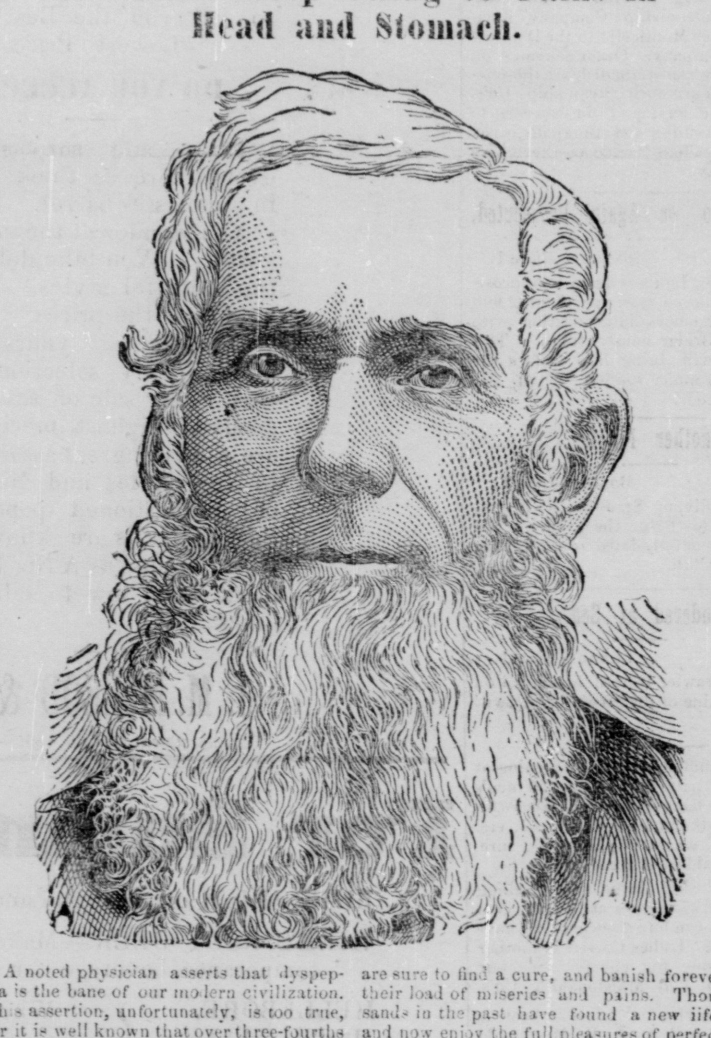
PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

Cures Mr. James McCord, of Prescott, Ont.

Before Using the Compound he was Unable to Obtain Sleep Owing to Pains in Head and Stomach.



A noted physician asserts that dyspepsia is the bane of our modern civilization. This assertion, unfortunately, is too true, for it is well known that over three-fourths of our Canadian people suffer from some form of stomach derangement that must develop into serious and distressing ailments, unless the utmost vigilance and care is exercised.

This modern curse of our refined and boasted civilization is brought on by a vast variety of causes. The following are amongst the commonest:—Nervousness, despondency, exhaustion of the vital powers, want of exercise, sedentary habits, too long continued mental application, irregularities in diet, late hours and excesses of various kinds.

The terrible results show themselves quickly. Distress after eating, headaches, bloating, pain in pit of stomach, rising of food, want of appetite, coated tongue, bad taste, sluggish and torpid bowels. Prudence and wisdom should direct all dyspeptic sufferers to that fountain of health, Paine's Celery Compound, where sufferers are sure to find a cure, and banish forever their load of miseries and pains. Thousands in the past have found a new life, and now enjoy the full pleasures of perfect digestion, sweet sleep and rest, and sound bodily health, after using Paine's Celery Compound.

