BRIDE HAD TWO FLOWER GIRLS

Huestis-MacLaren Nuptials Celebrated At Trinity

White and blue summer flowers in white baskets tied with yellow tulle and satin bows formed a charming setting in Trinity United Church, Charlottetown, for the marriage of Elsie Lyle, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William MacLaren, Cable Head W., and Charles Roy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy L. Heustis, Charlottetown. For-get-me-nots and small yellow pansies marked the guest pews.

Rev. A. Frank MacLean performed the double ring ceremony. Mr. Royston F. Mugford the church organist played the wedding music and Mr. Stan Lancaster as guest soloist sang The Lord's Prayer before the ceremony and O Perfect Love during the signing of the register.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She was attended by her cousin, Miss Marjorie MacLaren as bridesmaid and little Misses Joyce MacLaren and Beverly Ann Carr, nieces of the bride and groom, as flower girls.

Mr. Keith Heustis, brother of the groom, was best man. The ushers were Mr. Stuart MacLaren brother of the bride and Mr. Victor Livingston.

Entering the church on the arm of her father the bride looked charming in a floor length gown of nylon tulle with skirt inserts and bodice of chantilly lace motif embroidered with iridescent sequins and having long sleeves tapering to a point over the hands and tiny covered buttons to the waist line at back. Her fingertip veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a head dress of lace and sequins. She carried a cascade of talisman roses.

The bridesmaid was gowned in baby blue tulle over taffeta with lace trim and lace bolero. She wore matching bandeau and mitts and carried a nosegay of yellow roses and blue mums. The two little flower girls looked winsome in floor length gowns of yellow taffeta and net and wore halos of tiny yellow roses and tulle and carried nosegays of blue and yellow mums.

For her daughter's wedding the bride's mother wore navy with white trim and white accessories and a corsage of white carnations. The groom's mother wore a dress of white and navy with white accessories and wore a corsage of white carnations.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church Hall. Mrs. W.W. Mutch and Mrs. J. MacNair served the bride's table and Mrs. Victor Livingston presided over the tea cups. Miss Michelle Heustis was in charge of the guest book. Members of the friendship Group of the King's daughter catered for the delightful lunch in their usual good style.

The bride's table was centered by a three tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom. Tall white tapers and blue and yellow flowers completed the decorative scheme of both the bride's table and foursome guest tables.

Rev. A.F. MacLean proposed the toast to the bride to which the groom responded and thanked all their good friends.

Later the happy couple left by car on a honeymoon through New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. For travelling the bride chose a summer suit of aqua blue with white accessories and wore a corsage of Bettertime roses. The groom's gift to his bride was matched luggage.

Prior to her marriage the bride was tendered a shower at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Perry where she received many lovely and useful presents. She was also tendered a shower of lovely gifts on the evening of June 22 at Cable Head W. where many of her old friends met to wish Elsie and Charlie a long life of happiness.

The 1912 Look Is Big News Of Evening Fashions

By DOROTHY ROE

NEW YORK (AP)—Fashion returns to the good old days, it was apparent today as New York designers previewed their fall collections for the press.

The 1912 look is the big news of fall fashions, expressed by a return to full-length evening gowns, instep-length dinner dresses, softened empire lines, greater elaboration and a return to feminine formality.

After exploring the flapper era for several seasons, designers have hit on the period preceding the First World War as inspiration for fashions expressing the ladylike look of today. Sensing the fact that women are weary of careless clothes, they usher in a new mode of strictly feminine elegance, with lines clearly drawn between fashions for day-time, the cocktail hour and evening.

JUST LIKE GRANDMA

Although the predominant silhouette is still the sheath, it is softened and elaborated by feminine drapery, floating panels and fine details of trimmin. The empire line is important in all collections, with belts just below the bust in most cases, midriffs slim and waistlines unaccented. Shoulders are natural or sloping, skirts are narrow and hemlines unchanged except for evening towns, which are long if they carry out the newest look.

Cothes like grandmother used to wear are present in abundance, recognized by their new air of feminity, their formality, the richness of their fabrics, their elaboration of detail and the accessories that set them off—big, important hats, big fur muffs, little pointed shoes and lacy handkerchiefs suitable for dropping.

Mannequins modelling the new fashions usually wear their hair done up in a psyche knot or a chignon, and they have acquired a new stance—back straight, head erect, chin up, manner haughty. None of the debutante slouch, none of the loose-joined college girl amble. This is the posture grandmother learned as a girl when she practised walking with a book on her head and was taught that ladies must be graceful.

New York Fashion Houses Bring Out Fall Lines

By DOROTHY ROE

NEW YORK (AP)—It's a sort of a camisole and kind of a chemise, so glamor designer Ceil Chapman calls it a "camise."

