

Increase In Phone Rates Goes Into Effect Sept. 1

A hike in telephone rates for practically all subscribers in Prince Edward Island goes into effect Sept. 1.

The rate increase was granted to the Island Telephone Company by an order from the Public Utilities Commission after a number of public hearings had been held.

Rates for one-party lines in Summerside go up by 60 cents and in Charlottetown the rate goes up 85 cents.

In the following communities, one-party lines go up to $3.85 and one-party business service goes up to $5.75.

In the following communities, one-party lines go up to $3.85 and one-party business service goes up to $5.75.

The rates for four-party lines will, generally speaking, increase by one dollar and for multi-party lines the increase will be 90 cents.

FIVE MAJOR GOALS W. C. Auld, manager of the Island Telephone Company, said the new general tariff means the company will spend an average of $1,700,000 in 1965, 1966 and 1967 in an effort to fulfill five major goals.

The five major goals are: the installation of a telephone in every household in the province; a reduction of the number of subscribers sharing party lines in rural areas; speeded up dial conversion to make all telephones dial type by 1975 with direct distance dialing by then or sooner; free mileage areas to the densely populated communities around Charlottetown and Summerside, available immediately; and removal of

Anne Of Green Gables 1965 Will Be Repeated For 1966

"Anne of Green Gables", the sell-out musical comedy hit of this year's Charlottetown Festival, will be back again in 1966.

This was announced Saturday as the Fathers of Confederation Memorial Buildings Trust revealed plans for next year's "Festival of Music and Laughter" here.

Along with the critically-acclaimed musical adaptation of L.M. Montgomery's best-seller, the 1966 Charlottetown Festival will present a brand-new topical revue with an all-star cast.

Director - choreographer Al Lund, whose staging of "Anne of Green Gables" won universal praise, will be back for next year's revival, as will many of the leading performers in the 1965 Festival.

Gascon, Scott Win Awards

OTTAWA - Jean Gascon, a theatre director who first set out to be a doctor, and Frank Scott, a constitutional expert who writes poetry, are this year's winners of the $15,000 Molson Prizes of the Canada Council for outstanding achievement in the arts, the humanities and the social sciences.

Both of this year's recipients are Montserratians. Mr. Gascon, 43, is artistic director of Le Theatre du Nouveau Monde, which he helped found; associate director of the Stratford Shakespearean Festival and founding director of the National Theatre School.

Fort Severn Is Rescued

HALIFAX (CP) - The disabled 373-ton Canadian freighter Fort Severn was towed to Wakeham in Northern Quebec by the federal icebreaker Sir Humphry Gilbert Sunday.

The ice-sea rescue centre here said the Fort Severn - disabled Saturday morning by a broken crankshaft - will be repaired at Wakeham.

The Sir Humphrey Gilbert answered a distress call Saturday by the Fort Severn, then about 100 miles from Resolution Island in the Hudson Strait.

PM's CAMPAIGN

Jobs up by 556,000 - Mr. Pearson said these "really impressive" figures make Opposition Leader Diefenbaker's talk about the government's "mess" sound silly.

"Just compare it to the mess from 1958 to 1963," he predicted that when the budget is presented in 1966, the expected deficit will be "well below" the original estimate of $300,000,000.

"All this and an income tax reduction too," he shouted. "What about the decision to have a distinctive flag?" he said to prolonged applause.

"What about the Canada Pension Plan? There was talk about it for years but we were the first to act."

He went on to talk about higher old-age security payments, the integration of the armed forces, the new labor code, the redistribution of electoral districts, new financial incentives for employment and industrial development, higher farm credits, reformed parliamentary procedures.

"These things are not the mark of timidity, but of courage action."

As he did in earlier speeches in the West, the prime minister departed from his text to expand on the question of national unity - "the most important problem facing Canada today, except the ultimate problem of peace and security in the world."

"We are making progress. We can do it and we are going to do it. Why don't we show more faith in our country instead of fear?"

TOURED B.C. Mr. Pearson came to Edmonton Saturday after spending a week in southern British Columbia, addressing a meeting in Prince George, and going to Banff to attend a conference on international development.

He capped his nine days by giving a clear impression his campaign is under way.

It was thought that the prime minister reached a decision on a fall election while he was spending a few days on Vancouver Island with John Nichol, president of the Liberal Federation of Canada, and after holding a series of talks with Keith Davey, the party's national organizer.

While Nov. 8 is the most talked-about date, there has been no official indication that it has been definitely selected.