Mr. James McCord, of Prescott, Ont., whose portrait appears above, recently sent the following testimony:—

"For over five years I have been a sufferer from dyspepsia, and have used a great variety of medicine, without any benefits or good results. I was advised to use your Paine's Celery Compound, and now, having just about finished three bottles, I feel it my duty to announce to the public the great benefits I have received. For over a year I was unable to sleep at night, owing to pains in my head and stomach, and my appetite was gone; now I can sleep well, and I am always ready for my meals, thanks to your Paine's Celery Compound. I cannot recommend it too highly to those suffering from dyspepsia."

A CHRONICLE OF ITEMS OF INTEREST TO THE PUBLIC.

Secrets Will Out—Jump of a Vessel—Curious Sport Indulged in by the People of Far-off Siam—"Western Pete's" Conundrum.

"Now, you must not let this go any further," said Watts to McDaivd after retailing a choice bit of scandal.

"Oh, certainly not," said McDavid. "How did you happen to hear it?"

"My wife told me. She is just like any woman—can't keep a secret, of course."

A Vessel's Jump.

The spectacle of a steamship taking a flying leap down a sheer descent of sixteen feet is an unusual one and may be fairly described as "thrilling." This is what a big steamer did on the Manchester ship canal last week—smashed its way through a pair of gates weighing 300 tons each, sending one to the bottom and wrenching the other off its sockets, and itself took a leap of sixteen feet to the next level.

He Knew His Business.

In one of the interior towns of Michigan reside two lawyers who have a weakness which manifests itself at periodical intervals. It is only in a mild form, though, so their friends rather take it as a joke than as a serious matter, especialy as both cases of them are pretty well on in years. One night they happened to meet on their way home, and though one shied and tried to keep in the shade, the other woudn't have it that way. It was evident that he wanted something, for he tackled his legal friend without ceremony. "Say, Charlie," he said, "is that you?"

"Course it is," was the response. "Didn't s'pose I was going around in disguise, did you? What you want?"

"Want to know what time it is, that's all."

It was two o'clock in the morning and the man in the shadow of the street knew it, and appreciated the fact.

"Well," he said slowly, so as to make the dignity of the occasion more apparent, "I decline to tell you. You ought to know better, sir, than to try to get me to answer a question that would incriminate me," and he passed along in the farther shadows, leaving his friend standing in a dazed condition.

Western Pete's Conundrum.

Half a dozen shoe drummers met at the Palmer House the other evening and were talking about country trade and incidents of their journey. "Western Pete," as he is called by his friends, offered to stand treat all around if anyone could give a correct solution of a little incident that had been told to him by one of his country customers, and this is the story that Western Pete told:

A man entered a shoe store in a country town, bought a pair of $2 shoes and tendered a $10 bill in payment. The shoe dealer had no change and sent his boy to the grocery next door. He received it and returned his customer $8 in change.

Half an hour later the grocer entered the shoe store and wanted his $10 back, as the $10 bill he had received from the shoe man was a counterfeit. He got it of course, and now how much was the shoe dealer out of pocket? Every one of the drummers had his own opinion. Some said the shoe man was out $18. Some said $10 and others claimed he was out $28. Who was right? The matter is not settled, and Western Pete is still waiting for his drink.

FISH TRAINED TO FIGHT.

A Curious Sport Indulged in by the People of Far-Off Siam.

The two fish are placed in the same bottle, says the London Field. They proceed to take each other's measure, shoulder up to each other in schoolboy fashion, and back and push around the "ring," the small fins vibrating rapidly all the time, and each little being quivering with excitement and wrath. This goes on for some minutes, until as the spectors are growing impatient, one fish suddenly flips his head around, makes a dart, and a considerable dent in his adversary's tail shows at once that he has got home. Henceforth there is no hesitaion until one or the other cries "peccavi." In regular fish fights, on which money depends, the battle is continued nntil one fish turns tail and is chased around the bottle by the other. But this is usually an affair of an hour, and frequently of three or four. The pluck and determination of the fighters are wonderful. The ordinary stream fish do not evince nearly so much as these that have been bred and reared for the purpose. The tail is the part which shows most damage, for it is very easily torn, but a good grip on a side fin is more effective. When one pins the other by the nose a very exciting struggle takes place, the two lying fastened together like professional wrestlers, and then shaking each other back and forward with might and main.

