Long-Standing

Blood Diseases are cured by the persevering use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

This medicine is an Alterative, and causes a radical change in the system. The process, in some cases, may not be quite so rapid as in others; but, with persistence, the result is certain. Read these testimonials:—

"For two years I suffered from a severe pain in my right side, and had other troubles caused by a torpid liver and dyspepsia. After giving several medicines a fair trial without a cure, I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I was greatly benefited by the first bottle, and after taking five bottles I was completely cured."—John W. Benson, 70 Lawrence St., Lowell, Mass.

Last May a large carbuncle broke out on my arm. The usual remedies had no effect and I was confined to my bed for eight weeks. A friend induced me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Less than three bottles healed the sore. In all my experience with medicine, I never saw more Wonderful Results.

Another marked effect of the use of this medicine was the strengthening of my sight."—Mrs. Carrie Adams, Holly Springs, Texas.

"I had a dry scaly humor for years, and suffered terribly; and, as my brother and sister were similarly afflicted, I presume the malady is hereditary. Last winter, Dr. Tyson, of Ferrandina, Fla., recommended me to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and continue it for a year. For five months I took it daily. I have not had a blemish upon my body for the last three months."—T. E. Wiley, 143 Chambers St., New York City.

"Last fall and winter I was troubled with a dull, heavy pain in my side. I did not notice it much at first, but it gradually grew worse until it became almost unbearable. During the latter part of this time, disorders of the stomach and liver increased my troubles. I began taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and, after faithfully continuing the use of this medicine for some months, the pain disappeared and I was completely cured."—Mrs. Augusta A. Furbush, Haverhill, Mass.

Varia.

"X Y" asks me on what occasion Gen. Havelock addressed his troops, as stated on his statue in Trafalgar Square?

"Soldiers! Your labors, your privations, your sufferings and your valor will not be forgotten by a grateful country."

They were the last words that came from the pen of Sir Henry Havelock the day after the battle of Bithoor, and were addressed to his little army, which was compelled to move back to Cawnpore. There is a very good life of Havelock, by Marshman (I do not know the publisher), where my correspondent will find fuller particulars.

I do not know why, but Havelock's name suggests to me another great soldier—Gordon. Have any of your readers seen a notice of his death which appeared at the time in the London Standard? I think it is worth while making a note of:

IN MEMORIAM.
"Charles George Gordon. Fell at Khartoum, 26th January, 1885. He trusted in God and his country. God took him, his country—had a Gladstone Government—and deserted him."

"Athlete" asks for the origin of the name "dumbbell," by which, I suppose, he means the pair of well-known heavy iron weights, used for muscular exercises. I believe that they take their name by analogy, from a machine consisting of a heavy iron fly-wheel, with a rope passed through and round a spindle, which projects from one side, the apparatus being secured by stanchions to the ceiling of a room, and set in motion like a church-bell, till it acquires sufficient impetus to carry the gymnast up and down, and so bring the muscles of the arms into play, though, I should imagine, in a less wholesome and more dangerous manner than that now in use by means of its iron successors. It is said that a specimen of the old-fashioned apparatus still exists in New College, Oxford, although long removed from its original position.

I have in this column given specimens of Macaronic poems and other literary frivolities, but I do not think I have given any specimens of equivocal verses. They generally have reference to politics, and are designed to convey two very different meanings, according to the manner or the order in which they are read. Thus the following lines (a relic of the French revolutionary period), if read as they stand, must be admired for their loyalty, but if perused in the order of the figures prefixed, a very different result is obtained:

- 1 I love my country—but the king
- 3 Above all men his praise I sing;
- 2 Destruction to his odious reign
- 4 That plague of princes—Thomas Paine;
- 5 The royal banners are displayed
- 7 And may success the standard aid;
- 6 Defeat and ruin seize the cause
- 8 Of France, her liberty and laws.

One more specimen. At the beginning of the Civil war in the United States the following curious production appeared in one of the newspapers, professedly arranged to suit all parties. The first column is the secession, the second the abolition platform; read across it is the Democratic platform, thus also representing the whole union.

THE PLATFORM.

