HUGE CROWDS TURN OUT

Reserve Is Cast Aside As Bonn Greet's Queen

BONN (Reuters) — Queen Elizabeth drew wildly enthusiastic crowds Wednesday — the second day of her state visit to West Germany.

An estimated 100,000 persons poured into the streets of this capital to see the British monarch and observers estimated the crowds were bigger than the ones that hailed the late U.S. president Kennedy in June, 1963, and French President de Gaulle in September, 1962.

The crowds gave the Queen and Prince Philip a tremendous welcome during a tightly-packed series of engagements in downtown Bonn.

Fifty years of hostility and distrust between Britain and Germany appeared to have been forgotten as the local inhabitants cast all reserve aside. They cheered, clapped and pressed round her car as she was driven through the city. Once they burst through the barriers and brought the royal car to a halt.

THUNDER OF APPLAUSE
A police spokesman estimated two out of every three of the city's inhabitants turned out for the welcome. The packed streets echoed to the thunder of applause.

One local newspaper had appealed to Elizabeth to "please, smile more" after a subdued arrival Tuesday for her 11-day tour. She was obviously delighted by the warmth of her reception Wednesday.

The Queen's first engagement illustrated the underlying purpose of German-British reconciliation.

She and Philip drove from their hilltop residence overlooking the Rhine to the memorial in Bonn's Hofgarten to the "victims of the wars and tyranny."

A lone trumpeter softly played the traditional soldier's song Ich Hat Eisen Kameraden (I Had A Comrade) as the 20-year-old Queen placed a wreath on the memorial to the victims of Nazi concentration camps as well as Germans.

ROUND OF VISITS
Then in rapid succession the Queen visited the 18th-century baroque pink and grey Rathaus (town hall), the memorial to the composer Ludwig Van Beethoven who was born in Bonn, and the university.

In an impromptu scene at the Beethoven memorial, a little girl ran forward from the crowd and presented the Queen with a tiny bunch of flowers.

The crowds seemed uncertain what to shout in greeting to the Queen — cries of "heil" have been frowned on because they recall the Nazi days. Instead some shouted "Elizabeth" and others "Viva la Queen."

In the evening the Queen drove to a reception given by Commonwealth ambassadors at the fashionable Redoute Hotel.

Two Associations, Individual Plan Briefs On Redistribution

Two associations and one individual plan to make representations to the P.E.I. Electoral Boundaries Commission regarding the commission's recommendations that new electoral districts be formed in the province.

Jack Kenney, president of the P.E.I. Conservative Association, confirmed yesterday that the association will present a brief at the commission hearings scheduled for Charlottetown late next month.

Indications are that the P.E.I. Liberal Association will also present a brief but members of the association executive were not available for confirmation.

There was no indication of the identity of the individual who will present a brief but the presentation is expected to be made at the Charlottetown hearings of the commission.

Mr. Kenney said his association's representation will deal with "three facets of the commission recommendations."

In general, the commission recommended that the dual electoral riding of Queens be abolished and four new constituencies created with populations ranging from 22,397 to 30,650. The new districts would be called Cardigan, Hillsborough, Malpeque and Egmont. Present electoral districts are Queens, Kings and Prince.

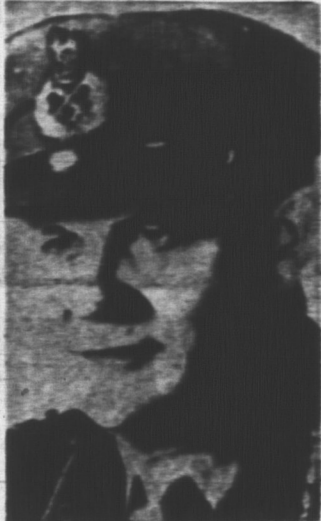

MEETING HELD
The four-member commission met in Charlottetown yesterday to discuss the procedure for carrying on sittings. Members of the commission are chairman Mr. Justice G.J. Tweedy, Wendell MacKay, J. Frank MacMillan and Canada's chief electoral officer Nelson Castonguay.

Hearings are scheduled for Charlottetown in the Law Courts Building at 2 p.m. June 24 and 10 a.m. June 25; in Georgetown at the Law Courts Building on July 8 at 10 a.m.; in Summerside at the Law Courts Building on July 15 at 10 a.m.; in Souris at St. Mary's Hall on July 22 at 11 a.m. and in Alberton at the Court House on July 29 at 11:00 a.m.

DEADLINE PAST
Monday was deadline for groups and individuals to notify the commission that briefs would be presented. For this reason, said Judge Tweedy, only the two associations and the one individual will be heard and they will likely be heard in Charlottetown.