They often seem extremely exhausted, but still fight on bravely, and sometimes it is a matter of difficulty to part them. They display considerable agility in evading their opponents' mouth, and also in suddenly twisting around and taking a piece out of his tail. In twenty minutes or so these appendages, which looked so brave and bright as they went into the fray, are torn to ribobns. The fish's general appearance after the fight suggests that of a sailing ship emerging from a hot action, with her canvas hanging in streamers, her topmasts shot away and her crew gasping for breath, but still ready to fight again. The combatants sometimes succumb to a long contest, but generally they only take superficial damage and are immediately ready to feed. After a match they are always rested a week or longer, according to the extent of their injuries, and most of the rents and cuts are repaired by nature. Enthusiastic owners often wager £6 or £7 or more on their favorites, and many people earn a little money in this way by breeding fighting fish and then backing them against others.

Wanted To Scare His Wife.

John Miller, of 415 West Thirty-fifth treet, was arraigned in the Jefferson Market police court yesterday on the charge of attempted suicide, says the New York Recorder.

At 10 o'clock on Friday night Mary Miller, John's young wife, rushed breathlessly into the West Thirty-seventh police station, screaming:

"My husband is going to hang himself! Come quick, oh! come quick, or he'll be dead!"

Policeman Pepertid hurried off with the woman, who explained that she had had a row with John, and he said he was going to kill himself.

"Why, he had the rope around his neck when I came out," sobbed she.

The door of the Millers' rooms was locked. The policeman forced it open. There was no light. There was the stillness of death, as the policeman and the wife groped their way toward the bedroom. This room was black as ink, and the frightened gasps of the woman blew out the first match which the policeman lit.

Another match flickered for a minute, the gas was lit, and what the policeman saw made him fall over on the bed and laugh until he cried. Even the sad-faced wife smiled.

There in the bed, sleeping comfortably, was John Miller, with four yards of clothesline coiled about his neck. The policeman woke him up. John's eyes blinked, but as he was fully dressed Pepertid yanked him out of bed and took him to the police station, where he was locked up. In court he denied that he had any desire to kill himself, only to scare his wife.

"She's been gettin' purty flip with her tongue lately, and needed quietin'."

Mrs. Miller refused to make a charge againts him, and he was discharged.

Unveiled Once a Year.

According to a dispatch from Constantinople, in consequence of the rumors circulated regarding alleged plots organized by the Mussulman element which is discontented with the present government and especially by the Softas, unusual precautions were taken on the occasion of the sultan's annual visit to the Mosque of Top-Cadou on the Old Seraglio Point on the 12th inst., says the London News. This day, the fifth of Ramaban, is the only one in the year on which the sultan, as commander of the faithful, leaves Yildiz Kiosk in order to perform the ancient ceremony of unveiling and exposing to public veneration the reliquary containing one of the prophet's mantles. It is stated that his majesty would this year have gladly delegated the duty to a representative, but such a course is impossible, as it is for the caliph alone to expose the relic with his own hands and be the first to kiss it in the presence of the imperial princess, the clergy and the high dignitaries of state.

As the sultan was thus obliged to perform the ceremony the greatest precautions were taken to prevent any untoward incident. Yildiz Kiosk was literally surrounded by a picked regiment of Albanian troops, who sedulously guarded all the entrances to the palace during the sultan's absence. The route to Old Seraglio Point was lined with soldiers through its entire length and on the day previous to the ceremony, which is known as that of Hirkal-Cherif (the kissing of the mantle), a special commission commanded by a naval captain and composed of ten officers, under the direct authority of the ministry of marine, made a minute inspection of the great bridge of Karakieul, which was, moreover, carefully guarded by sailors. The imperial procession, however, reached the mosque without incident.

FORGOT HIS OWN NAME.

