Former Rector Addresses St. Dunstan's Graduates

The contrast between the pagan conception of man as a material thing and the Christian conception of man as a child of God, was emphasized yesterday by Right Reverend Monsignor J. A. Murphy, D.D., D.P., in his address to the graduates at the 96th commencement exercises of Saint Dunstan's University.

Monsignor Murphy, a former Rector of the University, warned his listeners that only when seen in relation to God, his first beginning and his last end, does man become a human being. It is from God that he has his immortal soul and his human personality which are the only reasons for the dignity and rights which are his.

"If we accept this Christian view of the nature of man," continued Dr. Murphy, "we get the human, decent, livable world for which we are striving. But we must accept it with all its implication. Lip service is not enough. Ideas must be translated into action. We must accept it fully and without reservation. We must act upon it, we must live it. On this most fundamental of issues there can be no compromise, no accepting of that part of it which redounds to our special advantage, and convenient ignoring of that part which may not. We must be either Christians or pagans, free men or slaves."

Vigilance The Watchword

The speaker reminded the class of 1950 that graduation ceremonies are necessarily formal, yet full of meaning. After elaborating on this point he went on to say:

"We of the western world are proud of our heritage, our Christian way of life. If we are to preserve it, vigilance, not complacency, should be our watchword. We see, and thank God that we do, much kindness, much courage, much charity. But we also see the same greed and selfishness and personal ambition, the same pride, hatred and injustice that have gradually but relentlessly corrupted other civilizations, held inviolable as our own. We see too a denial of moral standards, a worship of the material and a consequent disregard of spiritual values."

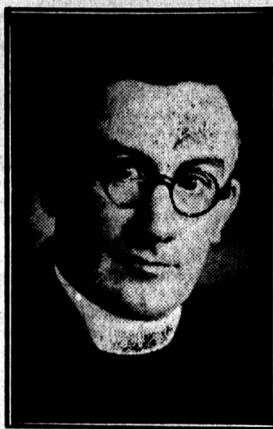

"Those evils evident to all who can see are to a great extent the effects of a growing secularism which we have allowed to invade business, public affairs and even the field of education. The late Sir E. W. Beatty, as Chancellor of McGill University, in an address to the undergraduates, paid well merited praise to the material and intellectual progress that had been made in our western world. He tells me he is a worldly man of business and that material and intellectual progress are as important today as they ever were but adds these significant words: 'What we can tell you is where lay our sinning fault. We never failed in courage or in energy. We never lacked for skill. We stressed too much the qualities of body and mind. We gave too little thought to those spiritual values by which all human progress must be weighed.'

Opposing Ideas

"But total disregard of and open antagonism to spiritual values find full expression in the ideologies of atheistic Communism now threatening Christian civilization. Two opposing ideas involving the nature of man are already at war and it is in the realm of ideas that the real danger lies. One is pagan, the other is Christian. This clash of ideas arises from the false and the true conception of the nature of man.

"Is man merely a material thing, or is he a being possessing the dignity of a human personality? That is the basis of the conflict. Man has a body, and thus far he is also a material thing with all the limitations that belong to that state. But man has also a soul that is capable of thinking and willing. It is precisely this ability to reason, to choose freely a course of action, that distinguishes man as a person, the image of God, a creature with an immortal soul and consequently an immortal destiny.

"If, as atheistic Communism teaches, man is only another material thing, he may be treated as any other material thing is treated. He may be regimented, coerced, oppressed and even liquidated as is being done today. In such a world a man may with perfect logic be made a slave of the state or of other powerful men; for he is only a thing and has no rights of his own. In such a world freedom is an illusion, a word without meaning. In such a world the only law is compulsion and the only right is might.

"Does such a conception of the nature of man really exist today? The political results of that view are all too evident in Russia and her satellite countries—the brutal subjection of materially weaker states, government by secret police, the persecution of religious groups, fake trials, the liquidation of opponents, the suppression of free thought and free speech—in a word utter disregard of all human rights, and what we should particularly observe above such a situation is this: that disregard of human rights is natural, logical and unavoidable if man is only a material thing for then he has no rights.

Need Of Leadership

"You as graduates enjoy a certain preeminence that places you in a position to show the full worth of the Christian ideas and to fill the crying need of leadership by propagating those ideas into the social, economic, and political life of your country. Every modern movement, political or otherwise, good or bad, has centered around a leader.

"People love a leader and will follow him even though he may lead them away from the promised land. Years before the last global war, Germany had Hitler, Italy had Mussolini, and Russia still has her idol—Stalin. We in the dark days of the war had our own beloved Churchill whose daring and defiant leadership inspired and welded together the peoples everywhere in the British Commonwealth of Nations. Under his inspiring leadership victory was snatched from apparent defeat. Now you do not hope to become national leaders of that type but you can and should give effective leadership in your own way in the community where you live and in the public life of your country. That is your responsibility."

"The speaker went on to point out that ambition is a natural virtue which, if harnessed to the chariot of the supernatural, leads to great perfection. "An ambition to make the best of your opportunities in all things, both temporal and spiritual, is not a vice but a virtue, just as self-confidence, which gives strength and determination not to be overcome by difficulties and trials, is not presumption but a reasonable trust in the powers God has given you. Make good use of such powers.

"As I look upon this select group of young men and young women I know you do not want to be frustrated by a false humility. I know, no matter what your course in life may be, you will not be satisfied with the mediocre. You will not be content with the lowly foothills but will want to climb, not for worldly fame, the rugged mountain of preeminence to hold aloft the torch of truth to brighten the way of others who have not had your opportunities."

