

MR. AND MRS. FRANK J. GREENAN

Esteemed Couple Observe 57th Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Greenan, Kinkora, P.E.I., celebrated their 57th Wedding Anniversary on November 19th, 1958, with a dinner party at their home with their family and several very close friends. Also attending were their bridesmaid, Mary Ellen Greenan, sister of the groom. Rev. Harold Croken, P.P., presided over the occasion with his presence.

The table was centered with a beautifully decorated anniversary wedding cake.

When all had partaken of the good things prepared for them, Father Croken rose to congratulate the bride and groom of 57 years, and the fine Christian example to their church, and in their home, where they brought up a good family, Mr. Greenan made a fitting reply, despite the fact that the following day, November 20th, he would be 89 years old. The bridesmaid also expressed in well chosen words her congratulations.

Their son, Carl, spoke on behalf of his brothers and sisters, first congratulating his parents on this happy occasion. He thanked them for their loving care and help and above all, for their good example as father and mother all through their lives.

Mr. James McIsaac and Mr. Ignatius Lawless also expressed good wishes and congratulations to the bride and groom.

Then all returned to the living room where the gifts were opened and letters and cards and messages read by Leo and Clara.

The remainder of the evening was enjoyed with music and singing. The music was provided by their grandson, Francis Lawless and their daughter Ruth.

The highlight of the evening was the singing of the song "We are Growing Old Together". A sing-song of old favorites followed, and brought a very enjoyable evening to a close with the singing of "The Queen."

Mugridge-Dekker Marriage Solemnized In Summerside

Trinity United Church, Summerside, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Saturday, Nov. 15th, at 3 p.m., when Rev. Cecil R. Webber united in marriage Kathleen Annie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Dekker, of Sherbrooke, and Wallace Alfred Mugridge, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Mugridge of Summerside.

The bride entered the church of the arm of her father, by whom she was given in marriage. She looked lovely in her floor-length gown of brocade satin with long tapering sleeves, slim fitted lace bodice with pearl trim, buttoned down the back, with self covered buttons and a bouffant skirt. She wore a finger-ring veil, and carried a bouquet of Better Time roses.

Her matron of honor, Mrs. Bennett MacDonald, wore a floor length gown of mauve net over satin, with matching headband and carried a nosegay of bronze mums.

The best man was Mr. Arnold Madsen. The ushers were Mr. John Dekker and Mr. Vance Mugridge.

Mrs. Eric Shea, who had charge of the wedding music accompanied Mrs. Erland Ramsay as she sang "O, Promise Me"

IDA BAILEY ALLEN

Dash Of Vinegar Adds Spice To A Pecan Pie

By IDA BAILEY ALLEN

"Here is an old hostility that has been operating a century and a half, yet has maintained its charm and has not been spoiled by ultramodern decor," observed the Chef, as we stepped into Coventry Forge Inn, at Coventryville, Chester County, Pennsylvania. "Notice the rare pine paneling and the old fireplaces."

FRENCH TRADITION

"And we try to provide food in the finest French tradition, sometimes with a few imaginative changes," smiled Chef Wallis who came to greet us.

"But you look very young!" exclaimed the Chef. "How long have you been cooking?"

"Ever since I was a little boy, Monsieur. I always wanted to be a chef. My mother, who is an exceptional cook, taught me a great deal. Also, I read and researched and experimented all through my high school years."

DURING THE WAR

"Then came the war, when I had considerable experience cooking and 'taste-testing' abroad. 'Finally, just three years ago, I felt ready to take on this Coventry Forge Inn as chef. I am still researching and learning."

"My brother, Charles, is manager, and my mother bakes our popular pecan pies when 'he's not writing books."

The menu was well chosen and the pate maison smooth as cream. In fact, all the foods were exquisitely prepared.

Afterwards, Chef Wallis showed us his compact kitchen, with every utensil and possible ingredient within easy reach. This, plus enthusiasm, is the secret of his quick preparation of intricate dishes.

Tomorrow's dinner for guests: Marinated herring filets, on tomato slices, chicken saute au creme, potatoes au gratin hollandaise, French tossed salad, pecan pie, coffee, tea, milk.

Measurements are level; recipes for 6.

Chicken Sautie Amanda: For each person saute half a seasoned 2 lb. broiler-fryer until browned, in enough oil to keep it from sticking.

Bake 30 min. in moderate oven, 350 degrees F. Sauce with sliced blanched almonds, lightly sauteed in butter. Garnish with sprigs of cress.

Potatoes Anna: Fine-chop six peeled, washed white potatoes. Drain on absorbent paper towels. Add 3/4 tsp. salt and 1/2 tsp. pepper.

Generously butter a 9-in. pie plate. Layer in the potatoes alternately with 1 tsp. soft butter. Plate should be level-tuff. Dot with 1 tsp. butter.

Bake 45 min., or until well-browned in hot oven, 400 degrees F.