But Jefferson Remembered That He Played Rip Van Winkle.

Some of the most amusing stories of the tricks of memory are thsose which illustrate the facility with which porper names escape the recollection. They elude you like greased pigs. "Then I had it on the end of my tongue," and "I recall your face, but for the life of me, I can't place you," are so commonly heard as to excite no comment. "By the way how do you spell your name?" inquired a young lady of an old acquaintance. She took this way of recalling, without embarrassment, a name that unaccountably escaped her recollection. "S-m-i-t-h," he replied to her confusion. It is related of Joe Jefferson that he was one day introduced to General Grant, an event that naturally impressed him strongly. Later in the day, according to the New York Mail and Express, he got into an elevator of the hotel at which they were both stopping. A short heavy set man also got in, lifted his hat to Jefferson, and made some remark. "I beg your pardon. Your face is familiar to me, but I cannot recall the name," said the actor. General Grant courteously gave his name. "I got off at the next floor, for fear I should ask him if he had ever been in the war," Jefferson said in relating this story. Worse than that, he once forgot his own name. He had gone into a postoffice at some small resort where he was unknown and asked the clerk if there was any mail for him. "What's the name?" asked the clerk. "Name? Oh, yes, certainly. Why, let me see! I play Rip Van Winkle, you know." "Jefferson," said he astonished and delighted clerk. "Yes, Jefferson, thanks," he answered, politely, as he received his mail and bowed himself out.

A Love For the Good.

A love of what is high, true and pure, often keeps out from the heart what is contrary to these. Even when the heart and habit are not in the right, if once the right be chosen, be aimed at, be praticed, the base, the false, the impure become gradually crowded out and eventually utterly supplanted. To destroy a bad habit, cultivate the good habit; but before this cultivation can be real, a love for the good must be felt. The hunger and the thirst for the good are the best assurances that the evil is to pass away. The great converts of history, as well as the humblest of those who have succeeded in rejecting the evil part of their lives and substituting good in its place, have been actuated by a sort of passion for the beauty of holiness, and this passion, deliberate, calm and patient though it may be, is sure to triumph in the end.

Getting Out of a Tight Place.

An old admiral, well known for his power of exaggeration, was describing a voyage at supper one night. "While criusing in the Pacific," he said, "we passed an island which was positively red with lobsters." "But," said one of the guests, smiling incredulously, "lobsters are not red until boiled." "Of course not," replied theundaunted admiral; "but this was a volcanic island with boiling springs!"

Florence Nightingale at Seventy-five.

On the fifteenth day of May Florence Nightingale celebrates her seventy-fifth birthday—as great a woman and as great a public benefactor, and as much of a heroine as she was forty years ago when she went forth from her comfortable home in England, not as a mere nurse to attend to the wants of the wounded and the dying British soldiers in the Crimea, but as a fearless organizer of a great field-hospital system, which the British War Office authorities, staff officers and generals had looked upon as a mere matter of afterthought in the preliminary arrangements of one of the most difficult campaigns in the history of the civilized world, writes Fitz Roy Gardener in an interesting illustrated sketch of "Florence Nightingale at Seventy-Five" in the May Ladies' Home Journal. No one had thought of the physical sufferings which would have to be undergone by the brave soldiers who were sent out with the prospect of a long winter campaign before them, without any adequate hospital arrangements having been made. When the great mistake was realized it was a woman who came forward to rectify the terrible blunder; and it may be easily imagined that obstacles were thrown in her way. But public opinion was soon aroused, and when Miss Florence Nightingale arrived at the Crimea with her band of nurses she had the whole of the British people at her back.

The Untrained Daughter.

