

MR. AND MRS JOHN WATSON ROSS

Ceremony Unites Couple At Saint Albion's Church

A very pretty wedding took place recently at St. Alban's Church Woodside, when Madelyn Joan MacKenzie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald MacKenzie of Inveroy, Dartmouth, became the bride of John Watson Ross, son of Mr. John W. Ross and the late Mrs. Ross of Charlottetown and Stanhope, Prince Edward Island. Reverend F.G. Moore officiated at the double ring ceremony. The bride, given in marriage by her father, was radiant in a full length gown of chamilly lace and nylon applique, styled with alternate tiers of nylon accordion ruffles and lace at the front of the hooped skirt, and chamilly lace side panels gently tapering to floor level at the back. The gown featured a high neckline, a fitted bodice buttoned at the back and trimmed with mother-of-pearl sequins and minute seed pearls, and full length sleeves tapering to a lily point over the wrist. A tiara of sequins and seed pearls held in place her lovely four-tier shoulder length veil of illusion tulle and the bride carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and lily-of-the-valley. The matron of honour and the three bridesmaids wore identical full length gowns of nylon lace over pleated tulle, fitted bodices trimmed with sequins and boleros of nylon lace with three quarter length sleeves. Mrs. Ernest Poston, sister of the bride, was matron of honour wearing a yellow gown with a matching headband of tulle trimmed with lily-of-the-valley. She carried a nosegay of baby white chrysanthemums with mauve centres. Mrs. John B. MacKinnon's gown was in a pretty shade of green worn with a matching tulle headband, and her nosegay consisted of white chrysanthemums with yellow centres. A gown of blue was worn by Lorraine Duzgalle with a matching band of tulle, and lily-of-the-valley and a nosegay of white chrysanthemums with pink centres. A cousin of the bride, Diane Lively, wore a pink gown with a pink tulle headband and white with blue centred chrysanthemums. Joan Cashin was a very pretty flower girl in a pale green, full length dress of brocade taffeta styled with a fitted waistline, a full skirt and puffed sleeves. With this she wore white gloves and a headband of white flowers. She carried a nosegay of yellow chrysanthemums. Gary Poston, nephew of the bride, was ring bearer and he wore a white linen coat with navy trousers and a button-hole of pink carnations. Ruffled neck and white streamers trimmed the heart-shaped satin pillow on which he carried the ring. The groomsmen were Ronald MacKenzie, brother of the bride, Carl Dauphinee, uncle of the bride, Aubrey Dauphinee, cousin of the bride, and David Byrnes, a friend, performed the duties of ushers. The church choir was in attendance accompanied by Mrs. Orma Beaver at the organ. The mother of the bride wore a becoming dress of navy blue nylon lace over satin styled with a sweetheart neckline, white ether hat, white accessories and a corsage of white carnations completed the ensemble. The sister of the groom chose a pink sheath dress of bengaline, a white picture hat with accessories to match, and a corsage of white carnations. Two hundred guests attended a reception at the Belmont Hotel where the bridal table decorated with white streamers and bells, was centred by a pillared three tier cake trimmed with pink roses and silver leaves topped by a miniature bride and groom with two attendants. The toast to the bride was given by Rev. F.G. Moore. For travelling the bride chose a light wool tailor made suit of a pale turquoise shade with two half-belts at the back of the jacket and a kick pleat in the straight skirt. With the suit she wore a white feather hat, white accessories and a corsage of white carnations. The newlywed Mr. and Mrs. J.W. Ross travelled to Charlottetown, where they will reside.

ELLEN'S DIARY

Another Day Should See All The Grain In Stook

"We're twenty years behind the times with our farming" one of the family offered with a teasing chuckle this morning when a worn canvas of the binder was spread on the floor of our old kitchen so that it might receive some repair.

Nicely this old kitchen with its quaint doors and wainscoting of wide painted boards has furthered such works of repair incidental to the farming. Indeed in spells of inclement weather or sometimes when convalescing from some illness, lads have employed themselves happily, wearing away the tedious indoor hours, with saw and hammer and nails at small pieces of carpentry here. And we recall (How cozy too the scene!) James himself raking good use of enforced leisure on a stormy winter afternoon or beside the fire in the lamp-light, by moulding patiently an axe handle from a weathered maple-stick, of a stock kept in a corner of the coach-house against just such an opportune day. Broken—worn pieces of harness have been brought indoors to be mended, shining new lengths of rope to be made into reins. Where have those precious olden days gone to? Times we remember so well!