Judge Tweedy said, however, that the associations or the individual may want to add more to their original representations and this could be done at one of the later scheduled hearings.

All hearings will open as scheduled and if no one appears before the commission the hearing will be closed after a reasonable time.

Old Newfoundland Wells Are Found To Contain Oil

OTTAWA (CP) — An oil discovery on the west coast of Newfoundland is being developed with a view to commercial production, President John C. Doyle of Canadian Javelin Company said Wednesday.

The presence of oil in a number of old wells has been confirmed and production equipment now is arriving at the site, Mr. Doyle said in an interview.

The wells were drilled before the First World War. They were re-examined recently and found to contain high-quality paraffin base oil, he said.

They needed to be re-cessed and work on this is being undertaken immediately with the prospect of bringing one of the wells into production in 10 days.

Indications are that the wells at Parson's Pond, about 75 miles north of Corner Brook, are fed by seepage along a geological fault. Two wells nearby have indicated gas pressure in the area which could be a sign of oil.

Canadian Javelin's subsidiary, Jubilee Iron Corp. is merging with Newfoundland Labrador Corp., a provincial Crown company, subject to securities and stock exchange approval and an okay from shareholders.

In addition to the oil rights near Parson's Pond, Jubilee-Nalco have 4,313,963 acres of offshore oil drilling concessions stretching along Newfoundland's west coast from north of Parson's Pond to Port-aux-Basques.

Fallout Cloud Report Is Given

By FRANK CAREY
WASHINGTON (AP) — The leading edge of the fallout cloud from last week's Chinese nuclear weapon test may already have passed high over Canada and the northern United States and set to sea without depositing any detectable debris.

This was the word Wednesday from fallout experts of the U.S. weather bureau. They said they were talking about that part of the multi-layered cloud that was soaring at altitudes between 35,000 and 40,000 feet where the winds are faster than at lower levels.

Another slower-moving component of the cloud — at about the 20,000- to 25,000-foot level — should pass over the Atlantic Wednesday, they said.

But Dr. Lester Marchita, said in an interview that fallout deposited in the atmosphere at between 20,000 and 30,000 feet presumably has not yet begun to cross North America.

He also theorized that fallout released into the atmosphere, at levels below 20,000 feet never got out of China after the test blast, due to the lightness and variability of the winds at those levels at the time of the detonation and shortly after.

PM Bids For Adoption Of New Commons Rules

Debate Delayed To Await Dief

PRIME MINISTER Pearson and the Shah of Iran hold talks at Government House in Ottawa Wednesday. They met for an informal discussion of world problems some five hours after the Iranian ruler arrived from New York for his first visit to Canada.

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons Wednesday he is not sure a permanent Speaker from an "artificial constituency" is the way to assure the independence and prestige of the parliamentary office.

Opening debate on government resolutions to change procedure rules radically, he said the proposals will go far towards enhancing the office.

The resolutions would abolish appeals of rulings by the Speaker, responsible for maintaining order in the House and moderating discussion. He is a government MP.

Mr. Pearson said the most effective method of increasing the Speaker's authority is to abolish appeals. They had increased considerably during the years.

It has been suggested, he said, that one way to assure the independence of the speaker is to make the speakership a permanent office. But the only way to achieve this would be to deprive a constituency of an elected representative.

There had been suggestions for a "constituency of Parliament Hill," an artificial seat. The Speaker would become the MP for the constituency.

REDUCE PRESTIGE
But Mr. Pearson said he is not sure it would achieve its objective. Such a change might reduce the prestige of the Speaker's office.

The government is considering these other proposals, he added.

Shortly after Mr. Pearson spoke, debate was adjourned on the bill for the time being at the request of Michael Starr (PC-Ontario). He made the request on behalf of his party chief, Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, absent from the afternoon sitting.

Mr. Starr said Mr. Diefenbaker had another engagement Wednesday but wanted to be present for the debate.

Earlier Mr. Starr asked whether the rule changes — which involve time limits on debates and question periods — would be adopted on a trial basis at first. Mr. Pearson said it would be a mistake to put them on a trial basis.

Mr. Pearson said the changes would protect members' rights of discussion, not limit them. He hoped the resolutions would be treated on a non-partisan basis. Maybe there will be amendments to improve the changes, he said.

The Commons, he said, can no longer go on denying the necessity of change if it is to discharge its duty.

ALLOW CRITICISM
The aim was to make debate more effective and allow criticism on major issues. The Commons must do more work in committees where all private members could make a contribution.

