IN MEMORIAM

MARY THERESA SULLIVAN

The angel of Death came quietly, but quickly, to Mary Theresa Sullivan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sullivan of Clinton, on the evening of March 23, 1956.

Only eleven months old, her death gives sad testimony that age, health, or happiness one small deterrents when the Lord beckons one of his earthly creatures to his heavenly home. For what the Lord giveth the Lord taketh away.

Though of a tender age, she spread love and happiness throughout her home and her playful disposition and genial smile will be sadly missed not only by her loving parents, her little brothers, Kenneth and Joseph, her sorrowing grandparents Mr. and Mrs. John L. Sullivan of Clinton and Mrs. D. A. MacIsaac of Cherry Valley, but by all who knew the warmth and radiance of them.

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Eugene Murray of Summerfield. Pallbearers were four uncles: Joseph Croken, Lewis Connick, Ray Hughes and Charles MacIssac.

CARD OF THANKS

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sullivan of Clinton wish to express their sincere thanks to their many friends and neighbors who assisted them in any way during their recent sad bereavement.

Kinsmen Varieties Of '56 Opens With Popular Acclaim

The Kinsmen, with traditional efficiency, once again staged their Annual "Varieties" which opened Tuesday night in the Auditorium of Prince of Wales College in a manner that challenges competition and rates their ability to bring a balanced program to the footlights as "tops".

Produced and staged by Ivan Doherty and Ambie Weatherbie, with a chorus of 50 mixed voices directed by Ken MacKenzie and script by Loman MacAulay, the happy choice of this Big Four combination of experienced showmen, was in evidence throughout the entire presentation.

Under the distinguished patronage of His Honour Lieutenant Governor Prowse and Mrs. Prowse, Premier the Hon. A. W. Matheson and Mrs. Matheson and His Worship Mayor J. David Stewart and Mrs. Stewart, the four nicely balanced scenes offered a variety of entertainment designed to please an audience of diversified tastes.

FROM BOWERY

The show got away to a good start with the entire Company in the opening chorus and the curtain rolling up on Scene I with the action taking place in late afternoon on a street in the Bowery, New York.

The musical numbers presented were: Open Up Your Heart, sung by Lynn Campbell, Mary, A Grand Old Name, Patsy Leightizer, O Don Fatale, Boyce Birt, You Can't Fool Me, Ed Hodgson, Sidewalks of New York, Ivan Doherty. Margaret Rose and Mildred Roberts presented their ever popular dance routine, completing the first part of the Scene.

In the second part which followed immediately, early evening had brought changes on the Bowery, and new faces on the scene.

Elmer Gallant sang "The Bowery", folllowed by Earl Hennessey in "Brother Can You Spare a Dime and Loman McAulay with "I Wonder What Became of Sally". Kay Gallant as a diversion from the male voices sang "Sunny Side of The Street" and Ambie Weatherbie completed the solo routine with "When I get You Alone Tonight". The Scene concluded with the Four Tons of Harmony in a Medley of popular numbers.

Supporting Characters appearing were "Pop", Ivan Dowling, Blind Musician, Aeneas Curley, Beautiful Senorita, George Hood Guys on the Corner, Heber MacAusland, Alf Crawford. Louise Rossiter appeared as Willie's Girl.

TO RANCH

Scene II takes place in a Ranch House where a party is in progress. The musical numbers were by an entirely different group of performers in the order named: Last Roundup, Earl Hennessey Quilting Party, Ranch Hands; Gertie From Bizertte, Ambyr Doyle; Tra cadie Trotter, John Smith; The Kid from the Bar Q, Gary Chipman; Little Willie, The Brahmas Bulls; Never See Maggie Alone, Harry Farmer; When Pa was Courtin Ma, Hugh Trainor; Home on The Range, Ranch Hands.

