Little Flower Church Is Scene Of Lovely Wedding

The church of the little flower, Morell, P.E.I., was the scene of a lovely summer wedding at 9 a.m. on August 2, 1958 where Mary Elizabeth Irene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Hooper, became the bride of James Patrick MacInnis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Sylvester MacInnis, Dartmouth, N.S. (formerly of St. Peter's Bay, P. E. I.).

The nuptial mass was celebrated and the double ring ceremony performed by the Rev. Father Eric Robin. Assisting at Mass were Eric Aylward and Joseph McGuire as altar boys. Messrs. Ralph MacInnis and Reginald Hooper ushered the guests to pews marked with rosettes of geranium red and white satin ribbon.

To the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march pleasingly rendered by the organist, Miss Bernadette Power, the bride entered the church on the arm of her father who gave her in marriage. The bridal party took their place before the altar which was beautifully decorated with summer flowers. Baskets of mixed flowers were placed at the communion rail and at the church entrance.

During the ceremony and signing of the register, hymns were beautifully rendered by Messrs. George and Daniel MacDonald. The bride's gown was a portrait original of nylon tulle, with a shirred bodice with closed in the back with tiny covered buttons.

From the low waistline the floor length circular skirt was enhanced to the hemline by panels on each side which were edged with mother of pearl sequins in rose pattern. The sleeves were short with manchettes tapering over the hands. The square neckline of the gown was accentuated by a single strand of cultured pearls, a gift of the groom.

Her circular chapel length veil of scalloped nylon tulle was appliqued with sequin-embroidered medallions. It was held in place by a sequin mounted crown. The bride carried a cascade of American Beauty Sweetheart roses.

Mrs. Reginald Hooper, sister-in-law of the bride was matron of honor and Miss Mary Ryan, a friend of the bride, was bridesmaid.

The bride's attendants were gowned alike in geranium red nylon tulle, ballerina length dresses. The shirred bodice styled with low waistline had flowing panels forming a cowl neckline which was looped to a large bow on the shoulder.

They were white net Mary Queen of Scots pleated picture halos with large net bows in front and small clusters of lily of the valley at the back. They carried white satin and net muffs adorned with red sweet heart roses and showers of lily of the valley. White pleated shower net wristlets completed their ensembles.

Mr. Roderick MacInnis brother of the groom was the groomsmen. Mrs. Hooper chose for her daughters wedding an Adrian dress

ELLEN'S DIARY

It's A Choice Season-- The Month Of September

No hurricane Daisy? No, fortunately none in Island - places. Again we that by and large are no better and no worse than humans generally, nor our homes more cherished than others have been favored beyond our reckoning. Instead of a night of gales and possibly accompanying rain as forecast, this crescent Isle rode safely at anchor in the Blue swells of its encircling waters all through the glory of a night, quiet and moonlight, and on into the delightful sunshine of the morning. And at Alderlea and Island-wide, we are sure, folks "blessed the Lawd" for yet another of His wondrous kindnesses toward us. Trees, woodlands, groves-how beautiful they were this morning and unharmed along the banks of the countryside; the granitoids too of deep concern to their owners of late with a hurricane in prospect, reached up sturdily to gain late gold from mite sun. Fences about the pastures en-

Miss Jennie MacDonald, daughter of Mrs. J. F. MacDonald, 256 Euston Street, leaves by plane Friday morning to take up the profession of nursing at the Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal.

Of season which indicate the storing. One may scent the sweet of preserving, the spiced tang of first relishes and pickles in the making, and know of the canning all of which catches and saves the summer goodness to help the cook in her planning of meals through less bounteous seasons ahead.

And 'Tis a choice season," we say. And September, honey-sweet benign and pensively beautiful spends out the late summer days. September month of many a loveliness! Edna Jaques writes of her:

"O, Moon of falling leaves! O golden hour!
The purple grape...the aster for they dower;
The warm, sweet-scented sheaves all bound and tied
The amber haze that clouds the countryside;
The golden stubble, shining bare and clean,
Old badger-holes, with tiny paths between;
The hazy, jagged outline of the town
Etched on the sky...beyond the fields of brown.
And everywhere, the scent of ripened wheat,
The red of tangled briars at my feet.
O Moon of leaves! the year's rich harvest spread,
The sheaves...the ripened grapes...
Earth's wine and bread."
Until Monday...Diary...Good night....

Mr. George Bell of Edmonton, Alberta, left Wednesday on return. He has been visiting various parts of the province and while in Summerside, he was the guest of his brother-in-law, Mr. P.G. Clark.

Lieutenant and Mrs. Melvin Campbell of Halifax, N.S. are spending the week at the summer home in Stanley of the former's parents, Chief Justice and Mrs. Thane A. Campbell.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard B. Wood of "Dunrovin" Victoria, have as house guests educators from the United States who represent all levels of education. Shop talk is rife and the discussions at times are weighted with pedagogical terms.

Dr. Richard I. Weller, head of the Physics Department of Franklin and Marshall College at Lancaster, Pa. represents the College level. He is accompanied by his wife Alma and their two children, Rosalind and Mark.

Representing the secondary schools are Mrs. Ruth Murray and Mrs. May Rankin, Heads of Hall at Northfield School for girls Northfield, Mass., and Mr. Harry Matlock, Philadelphia Junior High School teacher consultant and managing editor of the News Letter of the Phil. Teachers Association. His wife Betty is a counselling teacher in the Philadelphia School System.

Mr. William Hanley speaker for the elementary schools. He is principal of the village school Cluster, New Jersey. With him are his wife, Peggy, former high school mathematics teacher and their three gifted children, Christine, Barbara, and William Jr. Kay Wood, not to be left out, once taught school in Knustford, P.E.I.

The lectures are short, the panel discussions impromptu. That these visitors at "Dunrovin" are all educators is sheer coincidence.

Mr. and Mrs. Gabbay of Montreal are guests of H. B. and Kay Wood at "Dunrovin". Mrs. Gabbay is a public health nurse and has come to Canada from Greece since the cessation of the war in Europe. Mr. Gabbay is a reporter of rugs from his native land of Persia. His brother is a well known Hollywood actor and T.V. star who speaks many languages due to his being educated in Europe.

People Are Talking About

Design for Tomorrow

Because it's the easiest way to buy your life insurance!

Yes, Canadians everywhere are talking about Great-West Life's "Design for Tomorrow" . . . a series of major changes in premiums, policies and dividends!

AND HERE ARE JUST A FEW OF THE THINGS THEY ARE TALKING ABOUT

- 1 Reduced premiums on all new individual policies.
- 2 A true Quantity Discount—A save-on-size concept making it easier to own the insurance you need. The premium per $1,000 decreases as your protection increases.
- 3 A whole new series of policies for every need . . . family, children, mortgage, retirement, business.
- 4 Special reduced premiums for women. Because women live longer than men, a new women's policy provides preferential rates along with the same high cash values and dividends as paid to men.
- 5 An increased dividend scale—Present and future participating policyholders benefit from a new, increased scale of dividends.
- 6 Autopay—a new money-saving feature for budget-conscious people—monthly premiums automatically handled through your regular bank account.

"Design for Tomorrow" is the modern way to buy life insurance—available to you today. "Design for Tomorrow" . . . the most progressive program in life insurance . . . is backed by the experience and security of the Great-West Life. For full details, contact a Great-West Life representative today.
