Gasoline-Fed Flames Posed Threat To Boats

TIGNISH — A film of gasoline on the harbor water at Jude's Point Sunday afternoon and a carelessly tossed lighted match nearly led to disaster for the lobster fishing boats tied up at the wharf.

However quick work by four fishermen and the night watchman at the Tignish Fisheries Co-op canning plant saved the fleet.

One man, Harvey Dawson, suffered minor burns on his hands and face, as the fast spreading flames set fire to his boat. He managed to beat out the flames and his boat received only minor damage.

Mr. Dawson along with Ronald Boyce, Ralph Arsenault and Joseph Perry, and the nightwatchman, Carlyle Trainor, cut loose several of the threatened fishing boats and pushed them clear of the flaming area.

The film of gasoline is believed to have been laid on the water from leaking gasoline tanks in the boats which were being repaired by the fishermen.

The Tignish fire department which has been enjoying a long period of inactivity, was quickly on the scene and helped remove the danger. This was the third time the fire engine has been out in the last week.

Grass fires at the homes of Roy McLeod and Carlyle Trainor were extinguished without damage.

HALIFAX (CP) — The weather office says moist air will continue to flow into the Maritime district giving considerable cloud, coastal fog and a few showers.

Regional forecasts:

Halifax and vicinity, South Shore, Annapolis Valley: Overcast with coastal fog and drizzle ending late this morning, then cloudy with a few sunny intervals and a few widely separated showers; not much change in temperature; southwest winds 20. Low-high at Halifax 43 and 58. Yarmouth 45 and 63, Kentville 48 and 73.

Northern Nova Scotia, Eastern Shore, Cape Breton: Cloudy with a few sunny intervals and a few widely separated showers; a little cooler; south winds 15 shifting in afternoon to west 15. Low-high at New Glasgow and Stan Lacey and Cecilia Smith, both of the London Little Theatre.

The London's presentation of N.F. Simpson's One Way Pendulum, which opened the competition, won the festival plaque for the best presentation in English, excluding the winner, of the DDF Final Trophy.

The same award for the best presentation in French, went to La Jeune Comedie of Montreal for its performance of Claude Jasmin's Le Veau Dort— the only Canadian -written play in this year's festival.

HONOR PLAYWRIGHT

Mr. Jasmin received the Massey award for the best Canadian playwright in the final festival.

Le Veau Dort also won the Sir Barry Jackson Trophy for the best presentation of a full-length Canadian play and the Martha Allen Trophy for the best visual presentation at the final festival.

Claude Michade of La Jeune Comedie won a $200 award offered by La Fondation des Amis de l'Art for a young actor or actress unler 25 years of age.

Another $200 scholarship to the Banff School of Fine Arts went to Jerry Markle of the Sudbury Little Theatre. He played the younger brother in Nash's The Rainmaker.

Mr. Markle is one of four young Canadian actors nominated to audition June 9 for a $2,000 scholarship to the National Theatre School.

Before announcing the winners, adjudicator Pierre Lefevre, the director-actor from Strasbourg, France, who judged the festival 10 years ago in Victoria, said the quality of the productions was proof that the DDF is still serving Canadian theatre.

IMPRESSED BY PROGRESS

Earlier in the week, Mr. Lefevre said he was particularly impressed by the progress made in play direction in Canads during the past 10 years.

He said "the direction this year seems to reflect better rehearsal methods and a better understanding of the importance of directing the work of actors."

He said the choice of plays for the festival this year indicated "a more mature taste" than that of 10 years ago and that "the general level of performance was much higher."

He also discovered a much more open attitude to criticism and said 10 years ago, some groups were ready to fight if criticized.

The winners of last year's festival, the Travelling Players of Halifax, did not impress Mr. Lefevre with their performance last Thursday of Arthur Laurents' Invitation to a March.

The adjudicator said the company failed to achieve the "lightness and slickness" of acting required by the three-act comedy of maaners.

Next year's festival will be held in Charlottetown.

RECEIVES SCHOLARSHIP

Mr. Gobell, a student at the University of Sherbrooke, also received a $3,000 scholarship, awarded by the province of Quebec, for the most promising actor, director or set designer whose mother tongue is French.

Daphne McCoy of Toronto, who played Emily in the Barn Players of Broadview YMCA's presentation of Thornton Wilder's Our Town, won the Nella Jefferis award for the best leading actress.

The Saturday Night awards for the best supporting male and female roles were won by Goshen 43 and 68, Sydney 45 and 68.

Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick: Cloudy with a few sunny intervals and a few widely separated showers; a little colder; northwest winds 15. Low-high at Charlottetown 46 and 68, Moncton and Fredericton 45 and 68, Saint John 43 and 65, Edmundston and Campbellton 43 and 58.