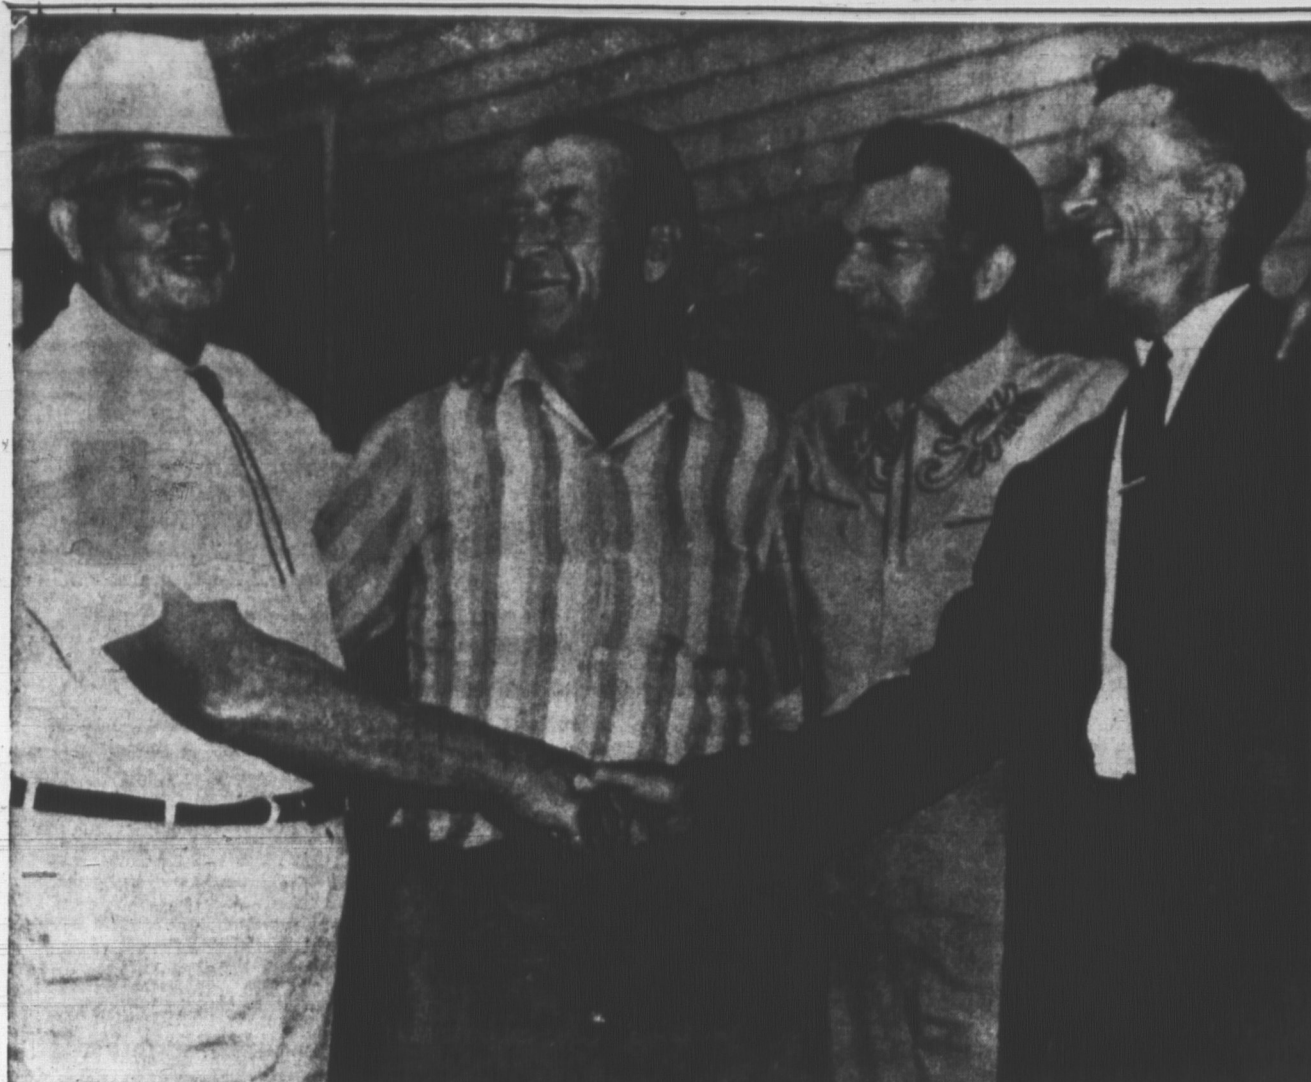

Another innovation for 1966 will be the presentation of a new play, a Canadian comedy the title of which will be announced later.

An international-famous Canadian actor will be invited to star.