The scene concluded with Square Dances by the Maritime Square Dance Champions, Directed by Ivan Berrigan with George Andrew as Prompter and Garry Chipman as Fiddler. The Champions appearing were: Olga Dowling, Jackie Blanchard; Mary Clare Smith, Clifford Morgan; Shirley Costello, Pat Connolly; Rosalie Hennessey, Roy McGonnell.

Following intermission a group of clever comediens who have repeatedly made good in such characterizations, appeared in Scene III (Army Hut) where they demonstrated What The Army Got from Their Recruiting Drive.

The cast consisted of Albert (The farm boy), Ivan Doherty, Louie, (Another dumb private), Lorne McGuigan, Private Young (The army tank) Elmer Gallant, Joey (The lazy type), Ambie Weatherbie, Sgt. Smeck (The new Sgt. Maj.) Mil MacFadyen, Mall Clerk, Harold Power Voice of the Army, Joe Shelfoon.

The scene concluded with Julius "Duke" Neilson in a clever magic act in which he introduced several amazing new features which kept the audience guessing.

The final scene identified as the Minstrel Review, followed closely the routine made famous by the travelling shows of old Opera House days and provided ample scope for a display of high class talent usually sufficient to furnish an evening's entertainment in itself.

With Loman McAulay as Interlocutor, Hugh Trainor, Ivan Doherty, Elmer Gallant and Ambie Weatherbie as the "End Men", the wise cracks and local references were most amusing. The musical numbers were: Carolina in the Morning, Loman McAulay; Stormy Weather, Kay Gallant; Tap Routine, Peggy Dalziel; Tucky Home, Lynn Campbell; Makin' Whoopee, Ivan Doherty; Medley from the Chorus — Swanee River; Camptown Races; Old Kentucky Home; Darkness on the Delta, Ambie Weatherbie; Spiritual, Quartette; Alexander's Rag Time Band, Elmer Gallant; Chorus Medley — Cornfield Medley; Massas in the Cold Ground; Old Folks at Home; Cecilia Hugh Trainor; Grand Finale—Four Leafs Clover, Chorus; One Hour With You, Patsy Leigh-Kinsmen Theme, Chorus.

Actively engaged in the production and presentation of the Kinsmen Varieties of '56 were The Four Tons of Harmony, Ken MacKenzie, Fred Pound, Loman McAulay and Cecil Santry. Rowland Taylor was Master-of-Ceremonies. Off Stage workers were: Lights, Junior Dowling, Charlie Ryan; Sound Engineer, Stewart Smith; Costumes, Kinettes; Make Up Supervision, Betty Holl; Pianist, Al Blanchard.

The performance will be repeated tonight and tomorrow night.

Pickets Ring Macy's Huge Dept. Store

NEW YORK (AP)—Pickets by the thousands ringed the Macy department store Tuesday in a strike called by a union representing most of the store's 8,000 employees.

Business, however, went on more or less as usual. Non-union and supervisory employees manned the counters—albeit a bit awkwardly in some cases.

While jeers and boos of the parading pickets discouraged some would be customers from entering the world's largest department store, many others went right on in.

The giant Macy's is a 12-floor institution occupying what would be two ordinary city blocks. It sells everything from hardware to perfumes and many days takes in more than a million dollars. It is known around the world.

CONTRACT EXPIRED

The strike was called Tuesday by Local 1-S of the Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Workers union. The union's contract with the store expired April 1 and a new agreement could not be reached.

There were occasional scuffles along the picket line, but hordes of police were on hand to keep things generally under control. Often the pickets shouted "Shop at Gimbels, shop at Gimbels'."

Gimbels is Macy's big department store competitor, located a few feet away. The two stores have carried on a friendly feud for years. A Gimbels executive was asked if the Macy strike had helped his store's busniess. He took a look around and replied:

"Yes, I believe we're doing a bit better than usual for a Tuesday. But we certainly don't like to see Macy's have any trouble."