Why should not a girl be taught bookkeeping and some of the more common business forms? writes Elizabeth Robinson Scovil in the May Ladies Home Journal Men pity, or laugh at, the business incapacity of the vast majority of women. It is often only due to want of proper instruction, and why should not this be supplied? Some girls have a passion for flowers, and plants thrive under their coaxing fingers without much apparent effort on their part. Such may find their vocations in the management of green houses. Raising flower seeds is a remunerative occupation. Choice pansy seed is sold at seven dollars an ounce at retail rare ones at double that price, and some varieties of verbenas at three dollars an ounce. Cut flowers always command a good price in winter, spring flowers at Easter and choice flowers all the year round.

The care of precious house plants for absent owners, supplying potted plants and ferns for the pecoration of dinner-table and drawing-rooms, help to swell the balance. Some florists not only supply the flowers but arrange them in their receptacles, charging an extra sum for the service.

A girl choosing this occupation must be content to learn her business thoroughly under an experienced florist, and should also have a little capital to begin with.

There are so many good technical schools now that there need be little difficulty in obtaining excellent instruction in whatever avocation it is wished to take up.

A BAD MAN.

He is the man who does not sympathize with his wife at this season.

All the jokers, they are all men of course, picture the woes of man in house-cleaning time.

But what about the women? Is it fun for them? You great strong healthy men, who kick because your comfort is a little disturbed. What about your wives? Don't you know that their more delicate organization suffers a hundredfold more? They have all the trouble and worry. It wears them out, and when they chance to be fretful you get into a dreadful temper, perhaps.

Don't do it. Go down to the drug store and get a supply of Hawker's nerve and stomach tonic, and take it home to your wife. It will make her healthy and strong and cheerful again. It is the greatest of all remedies for nervous prostration or general debility such as arises from overwork and worry. Hawker's nerve and stomach tonic is a perfect nerve restorer and invigorator, and blood and flesh builder, as well as a valuable stomach tonic and aid to digestion. It is especially adapted for the diseases peculiar to women, such as nervousness, nervous headaches, neuralgia, hysteria, pale and sallow complexions, suppressions, anaemia, despondency, loss of memory, or any nerve weakness of heart or brain arising from worry, overstrain of mind or body or excesses of any nature. It gives tone to the nerves and stomach, vigor to the mind and body and strength to the blood, restoring the bloom of health to the pale and delicate. It is for sale by all druggists and dealers at fifty cents a bottle, or six bottles for $2.50, and is manufactured by the Hawker Medicine Co. (Ltd.) St. John, N. B., and New York City.

EPPS'S COCOA
BREAKFAST—SUPPER.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided for our breakfast and supper a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.

Nervous Prostration

It is now a well established fact in medical science that nervousness is due to impure blood. Therefore the true way to cure nervousness is by purifying and enriching the blood. The great blood purifier is Hood's Sarsaparilla. Read this letter:

"For the last two years I have been a great sufferer with nervous prostration and palpitation of the heart. I was weak in my limbs and had smothered sensations. At last my physician advised me to try Hood's Sarsaparilla which I did, and I am happy to say that I am now strong and well. I am still using Hood's Sarsaparilla and would not be without it. I recommend it to all who are suffering with nervous prostration and palpitation of the heart." MRS. DALTON, 56 Alice St., Toronto, Ontario. Get Hood's, because Prominently in the public eye today. It is not what we say but what Hood's Sarsaparilla does that tells the story.

Hood's Pills act harmoniously with Hood's Sarsaparilla. 25c.

Books for Wrappers — For every 12 "Sunlight" wrappers sent to Lever Bros., Ltd., Toronto, a useful paper-bound book, 160 pages, will be sent . . . .

Merely a suggestion. Why pay a quarter for three cigars when you can get five "Something Goods" for the same money?—and they are equal to any ten center. We don't want you to take our word for it either, we only ask you to buy a quarter's worth and judge for yourself.

They are on sale everywhere, and are manufactured by the McKinnon's English Ointment.

MR. NEIL McKINNON,—

Dear Sir,—For five years I was a sufferer from eczema. Physicians could not help me. At last I bought a box of your Ointment, which helped me wonderfully, while two boxes made a complete cure. I can recommend it to all others similarly afflicted.
