clandestine, reckless and provocative threat to world peace and to stable relations between our two nations."

Kennedy asked Khrushchev to join in "an historic effort" to end the arms race.

Kennedy announced that he has ordered reinforcements to the U.S. Naval Base at Guantanamo, Cuba, has evacuated dependents of military personnel from the base and placed additional units on the alert.

IS RISKY

The outlook, he acknowledged, is risky.

"My fellow citizens," Kennedy said, "let no one doubt that this is a difficult and dangerous effort on which we have set out. No one can foresee precisely what course it will take or what costs or casualties will be incurred.

Many months of sacrifice and self - discipline lie ahead—months in which both our will and our patience will be tested —months in which many threats and demonstrations will keep us aware of our danger. But the greatest danger of all would be to do nothing."

"One path we shall never choose is the path of surrender or submission," he said.

Kennedy announced a seven-point course of action under which the United States will ask Monday night for an emergency meeting of the United Nations Security Council" to take action against this latest Soviet threat to world peace."

In requesting the special session, Kennedy said, the United States would demand prompt withdrawal of all offensive weapons in Cuba.

TO CONSULT OAS

The U.S. also took steps to call Monday night for an immediate meeting of a hemispheric body, the organ of consultation under the Organization of American States to consider the threat to security of the Americas.

"Our other allies around the world have also been alerted," President Kennedy announced.

Kennedy went before the nation-wide television and radio audience after a series of crisis meetings at the White House.

A conference with congressional leaders of both parties, summoned back to Washington for an emergency briefing broke up less than half an hour before Kennedy went on the air.

They had been at the White House for 1½ hours.

Earlier, Kennedy presided at suddenly called meetings of the National Security Council and the cabinet.

An air of tension that had gripped Washington during the weekend grew heavier as the day progressed and evidence of urgent decisions in the making became clear.

8-Nation Inspection Team Is Urged By Diefenbaker

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker suggested Monday night that eight non-aligned nations be allowed to make a fact-finding visit to Cuba to tell the world the facts about a military buildup there.

(Those eight nations are Brazil, Mexico, Ethiopia, Nigeria, Sweden, India, Burma and the United Arab Republic.)

He told the House of Commons in a moving appeal for calmness, following President Kennedy's dramatic Cuban statement, that the eight nations might be neutral members of the U.S. - power conference which has been struggling with the disarmament problem in Geneva.

Mr Diefenbaker was applauded by members of all parties in the Commons when he rose to begin his remarks, interrupting Finance Minister Nowlan's presentation of a financial statement. Mr. Diefenbaker said opposition leader Pearson had suggested he make a statement in the Commons immediately.

ASKS NO PANIC

"The only reason I agreed was to ask Canadians, as well as free men everywhere in the world, not to panic at this time," he said.

"This is a time for calmness —a time for banishment of those things that sometimes separate us."

Blockade Or Quarantine, No Practical Difference

WASHINGTON (AP) — State department officials said Monday night there is no practical difference between a naval blockade and the quarantine which President Kennedy announced is being imposed on Cuba.

There is a technical legal difference.

Officials said that the word "quarantine" was adopted because it expressed what the United States is trying to do to keep the "infection" of Soviet offensive weapons out of Cuba.

The essential element of a blockade is in the interception, visiting and search of ships approaching the blockaded country. This is what the U.S. Navy is being instructed to do to all vessels of all countries under the quarantine restriction.

In international law, a blockade is generally regarded as an act of war. In applying the quarantine, U.S. officials hope to make the distinction that it is a measure to preserve the peace of the Western Hemisphere.

After the inspection of the ships approaching Cuba is made, if no offensive weapons are found in the search, U.S. officials anticipate the craft then would be allowed to proceed to their destination.

Procedures also are being worked out to permit certain listed vessels to be given a certificate permitting them to go through the U.S. naval blockade without interference.