Court Of Inquiry Begins Probe In Marines Deaths

PARRIS ISLAND, S.C. (AP)—A Marine Corps court of inquiry heard testimony Tuesday from survivors of a forced night march into a treacherous tidal stream, ordered "to teac the platoon discipline."

Five of the 75 recruits who were led into the river Sunday by Sgt. Matthew C. McKeon of Worcester, Mass., were drowned. Another is missing and presumed dead.

McKeon, 31, will be in custody until the court completes its work at this recruit depot basic training centre for all marines inducted east of the Mississippi.

Before the court convened, McKeon issued a statement through his counsel saying that he led the men on the ill-fated march to teach them discipline. "I can't find words to express my grief,' he added. McKeon would not talk directly with reporters.

PRAISED FOR HEROISM

Several of the survivors praised McKeon for heroism in pulling men from the icy waters of the stream in pitch darkness. McKeon said he was the first into the water, and the last out.

The stream winds near the Parris Island rifle range. Its size varies with the tides. In places it is 100 yards or more wide. The bed is soft and mucky, and dense vegetation borders it.

McKeon's statement said that after entering the stream "I went out a little distance and then travelled parallel to the bank. It is noexcuse that I had not been in the area before and did not realize the stream we entered was a tidal stream, or that it was unusually deep for the area.

"The platoon followed me into the stream. I noticed some went too far out. I ordered the platoon out of the water. Then I saw some were in distress. I started toward them. I brought one man back to shore. Then I started back for others.

IN MEMORIAM

The death on February 21st of James J. Trainor of Maplewood, caused deep sorrow and regret to his many relatives and friends throughout the province and in Eastern Canada and the United States.

The deceased who was in his eighty-second year, having been born on March 11th, 1874, was a son of the late James Trainor and Mary Haughey and was the last surviving member of a family of eight. His brothers, Dr. John B. Trainor of Fall River, Mass, Rev. Thomas Trainor of Taunton, Mass, Owen of Maplewood, Peter and Patrick of Charlottetown all predeceased him as did his sisters Mrs. Margaret Smith of Charlottetown and Katherine who died in childhood.

The late Mr. Trainor after completing his education in the district school spent some years in Fall River, Mass., before returning to the province where he engaged in farming in the old homestead. He later married Miss Margaret Duffy of Emerald, who predeceased him in September 1952. after which time he made his home with his daughter, Mary Mrs. Joseph Nantes. Jimmy as he was known to his friends, was a friendly man. A keen conversationalist and a genial host, his home life was pleasant, and he entertained many visitors. The youth of the district especially enjoyed his company and he eagerly looked forward to their visits to his home.

An industrious and energetic work

Valley Apple Growers To Discuss Future Friday

KENTVILLE, N.S. (CP) — The Annapolis valley's 1,500 fruit growers meet here Friday to decide their future.

They're asked to say yes or no to plans for a federated apple marketing agency controlled by the growers themselves.

The agency scheme, outcome of the growers have ever taken, is one of the worst financial lickings Scotia Fruit Growers Association. presented by directors of the Nova Membership would be voluntary.

A four-man committee travelled 12,000 miles to inspect marketing set-ups in other Canadian and United States fruit - growing districts.

LOST ON BUMPER CROP

The growers, plagued by troubles since the beginning of the war, estimate they lost about $1,500,000 on the 1955 crop—a bumper 4,000,000 bushels. Lack of marketing co-operation is given part of the blame.

Fred M. Nash of Berwick, one of the touring committee, says: "Unless we forget the old days of individual marketing and realize we are up against dwindling markets and stiffer competition there is no hope in the world of getting on our feet again."

Says deputy agriculture minister Waldo Walsh, who accompanied the committee: "If we don't get together and play the game honestly with each other, we won't have an apple industry worth talking about."

Some still hold back, however. A. R. Stirling of Wolfville, one of the valley's largest growers, claims he's made a lot of money "There's got to be some cheap apples on the market for the large family with a lot of mouths to feed," he says.