The speaker also appealed eloquently to those who felt the call to devote their lives exclusively to the service of God.

He urged all graduates to remember "that in the arena of your soul there are battles to be fought, both intellectual and moral, that will challenge the courage, the valour and the daring of youth, battles that really count, battles that will shape your own destiny and the world of tomorrow. Whatever may be the role you play in life hold fast to the high and noble ideals you now cherish so much. Your fidelity to them may cost you much but your surrender of them will cost you more. A good conscience will be your sure reward for 'only the heart without stain knows perfect ease.' And when your fidelity to them is taxed almost to the breaking point and the spectre of indecision begins to haunt your bewildered minds, have recourse to God by prayer."

Chief MacArthur Speaks On Traffic Safety Rules

A timely address on traffic safety "do's" and "don'ts" was given by Chief of Police C. W. MacArthur at the weekly luncheon of the Charlottetown Rotary Club yesterday.

Rotarians R. H. Rogers and Gordon Hughes presided at the luncheon. The guests included Rotarians A. H. Brittain, Montreal, Kenneth M. Smith, of Leaside, Ont., Dr. Tom Acker, Halifax, and Major Alex Knox, Saint John.

After reviewing briefly the objectives of Highway Traffic Safety Week now in progress, Chief MacArthur said that as the control of traffic in Charlottetown is the responsibility of the City Police, as head of that force he welcomed this campaign as being of material assistance to the Police in advertising the necessity for the observance of traffic laws. "Many citizens have contended that the observance of City by-laws, as far as traffic was concerned, was lax and that stricter enforcement was in order," Chief MacArthur continued. "We as Police officers do not appreciate this condition and would be much happier to hear that our driving and observance was comparable or better than is found in other places.

Stiffer Enforcement

"With this in mind we are undertaking and have been for some weeks a more rigid enforcement. This calls for drastic action and the payment of penalties, but apparently is producing results. Certain by-laws have been passed, are law, and it is our duty to obey them. As previously mentioned they were passed in the good faith that they facilitated better driving and lessened the chances of financial loss and bodily injuries.

"There is no doubt that one of the greatest hazards on our roads is the operation of automobiles that are not in good condition, particularly as to brakes and lights. Let us always make sure that the vehicle we drive is in proper condition, with all lights burning, if operated at night, and with good brakes at all times.

"Of next or equal importance is the skill necessary to operate competently. There are a great number of persons who still believe that operating motor vehicles is so simple that a child can do so. But to operate so efficiently that the driver can, at all times cope with emergencies is the crucial test, and calls for skill, and complete co-ordination of mind and muscle. Competent drivers avoid the snares and pitfalls placed for them by inexperienced and careless drivers. Quick action and thinking may save the life of some person. Drivers must always realize the power for destruction that lies in the machine he handles, if driven carelessly or inefficiently. "Thirdly we emphasize the same observance of all laws that are already in force. Time and study was put into their passing, all with the object of making highways safe. So let us obey these laws in every way."

In Brief

Some of the most important by-laws of the city in respect to vehicular traffic the speaker summed up under the following "Don'ts" and "Do's":

- Don't Stop within an intersection.
- Stop or park on cross walks.
- Park on the sidewalk.
- Don't park within 25 feet of an intersecting street.
- Park within 10 feet of a fire hydrant.
- Park in no parking areas. There is a reason for these signs.
- Park within 5 feet of a crosswalk.
- Don't use glaring headlights within the city; dim your lights.
- Don't double park or block or obstruct other vehicles.
- Don't make "U" turns in the city's traffic.
- Don't reverse or back your car over crosswalks: Be sure you know what is behind you.
- Do's Stop fully at "stop signs."
- Drive to the right and as near the curb as reasonably possible.
- Park your car headed in the direction of traffic: That is on your right.
- Yield the right of way to pedestrians at regular street crossings.
- Yield the right of way to the car on your right who has entered the intersection before you.
- Give a visible signal of your intention to stop or change direction.

Chief MacArthur also dealt with safety rules for bicycles, and concluded by emphasizing that almost all traffic accidents could have been avoided by proper care on someone's part.

Do You Worry About Losing Your Hair?

Neglect, Not Heredity, Most Frequent Cause—Experts Say

To keep your hair abundant and good-looking, you must have a clean, healthy scalp. Too many people wash hair carelessly and neglect giving the scalp the thorough, pore-deep cleansing it needs. They fail to remove the almost invisible film made up of the natural scalp oil and dried skin, combined with perspiration, dust, smoke and grime—which seals itself over your scalp and cuts off nourishment from the hair. Dandruff and an excess of falling hair often result.

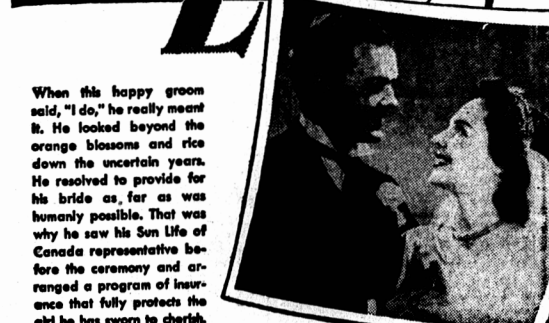

There is one sure way to ensure a clean scalp—just thoroughly massage in Fitch Dandruff Remover Shampoo; then add water. Fitch's creamy, stimulating lather works down pore-deep, right into the thousands of tiny hair openings on your scalp. Fitch Dandruff Remover Shampoo quickly dissolves and washes away all dirt and
