MODERNIZE SCOUT TESTS
Eight new badges and modernization of the basic tests feature a new edition of the Boy Scouts' Association "Policy, Organization and Rules" for Canada. Just off the presses, the new "P.C. and R." represents the first major revision of the regulations in 10 years and necessitates the re-writing of most of Canada's Scouting textbooks.

Among the new Proficiency Badges are the Aircraft Modeller, Dog Handler, Hiker, Mountaineer, Rope Spinner, Stamp Collector, Venturer and Woodworker. Twenty-five thousand copies of this edition have been printed. From February 4th to 23rd, Boy Scout Councils in many Canadian centres will conduct their annual financial campaign. Colourful posters featuring a Boy Scout stepping through a maple leaf, with the slogan "For Canada," are being used.

While attending High School in Toronto, Johnny Wayne and Frank Shuster, who enjoy top-flight popularity as radio comedians, made their debut in a Boy Scout show. The success of their teamwork carried them triumphantly through Varsity into the Army Show in Canada and overseas. They realized a long deferred ambition when they got into radio shortly after being demobilized from World War II.

Cubmaster Owen Cook of the Fifth Brantford (Ont.) Wolf Cub Pack recently was privileged to invest three brothers, all the same age, as Tenderfoot Cubs. George, John and Donald Robinson, eight-year-old triplets, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Melville Robinson, were added to Canada's steadily-increasing Scout membership.

Zahner-Henley Wedding

On a wedding trip, to New Orleans, La.—from there to Ft. Sill, Okla.—are Mr. and Mrs. Kenyon Benedict Zahner, Jr., whose marriage took place at 4:30 P. M. on December 26, 1951, at the First Presbyterian Church in Birmingham, Alabama.

The former Jane Linn Henley, the bride, was given in marriage by her father, Capt. Courtney S. Henley, and was served by her sister, Keir Henley as maid of honor.

The wedding took place at the First Presbyterian Church with Dr. Edward V. Ramage officiating. Wedding music was presented by Mr. Myrtle Jones Steele, organist, and the honor maid, Keir Henley, vocalist.

The church was decorated with white lilies and chrysanthemums interspersed with green smilax and banded with palms and ferns. White tapers burned in candelabra.

Carrying a bouquet of lilies of the valley and white Phalaenopsis orchids centered with a Cattleya orchid, the bride wore a ballerina-length dress of white Chantilly lace over satin. The lace bodice of her dress, jacketed in lace was caught to a bouffant tulle skirt.

Her sister Keir wore a ballerina length, bouffant-skirted dress of lightweight coral crepe over taffeta. Her dress was designed with a shirred bodice and matching stole, over a bouffant skirt. Tied with coral satin ribbon and interspersed with blue iris, the Rosell roses in her Dresden bouquet matched the coral of her dress.

The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Kenyon Benedict Zahner, wore a dress of two-colored imported black lace and flesh-pink net, attached to a bodice of marquisette. Her matching hat was trimmed with roses.

Best man and ushers were Robert Zahner III, Durham N. C. and Cadet C. A. Niblack Jr., U. S. Military Academy at West Point, N. Y.; Dr. Lamar Agar and John C. Henley III, the bridegroom's cousin.

After the wedding Capt. Henley entertained with a reception at the home on Shades Crest-rd. In the receiving line with the wedding party was Mrs. Edward Payson Lawton, Atlanta, grandmother of the bridegroom. She wore black silk crepe and a velvet hat clipped with amethysts and pearls.

Research Improves Butter-Quality

A high level of quality in Canadian creamery butter has already been achieved with the introduction of scientific research in butter manufacturing problems and further improvements are certain to follow, according to C.A. Gibson, in the Division of Animal Husbandry, Federal Department of Agriculture.

Although the dairy industry is one of the oldest in the world—the art of butter making was practised more than 5000 years ago—it is only with the establishment of creameries and factory-scale dairies in the last 75 years that real progress has been made in achieving the present standard of quality in Canadian butter.