But two of the largest independents—R. W. DeWolfe Ltd. of Wolfville and Minas Basin Pulp and Power Co. Ltd. of Hants Port—announce they favor co-operative marketing.

The growers association executive, headed by president Thomas Aylward of Falmouth, says the federation scheme will be dropped unless 80 to 85 per cent of members approve. In a series of preliminary meetings last week not a single grower voiced definite opposition.

Fish Atomic-Processed Or Antibiotic-Stored Next

OTTAWA (CP)—How would you like your fish, Atomic-processed or antibiotic-stored

Delegates to the annual meeting here of the Canadian Fisheries Council Monday heard Dr. Lou Voyvodic of Oakville, Ont., describe experiments in food preservation using varying amounts of radiation from atomic reactors.

His address followed a description by Dr. Wilbur H. Miller of American Cyanamid Company, New York, of the successful use of antibiotics to maintain fish at top quality freshness for as long as one week.

Dr. Vyovodic is director of nuclear projects for Isotope Products Limited, a Canadian firm. He said it plans to set up a test plant at Oakville using atomic reactors from the Chalk River, Ont., atomic energy project to continue studies of radiation as a food preservative already begun in the United States.

STAY FRESH LONGER

He said the studies have shown that a proper amount of radiation keeps various foods fresh 10 to 20 times longer than conventional storage methods.

"Items such as pork, bacon, chicken and codfish cakes hold good promise for indefinite storage without refrigeration," he said. "Very low doses (of radiation) are sufficient to stop spoilage in grain and flour and the sprouting of potatoes in storage."

Dr. Voyvodic said too much radiation hurts the quality of food and destroys its taste. However, the tests showed no evidence of toxic agents or any induced radioactivity.

Dr. Miller described experiments in fish storage with a new process in which aureomycin is added to the ice used for packing.

MORE APPEAL

He said freshness of cod, haddock, halibut and salmon can be prolonged for a week, "a significant period when considered in terms of its effect on shipping, shelf life and consumer appeal."

Fish stored for more than a week must be frozen and maintained" at a constant zero temperature.

He said trace amounts of the antibiotic can retard action of bacteria which cause fish to spoil. It would also mean a new taste experience for consumers.

The new process already is being used in the U.S. to preserve fresh killed poultry, Dr. Miller said. Experiments also are under way with beef, pork and lamb.

er his home and family were his first concern yet he found time to devote to and was ever ready to support any plan or project for the betterment of the district and parish. He retained his strength and mental faculties almost to the last and was up and about until a few days before his death.

A devoted Catholic, he was ever faithful to his church and religion. During his illness he was frequently visited by his pastor, the Rev. James Smith who administered the last rites of the church and his soul passed peacefully on the above mentioned date.

Left to mourn in his immediate family are two daughters Mary, (Mrs. Joseph Nantes) and Helen (Mrs. Edward McKenna) Iona; also two sons J. Leslie of Emerald and John W. in the old home. They will ever cherish the memory of a good and dutiful father as will several grand-children who will long remember his kindness and love.

The funeral which was largely attended was held on March 23rd from the home of his daughter to St. Joseph's Church, Kelly's Cross where solemn requiem high mass was sung by the Rev. Fr. Smith with Rev. Charles McArthey as deacon and Rev. Harold Croken as sub-deacon. Rev. Fr. Murray of Summerfield was seated in the sanctuary. Fr. Smith performed the last rites at the grave side.

The pallbearers were Leonard Clark, Charles Flood, John E. Trainor, Russell Smith, Joseph Flood and George Duffy.

May He Rest in Peace, Amen.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of the late James J. Trainor wish to extend their sincere thanks to Rev. James Smith, P.P. who was so kind and helpful during the illness and death of their father, also to Dr. Peter MacDonald of Crapaud, and to all those who sent Mass cards, messages of sympathy, and to all kind friends and neighbours who helped in any way to lighten the burden of sorrow during their recent sad bereavement.
