The Bulldog.

To the uninitiated an affection for a bulldog seems a perversion of taste, for the bulldog is not symmetrical, is not graceful and sometimes appears to lack intelligence. About his intelligence, however, there is more than one opinion. About his affection and his loyalty there can be no doubt whatever. His affection knows neither hesitation, wavering or change, and he is loyal to the death. Then, again, he is a rare comrade. He is not noisy, he is not nervous, and he is not given to demonstration. He fills the requirements that Emerson formulated as to perfect companionship. He does not need to speak to show his sympathy. He can tell you what he wishes to say with his little eyes, and he can be eloquent with the waggings of his stumpy tail.

This kind of a companion is not such as commends himself to all persons, for there are those in the world who like chatters and consider the unending small talk of the drawing room the highest and most pleasurable expression of human wit. For such as these the bulldog is not likely to have the greatest attractions. Let such have a frolicsome dog or a kitten that will chase its tail. But the bulldog is a good companion for a quiet man of a thoughtful and philosophic cast of mind. The bulldog will not disturb his musings, the bulldog will not say the wrong thing at a time when silence is precious, for the bulldog rarely speaks. When he does, he is short, though not sharp, in his communications and very much to the purpose.—Criterion.

The Telltale Eye.

"No matter how self possessed a man may appear on the surface," said a close observer, "there are certain involuntary movements by which he will always betray himself to minute scrutiny. To illustrate the point, here's a neat little parlor trick in mind reading:

Seat yourself directly in front of your subject and tell him to hook his finger tips together before his chest and pull as hard as he can, at the same time thinking intently of some letter of the alphabet. Then look fixedly at his right eye and repeat the letters aloud, beginning with A. When you come to the one he is thinking about, a swift, indescribable change will flash across the pupil. It is purely unconscious and involuntary, and no human being alive can prevent it. The purpose of the finger tip pulling is merely to distract his thoughts and keep him from baffling you by concentration of will. Try it some time."—New Orleans Times Democrat.

Bringing Up the Average.

Old Rufus Gogblink, a slow, deliberate sort of man, dropped in one day in a casual sort of way to see his friend, Stephen Nobbler. It was the first time he had been in to see Stephen in 42 years.

"Um-m! You don't come in very often, Rufus," said Mr. Nobbler.

"No," said Mr. Gogblink.

But he went in to see his friend Mr. Nobbler again the very next day.

"Um-m! You're coming in pretty often now, Rufus," said Mr. Nobbler.

"Ya-as," said Mr. Gogblink. "I'm sort o' bringing up the average."—New York Sun.

Matter of Digestion.

"Oh, that I had the wings of a bird!" she sighed with infinite sadness.

For dinner she had eaten pork chops, pickled olives and ice cream.

Was it, then, that she needed the gizzard rather than the wings of a bird, in order that she might be happy?—Detroit Journal.

Solace in Misery.

Miss Ethel—Music always makes me feel sad. Doesn't it you, Mr. Sudds?

Mr. S.—Yes, but I like it—it's awfully jolly to feel sad, don't y' know.—Brooklyn Life.

School Girls' Nerves

Many a pale, weak school girl, suffering the evil effects of an exhausted nervous system, and thin, watery blood, has been fully restored to the vigor and buoyancy of robust health, by using A. W. Chases Nerve Food. The healthful glow on the cheek and the rightness in the eye tell of the building up process which is taken place in the body.

TANSTEAD JUNCTON, P. Q., 12th Aug. 1893.

MESSRS C C RICHARDS & CO.

GENTLEMEN,—I fell from the bridge leading from a platform to a loaded car while assisting my men in unloading a load of grain. The bridge went down as well as the load on my back, and I struck on the ends of the sleepers, causing a serious injury to my leg. Only for its being very fleshy, would have broken it. In an hour could not walk a step. Commenced using MINARD'S LINIMENT, and the third day went to Montreal on business and got about well by the use of a cane. I can sincerely recommend it as the best liniment that I know of in use.

Yours truly,
C. H. GORDON.