Considerable improvement is still desirable in the not so easily definable field of butter flavour, where good-quality Canadian butter has a rating of 39-40 on a scale showing a maximum of 45 points. As elusive and artificial as the concept of popular flavour-acceptance may be, there are a number of deciding factors that may cause flavour deterioration in butter.

"Surface taint," for instance, is an objectionable flavour defect which sometimes develops at room temperature over the entire exposed surface of a piece of butter in the course of a few hours. Being caused by a strain of micro-organisms present in the watch, "surface taint" can be prevented by chlorinating the water used in butter production.

Chemical oxidation can be delayed by eliminating all equipment made of copper and replacing it with that made of stainless steel. Copper, even in small quantities, is known to accelerate the occurrence of flavour defects in butter termed metallic, storage and oxidized.

Certain enzymes present in the milk can be the cause of flavour defects in butter. The activity of these enzymes can be kept at a minimum by immediate separation of the cream after milking and cooling each lot of cream separately before adding it to the common storage tank.

Then there are flavour defects imparted to the butter through weed-contaminated feed consumed by the herds. The dairy has little control over these defects, except by rejecting those milk and cream shipments in which flavour contamination is excessive.

The most recent development in the dairy industry is the continuous butter-making machine. Its main advantage lies in the 40 per cent reduction of labour cost. Compared to the conventional cost of 7 cents, the manufacturing cost with a continuous butter-making machine is about 5 cents per pound of butter.

IN MEMORIAM MRS. HARRY S. HARVEY

At the Prince Edward Island Hospital, on January 22, the ninth nineteenth hundred fifty-two, God called to her eternal reward Mrs. Annie L. Harvey, in her seventy-fourth year, widow of the late Harry S. Harvey, who predeceased her five months ago. The late Mrs. Harvey was born in Hamilton, Prince Edward Island, daughter of the late John M. and Elizabeth Clark. After her marriage she moved to Linkletter Road where she resided until a few years ago when she and her husband moved to Charlottetown to reside with their daughter, Mrs. Milton Carter, Mrs. Carter and her brother, Lincoln, who was called home twice in so short a time are feeling deeply in the loss of a Christian mother. Mrs. Harvey was loved by all who knew her and this was shown in the many kind letters and cards received.

Besides her two children, (Letha) Mrs. Milton Carter and Lincoln of Hudson New York, she is survived by three grand children and three great grand-children.

Services were conducted by Rev. M. D. Dunbar, and Rev. William Weale, Pastor of the Summerisle Church of Christ of which Mrs. Harvey was a true and faithful member.

The pallbearers were Frank Linkletter, Emery Linkletter, Ernest Callbeck, Keith Callbeck, Brenton Clark and Keir Woodside.

Squeezing Out Farmers At Montreal

Federal Government protection against import of fats for butter substitutes and a national milk-in-school policy like England's were urged by Gilbert McMillan of the Dairy Farmers of Canada.

Mr. McMillan was addressing the opening session of the four-day annual meeting of the organization. Affiliated to the group are organizations representing more than 400,000 dairy farmers in every province except Newfoundland.

Main complaint of the $750,000,000 dairy industry is that it is a "squeeze play" between higher costs beyond the producers' control and consumer opposition to higher milk prices. It blames this on a dwindling labor force and shifts in the use of dairy products.

On the question of butter substitutes made out of imported vegetable fats, he urged members to press for uniform legislation in all provinces.

"We have a perfect right to demand from the Federal authorities, who have control of tariff and excise taxes, the same protection as is readily afforded some minor industries affecting far fewer people," he said.

"This matter must be vigorously pressed before the next budget is brought down. It may be hard to convince the harassed housewife that we cannot sell her our goods at a lower price, but it should not be impossible to show her the connection between our position and her husband's pay cheque."

Cheaper milk cannot be expected as long as the wage bill and the cost of feed stay at present levels, he said.
