CORRECTION.—We are asked to say that the statement made in Tuesday's EXAMINER that Summerside had "added new and stronger men to their Hockey Team" to play in Charlottetown, Friday night, is a mistake. The team which played with the Victoria's in Crystal Rink here, will be sent to Charlottetown. No changes have been made.

Mr. P. R. Baker returned from Boston Tuesday. We are pleased to hear that Mr. Herbert Sharp, of this town, who has been taking a course of study in a Boston Business College, has completed his course, and will after a trip to New York, return home.

Engineer Hickey inspected the "Beaver" yesterday, and says she is in a good condition. The pleasant weather of yesterday brought a large number of country people to town, among whom were seen Mr. John Ross, once editor of the famous Ross's Weekly.

About 200 people gathered in Kensington Hall on Tuesday night, in response to the announcement of the I. O. F. entertainment—over seventy leaving here by the special train. The programme opened with a violin solo by Mr. Dempsey; then followed an interesting address on "Foresters," by Rev. W. J. Kirby; reading, "Age of Wonders," D. McKay; song and recitation, Watson F. Clark; violin solo, Jas. McMillan; solo, Mrs. Gordon Tuplin; address, Rev. Mr. O'pie; song, Dr. J. E. McDonald; recitation, Mrs. J. W. D. McKay; duet, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Tuplin. Mrs. Tuplin's solo was well rendered, and Mr. Watson Clark took the house by storm with his comic songs and recitations. In fact, every part of the programme was pleasing. After the entertainment supper was served, about two hundred partaking, after which dancing was resorted to, and was continued until about three o'clock. The special train conveying people to this town returned about 10 p. m.

The "wreck train" which went west to attend to the disabled engine of Monday night's accident arrived here about 10.30 last night.

About 10 o'clock last night the police were called upon by Mr. John Connors to make an arrest for larceny. These are the facts: Connors keeps a boarding house at the east end of the town, and a few days ago there came to his house a peddler, who gave his name as Riley. Yesterday forenoon Mrs. Connors placed $12 in the drawer of a small table in a sleeping room in the upper part of the house. Having occasion to use the money in the afternoon she went to the room but found the $12 missing. As Riley's room was directly opposite the one in which the money was placed, and as he had been in the greater part of the day, he was suspected of having taken it. An officer was called and Riley was taken to the jail and searched. As none of the missing bills (five and one's) were found in his possession, he was liberated.

Mr. John Gaffney lectures in Market Hall this evening on "The Evolution of Civil Liberty from an Anglo-Saxon Standpoint."

The series of special meetings held in Epworth Hall closed with last night's meeting. They were well attended throughout.

DIPHTHERIA AT VERNON RIVER. Sir,—I noticed a communication in THE DAILY EXAMINER of the 11th inst., re diphteria at Vernon River Bridge, and signed "Student."

I said in my letter to you, some time ago, that the Board of Health here would take no notice of communications of anonymous correspondents through the public press, but "Student" makes charges that are of a nature too serious to be overlooked.

The Board of Health for Lots 49 and 50 assembled and placed the matter of taking thorough precautions for the prevention of the spread of this disease in this instance in my hands, being Chairman of the Board and living close by, so that if there be any blame, it attaches to me personally, hence my reason for this letter.

Now my best justification is a simple statement of what I have done.

(1) I procured a house half a mile away and removed the Crane family thereto, and had the quarantine laws thoroughly enforced.

(2) I caused all families in which the disease occurred to be quarantined.

(3) I caused the house in which the Crane family lived to be destroyed and burnt, and the ground on which it stood to be covered with a layer of salt and quicklime.

(4) The settled-bed was overlooked by the workmen who destroyed the buildings, but I noticed it before the school opened, and I caused it to be saturated with kerosene oil, and I intended it to be taken away and burnt on the following morning, but during the night a heavy snowstorm came on and covered things, when the storm ceased I saturated it again with oil, had it hauled out on the river away from the public road and set fire to it; the fire licked over its surface but did not thoroughly destroy it, and there it remains. If that settled-bed is not thoroughly disinfected by this time, after an exposure of two months to snow and frost, after two saturations of kerosene oil, and a dose of fire, the bacteria of diphteria must be very tenacious of life indeed.

I think that "Student" should be sure he is telling the truth before he rushes to the press and makes such serious charges.

I have examined the premises in which diphteria broke out and find that there is no old cellar connected with it. Now, if "everybody knows it originated in the old cellar," when as a fact there is no old cellar, "everybody" must be afflicted with a disease worse than diphteria. I have thoroughly disposed of the wild cat story about the settled-bed and have only to add that "Student's" statement that the settled-bed was only a few feet away from the school, is not in accordance with the fact, which is that the settled-bed was over a hundred feet from the school yard, and enclosed from the yard by a picket fence, and was during that time covered up in a snow bank.

It does not matter what "Student" condescends to do the duty of the Board of Health to be, nor what he advises, while he indulges in false statements and perversion of facts.

Mr. G. W. Smalley said in the course of an interview that he would begin his duties as correspondent in New York for the London Times on June 1. "My motives for making the change," said Mr. Smalley, "are my long exile from America and my desire to return there to stay. My experience in London has taught me how life here ought to be represented in order to interest the British public, and to do this I shall devote myself."

Republicans and Democrats in the United States are disputing as to whether the late Congress in the two years of its existence appropriated $1,015,000,000 or $998,000,000. Either sum seems a pretty large one for a commercially depressed nation even of sixty-five millions to provide.

There was no fire in the ante-election promises of economy than there is in the Canadian Liberals' love of the same virtues. They were meant for the voters, not for observance.

On the question of the credit of £29,000 asked for in aid of the revenues of the Island of Cyprus, Sir William Vernon Harcourt, Chancellor of the Exchequer, in the House of Commons, said that the acquisition of Cyprus was part of the unwise speculative policy of the Beaconsfield Government. The island had cost the country £290,000 sterling and had proved quite useless, unhealthy and a constant drain upon the Imperial Exchequer. However, he added, the Government is bound to abide the responsibilities which Great Britain had taken over.

At the Queen's drawing-room on Thursday last it was noticed that pink and blue were the prevailing colors in the toilettes, although mauve satin was greatly worn. But the weather was so cold that it drove the public away from the Mall and, generally speaking, the function was far from being a brilliant one. Many rumors have been circulated regarding the absence of the Princess of Wales from the drawing-room; but the general opinion seems to be that the failure of the Princess to be present upon that occasion was the result of feeble health and the fact that she was not desirous of exposing herself to the cold or of incurring the fatigue which would result from attending the drawing-room.

always find a welcome among the maids, but the chaps born of March winds receive a cold reception. At this season the winds are especially cruel and make one's skin dry and hard, producing roughness, chaps, etc. There is no remedy like Johnson's Cream of Roses to soften, heal and delicately perfume the skin. It leaves the complexion so soft, pink and glowing that it is immediately worn. It is a luxury for gentlemen after shaving. Price 25 cents.
