TRAINMEN HELP SKUNK

COLLINGWOOD, Ont. (CP)—A train crew member freed a skunk from a railway track near here after the badly-frightened animal's warm paws froze fast to the cold steel. The rescuer threw a pail of warm water over the skunk—and bolted. The animal scampered off and the train was able to pull out.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♦	Pass	3 ♦	Pass
3 NT	Pass	5 ♦

Opening lead— king of clubs.

The best contract, three no-trump, was reached, but only for a moment. North's gap in clubs and the fear of missing a possible diamond slam accounted, rightly or not, for the leap to five diamonds.

Had South's hand been laid out somewhat differently, the five diamond bid might have proved to be the winning bid. As matters stood, though, South found himself playing for eleven tricks.

There were three possible losers — a spade and two hearts. Since there was no way to avoid the loss of a spade the problem for South was to avoid one of the heart losers.

The method of play he chose made the result a foregone conclusion. It was bound to succeed regardless of how the defender's cards were distributed. The location of he K-Q of hearts which superficially appears to be important, could not affect the result.

The club was taken with the ace and a club was ruffed in dummy. A low trump to the ace was followed by another club ruff in dummy. The outstanding trump was then drawn.

There were now no clubs in the North-South hands and no diamonds in the East-West hands. The preliminary steps to an endplay position were complete.

A spade to the ace and another to the king was followed by a third round of spades. West had to play his jack and East had the choice of overtaking or allowing West to hold the trick.

In either case South could lose only one heart trick. If West was permitted to take the lead a low heart return by him would be ducked in dummy and East could form no line of defense to beat the contract.

If East overtook the jack of spades no return could defeat the contract either. A heart play would give declarer two heart tricks) any other play would mean a ruff and discard to south's advantage.

All of which is obvious at trick one if declarer can visualize the endplay position that will arise at trick nine.

BEDTIME STORIES

Both Puzzled And Worried

What may be may also not be,
No use to worry 'til you see.
—Old Mother Nature.

There were two puzzled big Owls at their nest in a tall tree in the most lonesome part of the Green Forest. They were Hooty and Mrs. Hooty. They were both puzzled and worried. They had found out that Mrs. Buster Bear had babies under a great pile of brush near the foot of their tall tree. Usually, Mrs. Bear has twins. This year she had triplets.

The first cubs seen by Hooty and Mrs. Hooty wore black coats. All little Bears they had ever seen before had worn black coats. Then one morning a cub with a little brown coat appeared. At first Hooty and Mrs. Hooty thought something had happened to change the black coat of a cub to a brown coat. Then a third cub had appeared and this one was all in black. They were still puzzled by that brown coat. Whoever heard of a black Bear with a brown coat? Mr. and Mrs. Hooty didn't know that it sometimes happens and that there may be twins with one wearing a black coat and the other wearing a brown coat.

The three little Bears went back under the pile of brush.

Many folks besides Hooty and Mrs. Hooty didn't know this for a long time. They saw brown-coated Bears and thought they were a different kind. They called them Cinnamon Bears. You know, cinnamon is brown. In this case there were triplets instead of twins. And the little cub in brown was a girl cub.

"It was bad enough when we thought there were only two, but is worse to have three around," said Mrs. Hooty worriedly.

Hooty agreed. He didn't like to admit that he was worried. He liked to think that Mrs. Hooty did all the worrying. But now he really was worried. A cub Bear can get into more mischief than any other baby in all the Green Forest. All the neighbours know this. Two cub Bears can get into twice as much. In this case there were three. No wonder Hooty and Mrs. Hoty were worried.

"Perhaps," said Hooty, "Mrs. Bear will lead those cubs away."

"And perhaps she won't!" retorted Mrs. Hooty.

"It may be that that one in brown will be different from other Cubs, just as her coat is different from theirs," said Hooty hopefully.

"It may be she won't. A Bear's a Bear and I never yet saw a cub that wasn't full of mischief," replied Mrs. Hooty.

"If they keep out of this tree we'll have nothing to worry about," said Hooty.

"And if they don't we'll have plenty to worry about. Our babies can't fly yet. Anyway, they think they can't. So as long as they have to stay in the nest there is always going to be a chance that those pesky cubs will climb up here. And I hate to think what may happen if they do," declared Mrs. Hooty.

The three little bears went back under the pile of brush. Two young owls in that nest high in that tree were crying for food. Hooty and Mrs. Hooty had to worry about something else now. They had to worry about catching enough food for those hungry young Owls.