Invert potato onto a serving dish. Garnish with parsley sprigs.

Pecan Pie Pennsylvania Dutch Style: This piquant pie owes its special flavor to a dash of vinegar.

Line a 9-in. pie plate with American pie pastry, preferably made with lard. Crimp edges.

Pour in pecan pie-filling (see below). Dot with 1/2 c. extra halved pecan nutmeats. Bake 10 min. at 400 degrees F., then 35 min. in moderate oven, 350-375 degrees F., or until firm in centre when tested with toothpick. Serve cold the same day.

Pecan pie-filling: Beat 4 eggs until frothy. Add 1 c. each molasses and white corn syrup, 1/4 tsp. salt, 1 tsp. each vanilla and vinegar, 2 tsp. melted butter or margarine and 3/4 c. halved pecan nutmeats.

TRICK OF THE CHEF

Chef Wallis, of the Coventry Forge Inn, tosses lettuce salad in the true French tradition with a not-sour or over-seasoned dressing, properly proportioned with 3 tbsp. olive oil to 1 tbsp. mild vinegar, a restrained use of salt and pepper and a faint taste of garlic achieved by rubbing salad bowl with a cut section of garlic.

Couple Exchange Vows At Montague Church Manse

The Presbyterian Church manse, Montague, was the scene of a quiet but very lovely wedding on October 25th, 1958, at seven o'clock p.m. when Margaret Ann, younger daughter of Mrs. Angus Finlayson and the late Mr. Finlayson, Kilmuir, P.E.I., became the bride of James Stuart Hume, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. George Hume, Kilmuir, P.E.I.

Rev. Donald A. Campbell officiated.

The bride chose for her marriage a street length dress of white bridal taffeta. The dress of princess lines had a slim fitted bodice and full skirt worn over crinoline. The dress featured a scoop neckline in front and back and long tapered sleeves coming to points over the hands. Her elbow length veil was held in place by a pearl headpiece. She carried a bride's white Bible which featured six tiny rose buds

MARYHAWORTH Be Yourself And Let Story Unfold Naturally

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I can't seem to hold a man's interest beyond a certain length of time. Always, after a good number of dates, my beaux drop out of sight.

They seem to get bored with me; and yet I have done all I can to prevent it—not only because I want to please men; but also because I like to keep up with things.

I am private secretary to a well-known highly respected business man. I enjoy sports, dancing, music, art, reading, nice living. I keep up with the latest books and new magazines. I am active in organizations, some of which are for men and women; and one, a woman's group doing social work.

On dates I never ask to be taken to smart expensive places; my only requirements for a date being a decent man, amongst decent people in a decent place. But I've never had to make an issue of this—as the men I've dated have been high type; and not interested (I'm sure) in improper surroundings.

TRIES TOO HARD?

If and when a "date" of mine has wanted to pay me a compliment, it seems the best he can say is how very thoughtful I am. I hope, indeed, that I am—and it is not a studied thoughtfulness, with self-interest the aim.

I was brought up in a large, loving, wonderful family—where love and respect were always evident; and thoughtfulness of others was second nature.

Perhaps my concern sounds as if I am trying too hard. I don't think so; but I just don't understand what happens. The only conclusion I've been able to reach is that the man gets bored; but why? I would certainly appreciate any help you can give me.

DEAR E.M.: Don't try to "hold" a man's interest. Be yourself, and let him feel free to take it or leave it. That is how to keep a man-woman relationship in balance, if there is any substance or any ballast to it—in terms of mutual attraction and congeniality.

There is an old saying that you can't make a silk purse of a sow's ear. Well, neither can you make something worthwhile, romantic and enduring of a chance acquaintance, leading to a few dates—if the qualities of significant affinity aren't in the cards.

As you suggest, you probably ARE trying too hard to please beaux—trying to make a hit in terms of what you think they'd like you to be; instead of letting your real self shine through, with nothing to sell (as I said above).

Maybe due to childhood struggle for recognition as somebody special in a large loving family, you've incurred an unconscious conviction that you are deficient in personality appeal. You may have an indelible sense that you just aren't the "favorite" type; that you'll always "left behind," placing second or further down the line, as compared to smarter, showier, more aggressive rivals.

UNFOLD NATURALLY

In any case, my advice is: don't blame yourself anxiously for your failure, thus far, to get a man of your own (which is the nub of your concern). All sorts of factors and forces outside the individual's control are affecting his routine experience. Fortuitous circumstances and lucky breaks—that can't be planned—have much to do with successful mate hunting. And your beaux who fade may be rather dull fellows, bored by habit, who reduce associates to their level.

You can do just so much on your own behalf, and the rest is in the hands of God. When you have assimilated that truth and have begun to live by it, you will be more at ease in the dating situation, inclined to let the story unfold naturally, whether it be lasting love or a passing fancy.

Men respond to that open minded attitude in women; and shy away from its opposite; namely, the undercover intent to steer the dating relationship, cleverly.
