S'side Taxi Partnership Income Tax Case Aired

OTTAWA, April 13 — (Special) — A secret partnership in the taxi business at Summerside was cracked open by the Income Tax Appeal Board here today when a judgment was handed down on an appeal launched by Miss Tessie McNeill of Summerside.

At the hearing, it was revealed that Miss Pansy Gallant, who had worked for Miss McNeill in the taxi office, was a partner in the business but "for family reasons" the partnership agreement had been kept confidential since 1941.

According to the judgment, Miss McNeill's appeal against her 1946 income tax assessment is being referred back to the Minister, with the recommendation that income tax officials allow her deductions for depreciation on the motor cars used by the partnership.

For the year in question, Miss McNeill filed a return showing gross receipts of over $14,000 but a net income of only $782.86. Taxation officials declined to accept this accounting and sent her an assessment notice fixing her taxable income for 1946 at $3,712.58 which represented 25 percent of her gross receipts for the year.

—In his recommendation that income tax officials review the McNeill case again and give her the benefit of depreciation on taxis used in her business, Mr. Justice R. T. Graham, chairman of the Board, writes:

"I have considerable sympathy for the appellant because of her sex, her lack of business training and the fact that she is engaged in a business in which not many women engage. It is not surprising perhaps that she failed to appreciate the relationship of her business to income tax and the keeping of proper records.

—The appellant kept no proper books and the income tax return who have not sent in their membership returns. Although there was no definite date set for this, the Executive at their meeting yesterday, suggested that we should try and get all those returns in before the busy season commences.

NEW DRUG AIDS BOY

CHICAGO, April 2 — (AP) — A three-year-old Windsor, Ont., boy, critically ill with advanced leukemia, showed his first favorable response today to the new wonder hormone, ACTH. Physicists at Wesley Memorial Hospital said Gregory Pepin was "some-what improved." They added the drug had exerted a favorable influence on his spleen and that he is "in good spirits." The youth had been receiving the rare drug for three days without any change in his condition. Last night he took a turn for the better.

Among The Farmers

(Continued from Page 5) Last year the retail price of butter declined seven cents a pound (10 per cent) but owing to the severe competition from substitutes butter consumption declined 48 million pounds, or about 13 per cent.

This brief analysis paints the picture of the present situation as a result of the introduction of a low cost competitive product. This affects our markets, as well as those of the other provinces.

Ice Cream Tax Off

It is gratifying to see where the Government in their budget, have accepted the recommendations of the Canadian Federation and removed the Sales Tax from ice cream. This will be a benefit to the dairy producer because of increased sales and to consumers because of reduced retail prices, we hope.

Poultry Pointers

This week's Dominion Egg and Poultry Market Report gives us a key to price stability. It says that expanding home consumption is highly desirable, but an export outlet for surpluses is an essential link in price determination.

—The poultry industry has obtained most of its objectives except price stability. It has reached National Standards; sale by grade at retail; the graded returns to producers; high premiums for quality to improve production; registered air-conditioned grading stations; improved handling, storing, transportation, etc.

—Price stability depends upon the effective disposal of the surpluses in the many small egg grading stations across Canada. It suggests that if the industry is to help itself, some arrangements must be made to pool surpluses and sell through or under the control of central agencies. This is the objectives of the poultry producers in each province, who are now organizing their egg and poultry boards and co-operatives.

Manufacturers Score Again

Japanese shirts have disappeared from Canadian markets. Our Government recognized that products from a country with an economy entirely unlike ours, where extremely low standards of living exist had no place on our market. They were quick to recognize that Japanese shirts were creating unfair competition that would result in unemployment, hardship, and ruin of the shirt manufacturing industry.

—Their prompt action in removing these shirts is worthy of credit but, why is it that a small group of manufacturers supporting some 150,000 workers in Canada receive protection from unfair competition when exactly the same situation has faced our dairy farmers for fifteen months with little or no concern shown in government circles.

Membership Forms

There are still a few districts Our dairy industry supports 460,000 Canadian farm families. Their product has to meet with unfair competition from spreads, the ingredients imported from areas where living standards do not equal those of the Japanese.