- | | |
|--------------------|----------------------|
| Hurrah for | The old union |
| Secession | Is a curse |
| The Confederacy | Is leagued with hell |
| We love | Free speech |
| The rebellion | Is treason |
| We glory in | A free press |
| Separation | Won't be tolerated |
| We fight not for | The negro's freedom |
| Reconstruction | Must be obtained |
| We must succeed | At every hazard |
| The Union | We love |
| We love not | The negro |
| We never said | Let the Union slide |
| We want | The Union as it was |
| We cherish | The old flag |
| The stars and bars | Is a flaunting lie |
| We venerate | The habeas corpus |
| Southern civility | Is hateful |
| Death to | Jeff Davis |
| Abe Lincoln | Isn't the Government |
| Down with | Mob law! |
| Law and order | Shall triumph. |

It is the custom now-a-days for the newspaper correspondent, when reporting the speeches at a banquet or public dinner to set forth the Bill of fare. I think that the last which appeared in our columns was in the report of the Firemen's Dinner. Perhaps some of your readers would care to see a Bill of fare at a dinner of our forefathers 263 years ago:

I may add that the large baking pear is still called warden in many counties in England.

One of the strangest contrivances for religious purposes ever invented by any people is the prayer-wheel of Tibet. Thomas Manning, the only Englishman that ever saw Lhassa, who visited Tibet at the commencement of the present century, describes these wheels, which he calls "whirligigs," as cylinders turning freely on an axis, with sacred sentences and prayers inside. Turning the whirligig is equivalent to reciting the sentence, and is a substitute for it. The hand-wheel is carried always by pious persons, and is constantly turned, while another kind is fixed on an axis in the ground, around which it revolves. In the avenues of the temples, he says, there are hundreds of them, which good souls twist one after another as they pass along. Others contain rolls of printed prayers and are fixed in rows on the walls of temples, near villages, and in streams to be turned by water-power. They are said to have been in use for more than 1000 years. Mr. Andrew Wilson says that the Tibetans are the most pre-eminently praying people on the face of the earth. "They have praying stones, praying pyramids, praying flags flying over every house, praying wheels, praying mills, and the universal prayer, 'Ommani padme hum,' is never out of their mouths." A German writer on Lamaism says of this sentence, which literally means "O God! the jewel in the lotus," that these six syllables are, of all the prayers of earth, that which is most frequently repeated, written, printed, and conveniently offered up by mechanical means. They constitute the only prayer which the common Mongols and Tibetans know; they are the first words which the stammering child learns, and are the last sighs of the dying. The traveller murmurs them upon his journey, the herdsman with his flock, the wife in her daily work, the monk in all stages of contemplation—that is to say, of nihilism—and they are the cries of conflict and of triumph. One meets with them everywhere, wherever the Lama Church has established itself, on flags, rocks, trees, walls, monuments, utensils, strips of paper, human skulls, skeletons, &c. They are, according to the meaning of the believer, the essence of all religion, of all wisdom and revelation; they are the way of salvation, and the entrance to holiness.

Liquor Licenses in Boston.

The Boston Police Commissioners have announced the new rate of fees for liquor licenses in that city which will go into effect May 1st. The figures show a large increase from last year. The fees for innholders to sell intoxicating liquors to be sold on the premises was $1,000 and is now $1,500. To the second class of innholders the fee was formerly $600 and is now $1,200. To common victualers, formerly $400, now $1,000. In the second and third class licenses to sell malt liquors, cider, and light wines the fee has been raised from $200 to $500. To those holding fourth class licenses to sell all kinds of liquors not to be drunk on the premises the increase is as follows: Grocers, $50 to $300; wholesale dealers, $50 to $300; second class of wholesale dealers, $250 to $1,000. The increase in the fees of fourth class licenses issued to distillers is from $400 to $1,000; The fifth class has been reduced so as to include bottlers and brewers only, the bottlers' fees being increased from $150 to $500, and that of the brewers from $400 to $1,000.

Personal.

Only one newspaper, a liberal journal, welcomed the return of Empress Frederick to Germany.

A printer's boy of Vienna has been sentenced to six months' imprisonment at hard labor for repeating stories about the late Crown Prince Rudolph.

Gladstone and Chamberlain had an animated conversation in the House of Commons one day last week. In view of their recent strained relations, the fact of their engaging in friendly talk elicited much comment.

It is reported that the Czar, scandalized by the irregular life of his brother, has ordered the Grand Duke Vladimir to resign the command of the guards. It is rumored the minister of war and minister of justice will resign.

Crown Prince Rudolph's debts amount to $2,000,000, although he had an income of $70,000 a year, and the palaces and country places cost him nothing. Where the money went to nobody knows, while a great deal of the prince's jewelry, of which he had a very large and valuable collection, has disappeared.

Mrs. Jones hasn't a grey hair in her head and is over 50. She looks as young as her daughter. The secret of it is, that she uses only Hall's Hair Renewer.
