Plan Laborless Meals For Happy Weekends

Instead of preparing a big roast dinner, try a laborless, stretchable buffet noon meal, with enough food stored in the refrigerator to serve unexpected guests or late comers without special work.

PAPER PLATE
Save dish washing. Use paper plates and cups. Make plenty of hot or iced coffee or tea, or fruit juice, and serve a menu like this:

BUFFET LUNCH
Labor Day buffet: Chicken-pickle aspic; tossed green salad; buttered rolls. Cold cuts and cheese tray; crisp potato chips. Cherry-Apricot Nut squares a la Mode. Assorted fresh fruit. Hot or iced coffee or tea, milk.

All measurements are level. Recipes proportioned to serve 4.
Chicken - pickle aspic: Add 3 envelopes unflavored gelatin to 1 c. cold chicken stock or bouillon.

In a 2 qt. saucepan combine 4 c. chicken stock or bouillon, 2 chopped peeled medium-sized onions, 2 chopped stalks celery and 1/2 tsp. thyme. Cover and simmer 20 min.; strain.

Add the gelatin; stir until dissolved. Refrigerate 30 min., or until slightly thickened. Fold in 1/2 c. each small-chopped celery and sweet cucumber pickles. Rinse a 5 c. mold with cold water. Add the gelatin mixture. Refrigerate 4 to 6 hrs. or until firm. Unmold on a round platter. Garnish with pimiento, pickle strips and salad greens.

Cherry-apricot-nut squares: Sift already-sifted enriched flour, 1/2 tsp. baking powder and 1/4 tsp. salt. Beat 2 eggs until lemon colored. Gradually beat in 1/4 c. sugar and 1/4 tsp. pure vanilla extract. Mix in the dry ingredients.

Then fold in 1 c. medium-chopped walnuts, 1/4 c. chopped well-drained maraschino cherries and 1 c. chopped dried apricots put through the chopper. (If very dry, place in a strainer, scald and dry.) Turn into an oiled 8" square pan. Bake 30-35 min. in a slow oven, 325

HOUSEHOLD HINT

Sew a loop of cloth or leather near the top of a standard open-end eggcase case so it can be worn on the belt as a holster.

MORNING SMILE

A youngster being called down for a poor report card, asked: "Youngster—What do you think the trouble with me is, Dad—heredity or environment?"

Wife Preservers

Cover bare feet with a neat, warm cover so the shoes won't catch on them and tear.

ELLEN'S DIARY

By An Island Farmer's Wife

In garden-places late phlox blossoms, chrysanthemums too and last lilies. And over the length and breadth of the farmland lies and yellow sun-gold and dream-sets days of the harvest. The amber of stubble is on grain-lands, the ripe of the stalks, in the full time, the fruiting which began in the seedtime.

Wisomely now and well-loved each, the mornings break for us, the September leaves of the lawn-trees pretty in green silhouette against the first shades, the amber and bush of rose of the day-aborning. What a rare spell—how bushed and reverent the world about when comes this daily miracle of birth!

And "What shall we do in the hours ahead?" is our waking thought, though we know that if we are privileged to take up once more our round, they will be filled with those items of life and living which on farms belong alone to the season. The spreading of meals—precious rite of the housewife. The breakfast how good in the late summer balminess which can leave a door open to the flowers and birds and the whispering of trees without. With the morning reeves of the waste from "the gates" in the dawn coming up and in, to provide subtle music for the meal. And even while we linger a long minute there, to the pond from up the creek to the west steps a brisk smiling wind by tokening a nice harvest day for the farmers.

And woven into these days of ours in this old house at Alderlea are the bakings and makings of the harvest, and traditional from years that were: the home-baked loaves, the cinnamon rolls, the raisin turnovers, the apple pies... and the sauce tasteful as a relish with some meats or used in a dozen combinations as a sweet.

And never do we pare an apple at this season that we do not see a sheltered orchard of past September, where harvest apples hung ripe for the picking. There a tree leaned above the little brook which sang a pretty tune as it flowed. Clear, it rippled over the smooth pebbles and by the shadowed nooks, reflecting bits of loveliness of sky and tree and carrying off in toll the old fallen lery-Bees gathered last sweets round about—and along the dignified Post Road close by, in horse-drawn conveyances and on foot passed the smallest world and his wife.

How easily pleasant memories return! And this according to John Ruskin who had treasured recollections "Can be freed against all

COOK'S CORNER

PEACH UPSIDE DOWN CAKE
1 1/4 cups sifted cake flour
1/4 tsp. baking powder
1/4 tsp. salt
3/4 cup granulated sugar
4 tbsps. butter shortening
1 egg well beaten
1/2 cup milk
1 tsp. vanilla
Sift flour, baking powder, salt and sugar together 3 times, add butter. Combine egg, milk and vanilla. Add to flour mixture and beat vigorously. Melt 4 tbs. butter in 8" x 8" x 2" pan. Add 1/2 cup brown sugar. Stir until melted. On this arrange 2 cups sliced peaches. Pour batter over contents of pan and bake in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) 50 minutes. Serve upside down with peaches on top and garnish with whipped cream.
