MRS. PARTINGTON BEATING UP.—"There's poor Hardy Lee called again," said Mrs. Partington on a trip from Cape Cod to Boston.

"There was a tremor in her voice as indignantly she found utterance. "It ain't Christian—it is more like the treatment of Hottentots or heathen!"

The captain went on deck, and a sudden lurch of the vessel sent the old lady on her beam-ends among some boxes, recovering from which forgetfulness of "Hardy Lee" ensued, and this tack brought her to the wharf.

SHOCKING JOKE.—"I see," said old Roger to a farmer topping corn, "that to one branch of your industry you are its worst enemy."

"Why?" asked the farmer. "Because," replied he, "you are always raising shocks for the corn-market."

"Yes," quietly replied the farmer, "but the market is always saying, 'lend us your ears.'"

Old Roger and the farmer smiled at each other as they parted.

"I like to tend weddings," said Mrs. Partington, as she came back from a neighbouring church, where one had been celebrated, and hung up her shawl, and replaced the black bonnet in the long-preserved handbox.

"I like to see young people come together with the promise to love, cherish, and nourish each other. But it is a solemn thing, matrimony,—a very solemn thing,—where the pasture comes into the chancery, with his surplus on, and goes through with the ceremony of making 'em man and wife. It ought to be husband and wife; for it ain't every husband that turns a man. I declare I shall never forget how I felt when Paul said 'With my goods I'll endow.' He used to keep a dry goods store then, and I thought he was going to give me all that was in it. I was young and simple and did not know till afterwards that it only meant one calico gown a year. It is a lovely sight to see young people plighting their troth, and coming up to consume their vows."

PRECOCIUS.—Three little girls were playing among the sage-brush in the back yard. Two of them were "making believe keep house," a few yards distant from each other—neighbours as it were. One of them says to the third: "There now, Nelly, you go to Sarah's house, and stop a little while and talk, and then come back and tell me what she says about me; and then I'll talk about her; and you go and tell her all I say, and then we'll get mad and won't speak to each other, just like our mothers do, you know. Oh, that'll be such fun!"

Bills make people bilious in proportion as they bear a signature. The simple presence or absence of a name makes all the difference in the world. An unaccepted bit of paper has the proportions and stature of a mountain. Attach a few letters of the right sort and it becomes a mere scrap of vellum. With them a man may sleep like a pig; without them he may be as restless as a ship in a storm.

TROUBLES.—To get rid of your troubles, stop thinking of them. Whether you are as lively as a cricket or as dull as rain depends less on the size of your pocket-book than on the condition of your mind. Low spirits are always produced by want of exercise and oxygen. A brisk walk will kill the blues in less time than you can slaughter a bottled fly with a flat-iron.

A profound observer remarks "I have often observed at public entertainments that when there is anything to be seen, everybody wants particularly to see it, every-body immediately stands up and effectually prevents anybody from seeing anything."

Great talent for conversation should be accompanied with great politeness. He who eclipses others owes them civilities; and, whatever mistaken vanity may tell us, it is better to please in conversation than to shine in it.

I set me down, in thought profound, This maxim wise I drew; It is easier for to love a gal Than to make a gal love you.

If a man sells his watch for $50 and buys it back for $40 then sells it for $45 how much does he gain in the transaction? It looks as if he made $15 but he didn't. Boy, can you tell me how much?

There is nothing that our young friends can cultivate with more profit than neatness. Strive to be neat and orderly in all your ways, and after a while neatness itself will become a habit.

The only way for a man to escape being found out is to pass for what he is. A famous judge came late to court one day in busy seasons, whereat his clerk, in great surprise, inquired of him the reason. "A child was born," his honor said, "and I'm the happy sire." "An infant judge?"—"Oh, no," said he, "as yet he's but a crier."

A countryman who was charged with ten gallons of whiskey, though the publican had sent him only an eight gallon keg, said he "didn't mind the money overcharged so much as the strain on the keg."

A young woman being asked by a politician what party she was most in favor of, replied that she preferred a wedding party.