Moscow Commentator Says U.S. Raises Armed Fist

LONDON (Reuters)—Moscow radio commentator Yuri Lukyanov said Monday Washington is "once again raising its armed fist over Cuba" and he declared "a state of real hysteria" has been created in the U.S. capital.

(This comment was made prior to President Kennedy's talk Monday night.)

In a Moscow home service broadcast monitored here Lukyanov said the concentration of large U.S. armed forces near the shores of Cuba did not simply mean routine manoeuvres "if the U.S. generals state."

"All the actions of the U.S. fleet and air forces in the Caribbean are of an openly provocative nature, aimed at the Cuban people."

He added: "U.S. newspapers have been ordered to shout as much as they can about the strength and might of the warships and air forces, about the mobility of the infantry, and about the nature of the forthcoming operations."

The commentator said: "It is no accident that, together with the manoeuvres, a state of real hysteria has been created in Washington . . .

SPECIAL AGENCY IN UNITED APPEAL

P.E.I. Red Cross Provides Ten Essential Services

(Editor's note: This is another in a series of articles concerning organizations taking part in the province-wide United Fund campaign.)

By JEAN MacISAAC
Guardian - Patriot Staff Writer

Because of the nature of its far flung operations the Red Cross on Prince Edward Island fits into many classifications, and is designed as a special agency in the P. E. I. United Fund, with $33,000 as its share of the total budget.

The Canadian Red Cross Society in this province provides 10 major services which are regarded as indispensable to the health and safety of all citizens.

These include the free blood transfusion service, disaster service, highway first aid posts, instruction in first aid and home nursing, sickroom loan service, emergency aid to burned out families, water safety training and information, and the missing persons enquiry bureau.

PREVENTS ACCIDENTS

Red Cross first aid instruction helps prevent accidents, and when accidents do occur it is invaluable in contributing to the victim's comfort and safety. Last year 1,200 Islanders took first aid instruction in classes.

Water safety is given to thousands each year. During the summer Islanders gather at the province's many beaches to take swimming and earn their badges from a competent instructor. Pupils range from the small beginner doing the jellyfish float to the older age bracket learning lifesaving techniques.

Last year 2,200 articles of sickroom equipment were loaned free of charge from 14 Red Cross loan centres across the province to 1,900 homes. Such aid as wheel chairs, crutches and walkers are included in the lot.

HELP FOR INVALIDS

Home nursing services is one of the many community services offered by Red Cross. The invalid who stays at home will find himself more comfortable and in more capable hands if someone in the family has a home nursing course. The course lasts about six weeks and a certificate is presented at the conclusion.

One of the most familiar of Red Cross services is that of free blood transfusions. Blood donor clinics are held at centres throughout the province to supply this lifegiving substance. It has been found that a donor at one of these clinics has been one of those persons whose life was saved earlier by a Red Cross provided blood transfusion. Across Canada blood transfusions save thousands every day.

AID IN DISASTER

Red Cross disaster services provide emergency equipment at home and abroad. The disaster committee here served 130 persons in 27 fires during 1961. Cases of clothing for the needy at home and overseas are provided by the women's work committees with material for the clothing purchased by the Red Cross. Layettes also produced by this committee bring happiness to the needy.

Junior Red Cross in the schools develops good citizenship, health and understanding among young people. For the first time the Atlantic provincial JRC training centre was held on the Island this summer with over 90 delegates attending. Last month the JRC here completed 30 Greek school chests as part of a nation-wide assistance program.

In all its areas of endeavor the value of the Canadian Red Cross to the country and the province has been demonstrated in peace and war.

All Yank Ships Leave Key West

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—Virtually every vessel at this U.S. naval base pulled out of port Monday. There was no word of the ship's destinations.

A reporter who flew over the base said only one destroyer could be seen. Ships normally based here include five destroyers and three destroyer escorts and 13 submarines.

Crew members' relatives said men had been ordered to report before daylight without a previous alert.

An aerial check also showed troops at Sugarloaf Key, about 15 miles northeast of here. The men had what appeared to be portable radar equipment.
