ITS INFLUENCE.—Many years ago, when the Morgan excitement was raging, all secret societies felt the effect of it. It required considerable courage to belong to fraternal organizations at that time. The public, ignorant of the true purposes of such societies, came to the conclusion, with a somewhat surprising unanimity, that they were all a bad lot and that their members should be ostracised. But, speaking for our own Order, it has gone steadily forward, breasting what storms that fell upon it, and conquering. To-day the Opposition to it is confined to cranks and the ignorant. Its work has been so grand, so humane, fraternal, so helpful, that the intelligent, thoughtful part of the world has been charmed by it. Almost within the recollection of every member of the Order the lodge was a bone of contention in nearly every family whose head was an Oddfellow. The wife was against the lodge. She could not see its utility, and regarded it with some degree of jealousy, because it seemed to share with her the affections and devotions of the husband.
She was unable to understand that her husband, if he was an intelligent Oddfellow, was such quite as much for her sake and the sake of their children as his own.
But how time has changed this feeling.
Any other result than that our women should become admirers of Oddfellowship was not possible. The work of the Order could not fail to touch the heart of woman.
As the years went by, she saw the Order coming, like an angel of mercy, into the homes of affliction, into the chamber of death, and she saw it lifting great burdens from sorrowing hearts. She saw it doing a work which she was peculiarly fitted by her Creator to do, and which she always has done, but a work which Oddfellowship —though men are not as richly endowed for the work as women are—did better than she could do it, because of systematic organization. She became the friend of Oddfellowship, and now the Oddfellow's wife is a co-worker with her husband in the glorious mission of Oddfellowship. We are thankful that the Order is good enough and grand enough to command the love and admiration of the women of the Order.

The first I. O. O. F. Encampment was organized June 1, 1827. There are now 2,100.

California has 27,475 Oddfellows, with an annual revenue of nearly $250,000.

A case of absent-mindedness quite recently caused a Noble Grand to "declare the Warden opened in the third degree."

When some "brothers" cannot have their own way in the lodge they go into the sulks and stay away from the meetings. This is bad policy.

Genevieve Lodge, Rochester, N. Y., distributed an aggregate of 382 pounds of turkeys to the thirty-six widows of that lodge on Christmas.

Carry the meaning of the Three Links in your conduct, and it will not make any difference if you don't wear the Three Links on your vest.

Since 1861 no lodge in New Hampshire has given up its charter or given up its organization, and none is likely to for many years to come.

A lodge in Philadelphia recently presented seventeen of its members with veteran jewels for continuous membership of over 25 years.

Albany, N. Y., has a venerable member in the person of Bro. Charles Amherst, who has been the treasurer of German Colonial Lodge for 43 years.

The quality of a lodge is not to be judged by the number on its rolls, but rather by the character of its work and the calibre of those that compose it.

In Philadelphia every lodge is in working order that has ever been chartered since the introduction of the Order, and there are now in that city 150 lodges and 24,184 members.

Temperance is urged upon all Oddfellows as a first duty. A contemporary points out that temperance "is not simply abstencence from strong drink, but temperance in thought, words and actions. By temperance we do not only circumscribe our desire for intoxicants, or abstain from putting the bottle to our brother's lips, but we are taught to be temperate in words and to govern our tongues. Words passionately or intemperately spoken may do us, as well as our brothers, more injury, may cause more grief and sorrow, and bring more reproach on the Order than intoxication."

The true object of Oddfellowship is exemplified in the fact that Columbus Lodge, of Columbus, Ohio, recently supplied eight widows, whose husbands were members of the lodge in their lifetime, with six tons of coal to each for their winter's supply, thus practically exemplifying one of the cardinal principles of Oddfellowship, which is to relieve the distresses of those who are in any way connected with the Fraternity. This is a "habit" No. 9 has maintained for a series of years, with few intermissions.—

Obituary.

At Fort Augustus, on the 9th inst, the funeral of the late John A. McDonald, Esq., of Johnson's River, took place. His Lordship Bishop Macdonald, assisted by the Rev. J. J. Macdonald, Kinkora, celebrated the High Mass. After mass the Rev. Allan Macdonald spoke of the deceased in the following terms:—

"I would prefer that the remains of the deceased should be borne to their last resting place, accompanied by your fervent prayers for the repose of his soul. I claim, however, on this occasion, the privilege of uttering one word in praise of 'Big John Allan.' 'Big' he truly was, in mind and heart, and body. I have always regarded him as a noble specimen of manhood. He was one of nature's noblemen. Endowed with more than ordinary intelligence, and possessing a fair education, considering the difficulties of acquiring it in his day, his word was always respected, and his counsel sought after by not a few. He had a big heart and was generous to a fault. The cry of want or distress was never made to him unheeded. Through kindness of heart to relieve others, he has been known to have several times begged himself. And when thus his large property had well nigh passed from his hands, he himself was never heard to utter a complaint. But there are other traits in his character which are, perhaps, more worthy of mention. His love of God was pure and disinterested, and after God he loved his Church, the spouse of Christ. He manifested this virtue in very many ways, but especially in his generosity. He was always ready with money or labor to assist in any work about the church, or in anything that would tend to promote the interests of religion.
His many good works, his self-sacrificing spirit, his readiness to answer any call made on him may, indeed, fade from the memory of man, but I know they will not be forgotten by Him who will reward even a cup of water given in His name. Taking into consideration his simple, child-like faith, with his many other sterling qualities of mind and heart, I would not think him unworthy to join the royal band which surrounded so many obstacles, that they might see and adore the child Jesus in his crib at Bethlehem. He has already seen Him. He has heard Him speak, and the sweet music of that voice shall continue to be his joy for ever. May his soul rest in peace.

We announce in this week's issue the death of Catherine Maclean, widow of Roderic Macleod, Johnstone Road, Darlington, on the 16th ult., in the 71st year of her age. She with her husband came to this Island from Invernesshire, Scotland, in the year 1840. She was left a widow in the year 1840, and she had three children and mourn to a loss of a loving mother, but who believe that their loss is the greatest gain, and prize her example and advice as an inheritance of great value. Through her long life she ever manifested a deep interest in the advancement of the Master's Kingdom.

News Notes.

Money was plentiful in London last week, and the stock market was firm. Discount rates were 3½ for six months and 3 for short periods.

A Seattle, Wash., despatch says that over twenty opium refineries are in full blast between there and Victoria, B. C., as well as other smaller establishments. Smuggling is constantly going on, and the despatch says wealthy men are backing the smugglers.

France was caught in November by untimely cold. A snowstorm descended before the beet root harvest was completed, and was followed by intense cold, during which the mercury fell almost to zero of Fahrenheit. Seeding of fall wheat had not been finished in the north of France. In Paris skating was excellent early in December, and the garrison at Versailles gave a fete on one of the ponds.

Dyspeptiure—Is not a palliative, but a finally entirely subdues the irritation and inflammation of the stomach that causes indigestion and dyspepsia.

A DOCTOR'S MISTAKE.—At Windsor Mills, Que., on Tuesday, Dr. Tremblay, took an ounce of acetone in mistake for a preparation he had made to relieve asthma. A lancet failed, and the doctor made his will, took the sacrament and died an hour later in the presence of his wife and three children.

EXCESSIVE SMOKING.—George D. Sauger, prescription clerk in a drug store at Macon, Ga., dropped dead on New Year's evening, while sitting in the store. The autopsy revealed that death was caused by over-stimulation of the heart, superinduced by constant and excessive smoking of cigarettes, of which it is said he consumed six or eight packages daily.