Front Car Plates Used For Charity

WINNIPEG (CP) — Front-bumper plates advertising Manitoba are being sold to aid victims of multiple sclerosis. Regular front bumper plates were abolished last year by the provincial government.

The project was undertaken by the St. Boniface Kiwanis Club which hopes to sell at least 100,000 of the plates for $1 each. The plates were designed by R. F. Schick of suburban East Kildonan, a member of the club and originator of the idea.

The yellow plates advertise the province in large black letters and the words Keystone Province appear under a Buffalo. The colors and size are the same as official government plates.

The objective is $80,000 which would be used to establish a multiple sclerosis research centre here and a multiple sclerosis out-patient department at all Winnipeg hospitals.

The project will be good this year only. In 1958 Manitoba will return to the two-plate licensing system.

The club has 169,000 passenger cars and 30,000 trucks to draw from in Manitoba.

Since the project started Feb. 1 more than 20,000 plates have been sold.

Requests for plates have come from many United States points and from other Canadian provinces. One letter from a young Carman, Man., girl had $10 enclosed with a letter in which she hoped she could help someone. The girl herself has multiple sclerosis.

If the drive is successful the research centre would be the only one between Toronto and Vancouver.

The club plans to send every motorist in the province an application form. It has the official approval of the government and law enforcement officials.

Multiple sclerosis is a disease of the central nervous system for which there is no known cure. Manitoba has 1,200 patients.

Film Jewish Family Life

MONTREAL (CP) — The National Film Board announces production of a new film depicting the role religion plays in the life of Canada's Jewish youth.

The film uses an Ottawa family and follows the 13- year -old son through his special Hebrew schooling along with other children. It shows him taking the individual instruction preparatory to accepting his role as a man.

The announcement said the actual ceremony, filmed in an Ottawa synagogue, marks the first time in Canada this aspect of the Jewish faith has been recorded on film.

The film—Bar Mitzvah — was written and directed by Alpin Goldman. A special music score was composed by Louis Applebaum of Toronto. John Drainie, Canadian actor, propides the commentary explaining the pertinent facts of the religious ceremony.

ATOM PLANT PROJECTS

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain Tuesday announced plans aimed at tripling the scope of the country's atomic power station program. Lord Mills, newly appointed as minister for power, told the House of Lords the government hopes to achieve the three-fold increase by the end of 195. The target figure is understood to be 19, an increase of seven on the present 10 - year program announced in February, 1955.

Wealthy Alberta To Pay Dividends To Citizens

By DON HANRIGHT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

EDMONTON (CP)—A splinter from the Social Credit government's almost-forgotten 1935 "dividend" platform turned up in the 1957-58 budget address in the Alberta legislature Friday night.

The new plan will see this wealthy province pay individual dividends to all Canadians over 21 who have been living in Alberta five consecutive years. The money represents one-third of the petroleum royalties paid to the government in the previous fiscal year.

In the coming year the payments to those eligible will total approximately $11,000,000, or about four per cent of the government's total estimated expenditures of $285,469,370, a record figure.

There were no details about the dividend in Provincial Treasurer E. W. Hinman's budget speech. He used only one minute of a 1½-hour address to sketch the plan, noting it will create a "new interest on the part of the individual as a shareholder" in oil resources.

RECALLS PROMISE

The dividend recalls the Social Credit's election platform of 22 years ago—a platform in which the late Premier William Aberhart made a never-fulfilled promise of $25 a month to everyone in Alberta as a result of proposed monetary reform.

The provincial treasurer said implementation of Social Credit principles actually will be made next year, with completion of current extensive studies toward a thorough reallocation of provincial-municipal revenue and responsibilities. Mr. Hinman said this will give Alberta "the healthiest economic climate to be found anywhere in the world." Again, there were no details.

To meet its 1957-58 expenditures of $285,469,370, the government will have to supplement expected revenue of $256,626,425 by getting the difference of $32,842,945 from its provincial reserves. The reserves exceeded $347,000,000 at last Dec. 31.

Under Alberta's budgeting system, this means a deficit only to the accountants. Included in the total expenditures are $60,500,000 in loans of all sorts—money which eventually will come back, with interest. So the reserves probably will be strengthened by $28,000,000 when the year ends.

Included in the $60,500,000 will be $2,000,000 to set an Alberta Farm Purchase Credit Unit, to which young aspiring farmers will contribute a still-unknown amount and then borrow low-interest long-term money to buy "economic farm units."

TAIPEH, Formosa (Reuters)—Gen. Chang Chun, secretary to President Chiang Kai-shek, Thursday branded as "silly" a Japanese press report he had gone to Peiping for negotiations with Communist Chinese.