Every man desires to live long, but no man would be old. In prosperity prepare for a change, in adversity hope for one. Men are content to be laughed at for their wit, but not for their folly.

Agricultural.

LITTLE THINGS IN FARMING.

THE whole success of a farmer hinges upon timely attention to little things. This, mainly, makes the difference between thrift and poverty. The philosophy of success is expressed in the old adage, "For want of a nail a shoe was lost, for want of a shoe a horse was lost, for want of a horse a man was lost."

It is a little thing to keep accounts of the pecuniary transactions upon the farm. A half hour Saturday evening would enable most farmers to know just how they stand with the world. Yet, we suspect half of the men who cultivate the soil never make an entry in a book and for want of this the account runs up fearfully at the store and many articles of luxury are purchased for which they are unable to pay at the end of the year. Debt accumulates, the farm is mortgaged, and finally lost for want of a little paper and ink. It is a little thing to put a tool in its place when not in use. Yet, many have no tool house or place of shelter for any implement or vehicle. Things are left where they were last used, the plow in the field, the cart in the yard, the chains in the stable, the harness in the wood-house, the axe in the wood-pile, and the rakes in the corn-crib. Many do not house even the expensive implements they have bought and reapers and thrashers are treated like old plows and harrows. The parts made of iron and steel grow rusty, and the wood decays. A machine that is good for thirty years with proper care is used in five by abuse. It is a very little thing to turn a nut when it is loose, yet for want of tightening, the nut is lost the bolt comes out, and the loaded wagon breaks down on the way to market, and a whole day for a man and team is lost. It is a little thing to keep a horse properly groomed yet for want of a clean fetlock the skin cracks and the horse is lame and the owner loses the use of him for weeks or months. Ventilation is a small affair yet for want of it stock in stables suffers severely, and disease sets in. It is a small affair to provide good seed at the end of the year, but the whole success of the season depends upon it. It is an easy thing to deal fairly with your neighbors and make a name that is better than "precious ointment." Many cheat on small occasions, do not deliver what they sell, and get a reputation for meanness that stands in the way of their success.—American Agriculturist.

LAND OCCUPIED BY FENCES.—The materials and labor required to build and keep fences in repair are among the heavy items of farm expense. The cost of the land on which they stand is another item, on which J. Harris, of Rochester discourses as follows in the Agriculturist:

How much land does an old-fashioned fence occupy? I have always thought it took up a good deal of land, but never had the curiosity to measure. But this summer we have been building a stone wall along the whole west side of the farm, and after it was completed, and the old fence removed, I was surprised at the quantity of land we had gained. The ground, of course, might have been ploughed closer to the fence, but taking the case as it actually was, the old rail fence, with stones, weeds, rubbish, etc., occupied a strip of land one rod wide, contains about six acres. If surrounded by such a fence, it will occupy a little over three-quarters of an acre of land.—A farm of 160 acres so fenced would have twenty acres of land taken up in this worse than useless manner. Not only is the use of the land lost, but it is in the majority of cases, a nursery of weeds, and in ploughing, much time is lost in turning, and the headlands and corners are seldom properly cultivated.

PREPARATIONS FOR THE HAIR.

Mrs. S. A. Allen's World's Hair Restorer is suited to both young and old. It strengthens the Hair, prevents its falling or turning grey, and imparts to it a beautiful glossy appearance. It never fails to restore GREY HAIR TO ITS ORIGINAL YOUTHFUL COLOR.

IT IS NOT A DYE, but acts directly upon the roots of the Hair, giving them the natural nourishment required, producing the same vitality and luxuriant quantity as in youth. It will restore it on bald places, requires no previous preparation of the hair, and is easily applied by one's self. One bottle will usually last for a year, as after the hair is once restored, occasional applications once in three months will insure against grey hairs to the most advanced age.

The Restorer Reproduces and the Hair Dressing Cultivates and Beautifies. Principal Sales Office, 198 Greenwich Street, New York City. August 1, 1867.
