear with this ensemble a white milan "coolie hat" trimmed with black ribbon and very effective black patent leather shoes and bag.

Practical and effective was a box style linen suit with tuxedo front in one of this season's favorite colors—beige, with a cocoa brown trim. For variety an extra skirt of cocoa brown added to the popularity of this suit. This model selected a water-repellent beige linen clip-on hat to complete her costume.

For action on the golf course two linen sports dresses, one yellow and one mauve, were modelled.

For informal wear a red Robert Aronson knit shown with a white full-fashioned pullover was much appreciated. Shoes worn with the knit featured the stylish "Louis" heel.

Surprisingly charming was an early-evening gown of black and white linen. This gown displayed a very effective combination of black halter top and matching black linen bolero.

Again the "coolie hat" was in evidence, this one of avocado green with a novel antenna top. This complemented a tulle print on cream background afternoon dress with a striking V-neckline and gored skirt.

What every fashion conscious lady dreams of—a dress she can wear anywhere, was certainly applicable to an afternoon gown of steel blue cotton and nylon, with a portrait neckline. Slender at the hips it flared to a full skirt over crinoline, and was enhanced by navy blue mesh pumps.

For picnics and other summer activities tailored Blackwatch slacks were modelled with a tailored long-sleeved white blouse and tan loafers.

Teen-age styles for "fun in the sun" were black shorts with white trim and a jersey top—white with black vertical stripes, and also white gabardine shorts with turned up cuffs worn with a black and white print jersey sweater.

The one-piece bathing suit is fashion's favorite this summer as decreed by the Phiat models last night. Simplicity was the keynote, especially in a turquoise swim suit with an adjustable diagonal shoulder strap with a zipper in back. Another comfortable swim suit was of black and black and white checked piping. It had removable shoulder straps to allow an even sun tan. A bathing suit of aqua plastic faille with white piping was enthusiastically received.

Among the attractive all-weather coats was shown one of mottled green with its giant turn back cuffs, had two large pockets and two buttoned side belts.

Fetching formals were the finale of this summer fashion show. One model was attired in a light blue ballerina-length strapless gown of net over tulle with matching frills and bolero. She wore white brocade dancing slippers. A waltz-length creation of light blue, nylon tulle with pink flowers appeared with an over-shoulder strap and a full skirt over layers of crinoline. Pastel pink slippers were a fitting footnote.

Commentator for this summer fashion show was Mrs. Ralph Manning and the commentary was composed by the Misses Doris for the time and place of the conference. July is believed the most likely month. The West favors Lugano, Lausanne or Geneva, all in British officialdom, meanwhile, said Molotov has agreed to meet Dulles, Pinay and British Foreign Secretary Macmillan in Vienna Saturday to sign the long-delayed Austrian treaty. This would bring the withdrawal of Russian and Allied troops from Austria in return for a commitment for that little nation to stay out of military alliances.

West To Invite

The addition of West Germany's 50,000,000 people to the Atlantic alliance marked a major defeat for Soviet foreign policy. The Russians have alternatively threatened and coaxed the Germans to stay out of an armed alliance with the West.

As the newest member of NATO, West Germany will field an armed force of 500,000 men within four years.

Mechanical Masterminds For Election

By ARCH MacKENZIE Canadian Press Staff Writer LONDON (CP)—Two mechanical masterminds moved in on the British election campaign Monday.

The Deuce, a brain known as "Logabax" and "the Deuce," they are the first to be used in computing British election results and trying to forecast the outcome after the close of polls May 26.

The Deuce, 4½ feet high and 14 feet long housed by an operator at a desk in front of the sloping control board, will work for the BBC. It gets its name from the fact it "digital electronic universal computing engine."

The brain, which was unveiled last February, will run out progressive vote totals and figures of seats won and will also attempt to calculate the swing or trend toward any particular party.

MAKE CONTEMPORARIONS last trends will be fed into the brain beforehand and it will try to make comparisons which will indicate the outcome of this election.

Logabax—equivalent of 198 adding and calculating machines—is getting a trial run from the Conservative party which rented it for the election. It will run through the results of borough elections at the end of the month and provide information which might help the party detect any trends to be applied to the forthcoming national voting.

Professor Maurice Kendall of the London school of economics, appointed Deuce's consultant, explained Monday how it will work. "The machine will be at its establishment at Stafford, in the Midlands. We in London will be hooked by direct line. When we want a summary, I'll just push a button."

Henry Morgan Co. Marks 110th Anniversary

MONTREAL (CP)—Henry Morgan and Company Limited, which claims to be Canada's first and oldest department store, is celebrating its 110th anniversary.

Founded by Henry Morgan of Peebles, Scotland, a 25-year-old immigrant, the firm started as a small drygoods shop on Notre Dame street and the main branch on St. Catherine street now has become a Montreal landmark.

It was considered a daring move when in 1881 Morgan moved from Notre Dame, in the old part of Montreal, to St. Catherine, at that time "out of the city." The practice of inviting the trade to come to the store since has been adopted by many big selling firms.

Morgan's—still a family-owned store—had its beginning in 1845 when the first Henry Morgan came here from Scotland, finding a town of 45,000 population.

START DISPLAY WINDOWS

Citizens were almost wholly dependent on imported goods, apart from meat, vegetables, furs and a few other Canadian commodities. The firm now has branches in Ottawa and Toronto as well as several here.

In the early days, advertising was limited to cautious notices announcing the arrival of a new shipment of goods. Prospective purchasers asked for items. The storekeeper then would vanish in to the storeroom and return with samples.

Store windows were whitewashed to prevent rival storekeepers from seeing what was available. As an experiment, one of the Morgans removed the whitewash from a store window to give passersby a view.

The effect was startling in attracting customers—and the store owners it started the practice of display windows.
