Oppose Union With Communists

(C. F. By Guardian's Special Wire)
 TORONTO, April 10—The Ontario section of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, meeting here in a two-day session, spent most of this afternoon's session arguing a proposal for a United Front with Communists and other organizations. Indications were the proposal would be defeated.

Delegates from all parts of the province came to Toronto for the gathering which was opened by an address by J. S. Woodsword, C.C.F. member of parliament for Winnipeg North Centre and national chairman. An address by President John Mitchell and reading of reports occupied the morning session.

VIOLETS FOR THE PRIME MINISTER

There is much discussion being waged at present as to the inevitable place occupied by the violet in the English countryside and in literature. It is said to have been Shakespeare's favorite flower—elaborate research having been indulged in on the subject.

We in Scotland know less of the violet, since our climate is less congenial, but the dog-violets are beloved of all wood-wanderers, and who that has shelled the haunting perfume of white violets can ever forget it? It is said to be the most enduring of all.

Mindful of the consolation of the flowers, surely, as of the arduous life of a Prime Minister in these days of crisis, someone sent Mr. Baldwin last week-end a box containing handful of violets. They were carefully tied into bunches in three colours—mauve, white, and blue. They came without any name, and were placed in Mr. Baldwin's study.

Derailment Near Moncton Causes Tie-up

MONCTON, N. B., April 10—A freight train derailment at Calhoun's siding, about 10 mi. east of here, resulted in a general tie-up of freight and passenger traffic on the C. N. R. main line this morning. Eight cars were derailed at six a. m. and the line was not cleared until after one o'clock this afternoon. A few of the cars were badly damaged. No person was injured.

As a result of the blockade, the eastbound Maritime express and the Prince Edward Island express were held at Moncton until 2:45 p. m. while the westbound Ocean Limited from Halifax to Montreal and the train from Prince Edward Island were held east of Calhoun's until 2:50 p. m. arriving here over an hour behind schedule. Two freight trains enroute to Moncton were also delayed, while eastbound freight were held here until the line was cleared.

HEALTH

ANAEMIA PROBLEMS

In the blood there are millions of red blood cells. The haemoglobin of the red blood cells carries oxygen to the tissues. Many of the foods which we eat contain carbon. To burn carbon and so produce energy requires oxygen. The carbon dioxide formed as a by-product is carried away by the haemoglobin to the lungs where it is released and oxygen is again picked up.

A decrease in the number of red blood cells, or a falling-off in the amount of haemoglobin, is called anaemia. Anaemia may result from failure to build new red blood cells rapidly enough to replace the loss from wear and tear. This is the most common cause. The average life of a red blood cell is not much over a month. The need for replacement on a large scale is constant.

Destruction of red blood cells may be so excessive that even if the renewals are made at the normal rate, they are not sufficient to maintain the normal healthy balance between loss and replacement.

Anaemia follows upon haemorrhage. The loss of blood is made up in time, and recovery is assured if the loss is arrested. Bleeding commonly gives rise to fears which are unfounded as sudden deaths from haemorrhage are unusual.

Anaemia interferes with the carrying of oxygen to the tissues, and as the oxygen is required if the carbon of foods is to be used, insufficient oxygen means a lack of energy and heat. The heart will beat faster in an attempt to make the blood circulate more rapidly and so compensate, in some measure, for the deficiency. If the anaemia becomes worse, there will be shortness of breath and, perhaps, fainting and dizziness.

There is no short cut to the treatment of anaemia. Just because iron is indicated in some forms of anaemia, where the haemoglobin is deficient, does not mean that iron is helpful in other forms of the disease. Again, to say that the proper use of liver restores the pernicious anaemia case to normal does not imply that liver therapy has merit in the treatment of other anaemias.

You cannot tell from the appearance of a person as to whether or not he is anaemic. The color of the skin depends upon the thickness of the skin and the amount of blood in the superficial blood vessels. Pale persons are not necessarily anaemic, and those of good color may be. An examination of the blood itself answers the question.

A diagnosis which reveals the nature of the anaemia must be the first step towards securing proper treatment. Indiscriminate dosing never accomplishes any good, whereas skilled treatment offers much either as a means of cure or else to hold the condition in check.

Questions concerning health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 184 College St., Toronto, will be answered personally by letter.

Murder Theory Advanced In Triple Deaths

(C. F. By Guardian's Special Wire)
 NAMUR, Que., April 11—All immediate hope of finding the remains of a third victim of Namur's mysterious Holy Week tragedy was abandoned today as local authorities awaited the results of an autopsy on the bodies of Leon LeClair and Joseph Dudevior.

The bodies, recovered from the smouldering ashes of LeClair's home Tuesday, were taken to Montreal today by Detective Eprhaim Lariviere of the Quebec Provincial Police. They will be examined by medico-legal experts and the result of the examination will either confirm or weaken the local theory that a brutal murder was committed in the lonely house.

The detective who spent two days in the village, emphasized no one was under suspicion in connection with the deaths of LeClair, Dudevior, and possibly Mrs. Dudevior who is missing.

COLOURED COOKERS

Colour fashions dominate the latest cookers. Blue, yellow, or dirty pink are popular colours and are being used on every type of cooker.

It is only recently that the sole way of ringing the changes of the black cooker was by the use of mottled enamels. New and improved ways have now been found of applying enamel to cast-iron.
