Vatican Publication Hints At New Birth Control Look

VATICAN CITY (AP) — A Vatican publication said new medical discoveries may cause the Roman Catholic Church to take a new look at its stand on birth control.

At the same time Alfredo Cardinal Ottaviani, a leading member of the Vatican Curia, called on Catholic churchmen to stop public debate on the issue. He said only the Pope can decide "on such grave and debated questions."

He indicated that the Vatican ecumenical council resuming in September could open a discussion on birth control.

The statement that the church may undertake a new study of its birth control stand appeared in the weekly Osservatore della Domenica in an article titled "about birth control pills."

In the discussion on pills to make the time of ovulation predictable, the article noted that a debate over such a method of birth control had developed among church moralists.

NOT JUSTIFY CHANGE

The publication said that the tendency favoring such pills does not justify a change in church regulations on marriage but it added:

"It is sufficient, however, to justify the continuation of studies and of experiments in scientific research which could lead to conclusions susceptible of being taken in close and respectful consideration by church moralists for a rethinking of the question."

Some churchmen maintain that the pill method is not contraception, which is forbidden by the church, but a way to regulate the menstrual cycle.
