The university community honoured 179 junior, sophomore, and freshmen students at the U.P.E.I. Academic Awards Dinner on Thursday, October 3. The Master of Ceremonies for this event was Verner Smitheram, Dean of Arts, and the Address was delivered by a former U.P.E.I. Honour graduate, Derek Key.

The reason for the awards dinner was to give credit to those students who had not yet graduated, and, therefore, were not honoured at Convocation last spring. The academically exceptional first, second and third-year students deserve to be recognized for their efforts and they should be proud of them. The requirements for becoming an honour student at U.P.E.I. is to attain an overall average of at least 80% in five courses.

Twenty-five awards were given out to students who had excelled in their fields of study: Peter Martin, Charlottetown; Barbara Brewster, Sherwood; David Adams, North Milton; Shirlee Anne Campbell, Central Bedeque; Kimberley Feener, Sherbrooke;

Tony Lai, Charlottetown; Lorraine Henderson, Gaspereaux; David Harris, Summerside; Michelle Deighan, Emerald; Angele Hache, St. Chrysostome; Philip Arsenault, Mount Stewart; Angele Foley, Charlottetown; Alan MacEachern, New Argyle; Marjorie Pound, Springvale; Kara Woolfrey, Gander, NFLD; Jill MacLeod, Charlottetown; Patrick Lemieux, Charlottetown; Shirlee Curtis South Milton; Mary Koronko, Summerside; Ralp Birt, Charlottetown; Shirley MacLeod, Uigg; Melody Stone, Hunter River; Douglas Beaton, Alexandra; Randy Sterns, Tea Hill; James Moore, Charlottetown; Elizabeth Wendt, Charlottetown.

Outbreak of thefts on campus

By Jonathan Orlowski

Chief of Security, A. J. MacLeod, says there has already been eleven reported thefts of wallets and purses, and the ransacking of one car on campus since the semester began.

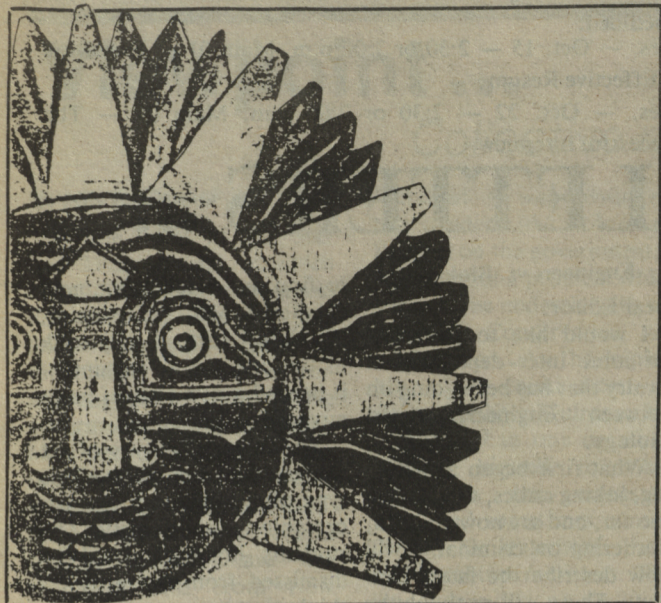

MacLeod is confident that it's just a matter of time before the suspect is apprehended.

"With all the thefts on campus there is a possibility we can identify the suspect soon." It's a matter of time before we or the Charlottetown Police pick the person up, because the suspect has been hitting other areas around Charlottetown, says MacLeod adding, "Campus staff are not under any suspicion."

MacLeod stated that he is concerned that staff or students don't notify security when a theft or act of vandalism occurs. He says security also responds to complaints made by phone.

Other problems facing security are parking violations on campus. "Vehicles parked on the green areas around the parking lot will be issued one warning ticket. On the second violation the vehicle will be towed away at the owner's expense."

CARAVAN success

The CARAVAN sale which was held last week-end was a success.

CARAVAN was a sale of handicrafts from co-operatives in the developing nations. All profits from the sale are channeled back into the co-operatives which produced the goods. This project was sponsored by the World University Services of Canada Local Committee here at UPEI and was made possible through the volunteer work of over a dozen students and some Charlottetown residents.

The total gross sales for the three days were in excess of $2100.00. This represents the event's great support, although it was a little less than organizers Rob Kelley and Joe Byrne expected.

This was the first year in quite some time that UPEI has hosted CARAVAN. It is expected that the Local Committee will stay active and continue to support this project in the future. Continuity would ensure the annual success of CARAVAN.

The CARAVAN was only one of the projects that WUSC-UPEI expects to support this year. Plans are in the works to increase awareness of development issues through participation in seminars, conferences, and visits to local schools, businesses and various service organizations.

Anyone who is interested in making a contribution to WUSC is most welcome to attend the meetings of the Local Committee, or get in touch by dropping a note to P.O. Box 82, UPEI, 550 University Ave., Ch'town, CIA 4P3.

Any involvement is appreciated. The next meeting will be held Thursday, Oct. 10, at 7:00 p.m. in the Economics Lounge 4th floor Main. Meetings are guaranteed to last no longer than one hour.

Student $

By Lynn Keating

Student Union budget and salary increases received the most debate during the student council meeting last Sunday night. John Orr, Student Union treasurer said, "This year there's not much breathing room in the budget. It would have been nice to have between $5,000 to $10,000 more."

Orr says these budget restrictions won't hurt existing student services.

Orr is referring to the 1985-86 student union budget. Although there are no cuts in this year's budget there are no increases in monies given to societies.

One line item missing from this year's budget is special funds for groups wanting extra money for special projects or trips. Some council members suggested this special fund should have been included in this year's budget. Although the budget was passed in full, the decision to omit the special fund is "not carved in stone".

Orr alluded to a possible student fee increase next year, but he says if the Panther Lounge is successful next summer, this measure would not be needed.

A long overdue salary increase of 13% was granted to the General Manager. The salary has not been increased for over three years.