These three attractions will play alternate performances in a repertory system, as in 1965, during July and August. Plans are being made to extend the Festival from seven weeks to at least eight.

Mavor Moore will return as artistic director of the Festival, and co-directors Johnny Wayne and Frank Shuster - though not able to perform next year because of a previous commitment in Hollywood - will continue to share in the planning.

Director - choreographer Al Lund, whose staging of "Anne of Green Gables" won universal praise, will be back for next year's revival, as will many of the leading performers in the 1965 Festival.

AT FARMERS' REUNION

L.W. Roper (left) of Brudenell welcomes guests to his farm home Saturday when a get-together was held for Island livestock producers who had made trips to Ontario and Quebec under his direction.

Among the close to 500 persons at the gathering were, from left, Mr. Roper, J. Norman MacPherson, Bellevue; Ivan Kerry, Charlottetown; and Charles Ching, East Baltic.

Heath Macquarrie, MP, and Hon. Angus MacLean, addressed the group. A tour of the farm and barbecue of a hog were highlights of the afternoon.

Atlantic Area Seaweed Industry Has Potential $4,000,000 Value

By NICK FILLMORE HALIFAX (CP) - The seaweed industry of the Atlantic Provinces has a potential value of about $4,000,000, Dr. E. Gordon Young, director of the National Research Council at Dalhousie University here, said Saturday.

The industry was worth about $1,000,000 last year and its value should increase four-fold within the next two or three years, Dr. Young said in an interview during the final day of the Fifth International Seaweed Symposium here.

The symposium, held in North America for the first time this year, was attended by more than 175 scientists, industrialists and government officials from 22 nations.

A survey in the Atlantic Provinces in 1964 indicated the south shore of Nova Scotia and the shores of the Northumberland Strait have the greatest supplies of some kinds of seaweed in the world.

He said there are valuable quantities of Irish Moss and brown seaweed in these two areas but their potential value is not being utilized.

EXTRACTS USED Irish Moss, mostly exported to United States, has extracts used as stabilizers in ice cream, jellies, drugs, cosmetics and beer. Brown seaweed - mostly kelp and rock weed - are used as fertilizers and in the manufacturing of chemicals.

About 600 seasonal fishermen along Nova Scotia's south shore from Digby to Shelburne rake the ocean-bottom two months of the year for seaweed. It is dried, packaged and taken to a manufacturing plant where the valuable materials are extracted and exported.

The beaches of northern Prince Edward Island are raked by more than 200 fishermen and farmers when summer storms leave good supplies of Irish Moss and kelp. New Brunswick has done little to reap its seaweed supplies and the industry has had only limited development in Newfoundland.

Only in Nova Scotia, where beaches are rented by the government for part of the summer, has the industry been developed to any extent. An important step to develop the industry in Prince Edward Island has been taken by the federal government with its announcement that an experimental seaweed processing plant will be built within a year at Miminegash, on the province's north shore.

PROCESS SEAWEED The plant, which will process Irish Moss and other types of seaweed, will be operated by the industrial development service of the federal department of fisheries. In its initial stages, the work carried out at the plant will involve harvesting, cleaning and primary processing, and experiments with weeds at various stages of their life cycles.

In New Brunswick, research is being done at the University of New Brunswick in Fredericton. The province's greatest development in the field of seaweed has been on Grand Manan Island in the Bay of Fundy where the dulce industry supplies a livelihood for many of the island's 3,000 inhabitants.

About 600 scientists who attended the symposium are on a four-day seaweed-collecting expedition in the Bay of Fundy that ends Tuesday. Using Cape Island fishing boats and equipped with hip rubber boots, the group will collect all types of seaweed that will later be studied at the Research Foundation in Halifax.

Regional forecasts: Prince Edward Island: Sunny clouding over late in the morning with widely separated showers during the afternoon. Very cool. Winds westerly 20 increasing to westerly 30 with gusts to 50 and diminishing to westerly 20 late evening. Low-high at Charlottetown 42 and 60.

High tide today at Charlottetown 2:12 a.m. and 2:26 p.m. at Rustico at 9:33 a.m. and 9:56 p.m. Summerside tide eighteen minutes later than Charlottetown. Sun rises today at 6:38 a.m. and sets at 7:49 p.m. All times ADT.

200 Scientists Expected For Sept. Symposium

HALIFAX (CP) - About 200 scientists are expected to attend the International Symposium on Structural Inorganic Chemistry to be held here Sept. 1-3.

The symposium is sponsored by the Chemical Institute of Canada and the Atlantic Provinces Inter-University Committee on the Sciences.

About 50 papers by scientists in Europe, the United States and Canada will be presented.