"Twenty years!" James chuckled fitting a patch over the rent in the canvas. "Wouldn't five?" we grinned "The nearer the mark" he said. "Or less?" the younger farmer offered. "A patch or two and a few tacks will see us through this year's cutting at any rate" he said tapping down some of the latter.

"And next year?" James began, then smiled. "But we'd better finish the harvest we're at before we make plans for another."

"The binder's done well—this year's harvest hasn't been an easy one to gather" the younger farmer said. "Some of the straw is rank and then too there are the spots broken down. It would test any machine-binder or combine."

"Well another day after this one if all goes well" James nodded "should see it all in stook."

"And then" Mack said, coming to the door. "Well another day after this one if all goes well" James nodded "should see it all in stook."

he queried. Crickets fiddled the afternoon sunshine away making a tune that was sober. It was a time to consider the garden of another Spring-to-plant bulbs for it, to transplant a root; to gather in a supply of loam and leaf mould to the cellar lest in the event we should need the like for any plantings or sowings in wintry days we would find our good intentions had been lost to the Fall rains and snow.

A pleasant September day this has been. It favored nicely the harvest-work of Island farms. Until tomorrow—Dairy—Good-night.

Gallant - Arsenault Vows Pledged At Egmont Bay

A pretty wedding was solemnized at St. James Church, Egmont Bay at 9.00 a.m. on August 12, when Lorraine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sylvère J.F. Arsenault, was united in marriage with Martin, son of Mrs. Rozella Gallant and the late Henry Gallant of Mont Carmel. Rev. Philip Cloutier performed the double ring ceremony and celebrated the nuptial mass.

During the nuptial mass appropriate hymns were rendered by the Girls Choir and accompanied by the organist Edward Poirier. Given in marriage by her father the bride looked lovely in a floor length gown of white bridal gown taffeta. The fitted bodice featured a sabbina neckline with sequins and seed pearls. The sleeves were long and tapered over the hands. Jewelled lace motifs enriched the bouffant swirl which was drifted to a chapel train over tulle and hoops. She wore ivory taffeta slippers. Her finger tip veil of nylon illusion fell from a tiara head dress trimmed with opalescent sequins and pearls. She carried a crescent bouquet of white and red roses.

The bride's attendants were Gloria Gallant and Patricia Gallant dressed in yellow and blue nylon taffeta dresses. They carried bouquets of white carnations. The flower girl, Monique Arsenault was dressed in a gown of blue nylon taffeta and carried a bouquet of mixed carnations. Mr. Joseph Arsenault brother of the bride, attended as best man. The ushers were: Leo Arsenault and Gavin Gallant.

The bride's mother chose for her daughter's wedding a black taffeta dress with white accessories and a corsage of white roses. The happy couple left the church for the bride's home where a wedding breakfast was served to a hundred guests. The the meeting opened with the reading of the Mary Stewart collect in union. Roll call was answered with a "Foreign Recipe." Following the reading and approval of the August meeting, the secretary-treasurer reported on the expenses in connection with the annual Institute Banquet held Sept. 1st. Routine business and correspondence were dealt with. The comforter will be drawn for at October meeting. A lively discussion followed on reading habits. The members went on record to support any drive to remove indecent literature from news stands. Mrs. Francis A. White invited the members to her home for the October meeting when Roll call will be answered with a donation towards a pantry sale. The meeting adjourned and the members enjoyed a delicious lunch. Sharing hostess duties were Mrs. Doucette and Miss Ann Deagle. A hearty vote of thanks was extended Mrs. Dolan for a most enjoyable evening.

YOUR CHILD MAY HAVE
WORMS
1 OUT OF 3 DOES!
Fidgeting, nose-picking and a tormenting rectal itch are often tell-tale signs of Pin-Worms or Round-Worms... ugly parasites that medical experts say infect one out of every three persons examined. Entire families may be victims and not know it.
To get rid of these ugly pests, they must be killed in the intestines where they live and multiply. And clinical tests have proved that JAYNE'S LIQUID VERMIFUGE kills both Pin-Worms and Round-Worms quickly and easily. Then they are expelled from the system in a normal manner, a pleasant, fruity taste. Children love it—take it without fuss or fret.
Remember, Pin-Worms and Round-Worms are highly contagious and can spread through the whole family.
So, at the first sign of worms, be sure to ask your druggist for JAYNE'S LIQUID VERMIFUGE.