It's the loose bloused top with camisole straps, usually jeweled or beaded, which distinguished the newest silhouette in the Chapman collection of festive fashions for fall evenings, previewed today for the fashion press.

Though it has somewhat a look of the flapper era, Ceil uses the camise top on a full-length satin gown down in the 1912 manner—heavily beaded lace bodice and hemline border. There also are versions for cocktail and dinner wear, in various lengths from mid-calf to instep.

This designer, noted for fashions which glorify the best features of the female form, goes all out for glitter this fall, using bushels of beads and scads of sequins, oodles of jewels and piles of paillettes in after-five fashions that are as elegant as Lillian Russell at her most flamboyant.

SEXY STYLES

Equaly elegant is the collection of Jo Copeland, the designer who invented the cocktail suit, and who always has had a weakness for sexy styles. She also utilizes the 1912 look in a series of slender evening dresses of ankle length.

George Carmel uses a column silhouette in most of his distinguished collection of coats and suits, supplying softening feminine touches by use of face-framing fur collars, and other elaboration at the top. Suits often are belted or bloused in back, skirts are slim with walking ease achieved by means of low-placed pleats or slits.

And for big evenings, Carmel shows a group of satin coats with sable trim, elegant enough for the Maharanee of Indore.

ELLEN'S DIARY

Pilgrims Come Home

Mowing "back in that field," an area somewhat indefinite to us since it lies screened by the woodlands—that was the extent of our haying today, with the disappointment of none being saved owing to the indifferent making. Fine? Yes, and mostly sunny, but as the farmers said "no drought," no dryness to cure and to keep. For it is after old-time ways of haying that our savings will go "loose" to the barns, others of these being shingled and repaired and new gear installed to add to our squirrels' nests of storing-places.

There will be baling later, if all goes well, and maybe as of old a stack or two against a skyline, to be one with the shorn fields and the lonesome crickets! Dunings—to catch the shadows of the August clouds. So far James does the mowing with a horse-drawn machine, thus releasing Rob and the younger farmer and Jamie for pressing matters of carpentry and weeding. Presently however when the weather settles away all will feel the intensity of the endeavour.

The mowing, the carpentry and the weeding—these made the pillars, stout and sure which held up our day. But adorning these was sunshine and passing shadowy cloud and blossoming gardens and farmlands. . .Now at Alderlea there is the pure white of the double Mock Orange to make into bouquets of Granddaughter's gathering to put with sprigs of Southernwood, a feathery spray or two of Asparagus, and red rose to give altogether fragrant memories of the season.

Memories—these bring back now visitors to the Island: the kinfolk who return on holidaying pilgrimage to familiar cottage or farmhouse, to walk old lanes and recapture the charm of those shore-places they knew: to feel the warmth of friendly smiles and the touch of welcome hands: to know that there still exists in all the noise and confusion of a busy bustling world, quiet places of earth where at least for a time, Peace can spread her healing and restful wings.

Other guests too we have—maybe of Island ancestry in part, who fulfilling a dream, come for the first time to contact the folks of "Mother's Line" or "of Dad's." How good to repair Time's breaches and to be a bit proud and grateful that here in later generations, there is such good kin.

And the stranger—for we have these now within our confines from far places and strange lands. May they catch with appreciation something of the sweetness of Island places and the balm of its quiet and peace. And may we give them that hospitality which will fill their holidays pleasantly and make only nice memories to take with them when they go out from our shores. And in parting "Come again!" we shall say, because we Islanders are gratefully aware that we have much that is lovely to share.

Until tomorrow— — — Diary—Goodnight. . . . .

The Columbians Potato Unknown To Canadians

TORONTO (CP) — Mrs. Jorge MacBride - Sourdis, wife of the Colombian consul at Toronto, is a petite, dark-eyed woman who loves to cook.

She thinks nothing of entertaining on weekends a group of homesick Colombian students attending university here. One of her secrets on how to make them feel at home is by serving them native dishes.

Here two years, Mrs. MacBride-Sourdis says that she can't buy some of the ingredients available at home, but she has learned to substitute.

Yuca, a sort of long, tubular potato often used in Colombia, is so unknown to Canadians, she said, that only the university's botany department here has even heard of it.

SAVORY DISH

Here is one recipe — simply called chicken and rice—which she has concocted.

Chop together six tomatoes, 1 large onion and 1 green pepper. Fry slightly. Cut a 6-7 pound chicken in pieces and fry until brown.

Cook 1 pound of rice. In a pan of melted butter fry 1 chopped onion and 1 pepper. Add the rice, and pour into the mixture a cup of water for every cup of rice. Cover and let simmer until the moisture evaporates.

Mix all ingredients together. Other vegetables, such as green peas, may be added before serving. No other vegetable is needed, as this is a dinner in itself, says Mrs. Macbride-Sourdis. It serves 16.

"Much better than the expensive cleaners we have been using"