This would strengthen the authority of Parliament by strengthening the position of its members. "This is the spirit of our resolutions."

Bombs Rained On Red Targets

SAIGON (AP) — Bombs rained on Communist targets in both North and South Viet Nam Wednesday. Forty U.S. Navy planes attacked North Viet Nam and South Vietnamese fighter-bombers decimated a Viet Cong guerrilla company in the south.

It was the 75th birthday of Ho Chi Minh, president of North Viet Nam who chose to pass up American overtures toward peace during a six-day suspension-ended Tuesday of the air strikes on North Viet Nam.

World Problems Discussed By Pearson, Shah Of Iran

By WILLIAM NEVILLE
OTTAWA (CP) — The Shah of Iran, a staunch friend of the West, opened his week state visit to Canada Wednesday with a wide-ranging review of international affairs with Prime Minister Pearson.

The two men met at Government House for informal discussion of world problems some five hours after the Iranian ruler arrived by air from New York to begin his first Canadian visit.

Spokesmen for both sides said the talks, also attended by External Affairs Minister Martin, and Iranian Foreign Minister Abbas Aram, would concentrate on international affairs, with Canadian-Iranian questions left to later discussions.

The United Nations financial crisis was expected to be a chief topic along with the related question of international peace-keeping operations. Iran was represented at last fall's conference here on the latter topic.

REGARDED HIGHLY
The Shah, a dashing 45, is described by Canadian officials as "one of the West's best friends in the Middle East." He is highly regarded by Canadian leaders both for his role in world affairs and his land and literacy reform programs at home.

De Gaulle Urges New Balance In World Affairs

LES SABLES D'OLONNE, France (AP) — President de Gaulle called Wednesday for a "new balance" in world affairs to replace the division of the globe into Eastern and Western blocs which he blamed on the Second World War conference at Yalta.

He said the Yalta agreements encouraged "two hegemonies" and thus would endanger world peace as long as this division endures.

De Gaulle did not specify what he meant by a "new balance," but he asserted France should have a prominent role. He said the new balance should be based on "the independence and the responsibility of each of the nations of the earth."

De Gaulle, who has never forgotten nor forgiven his own exclusion from the Yalta conference, was speaking at a seaside rally as he began a three-day tour of departments (provinces) along the Atlantic coast.

India Teams With Russia In Protest

By HENRY BRADSHAW
MOSCOW (AP) — Non-aligned India teamed with the Soviet Union Wednesday in declaring U.S. bombing of North Viet Nam should be stopped immediately.

The criticism of the U.S. bombings, which resumed Tuesday after a six-day halt, came in a special communique issued to mark the end of a week-long visit by Prime Minister Shastri of India to the Soviet Union.

The communique omitted language Shastri had used recently to criticize "all foreign interference" — meaning Communist North Vietnam — in a message to the Communist North Vietnamese leadership in South Viet Nam as well as American air attacks.

New Bridge At Covehead Opens Soon

CAPITAL BUREAU OF THE GUARDIAN
OTTAWA — The Covehead bridge on the gulf shore highway in the P.E.I. national park is expected to be opened for traffic June 28 this year, it was learned Wednesday.

Northern Affairs and National Resources Minister Arthur Laing, in replying to a question placed on the Commons order paper by Mr. Macquarrie, said that construction of the new bridge was started Aug. 17, 1964.

The new bridge was made necessary when a storm wrecked the former structure late in 1963.

Junta Claims Control

SANTO DOMINGO (AP) — Brig. Gen. Antonio Imbert Barrera, president of the Dominican civilian-military junta, told a cheering rally of about 1,900 followers Wednesday:

"We have absolute control of the Dominican Republic."

The crowd shouted back: "We don't want a truce. Out with communism."

The rally came after junta troops had overrun the rebel radio station and most of northern Santo Domingo, where rebel resistance collapsed.

Most of those at the rally came from middle- and upper-classes.

Imbert told an interviewer later that a compromise with the rebel forces of Col. Francisco Caamaño Domo was out of the question. He said his five-man junta was pushing for unconditional surrender of the rebels, held up in their downtown enclave, and would talk with Caamaño only to discuss surrender terms.

Loans, Grants Announced To Aid Moves To New Jobs

OTTAWA (CP) — The government Wednesday announced a new program of loans and grants to help workers move to new jobs in different localities.

Prime Minister Pearson announced the program in the Commons and described it as "one item in the first phase of the government's planned attack on the problems of poverty and inadequate opportunity."

The program will make loans available "to anyone who is without work but for whom a job is open beyond commuting distance from his present home." The loans will cover the costs of the family's transportation and movement of household effects "plus a re-settlement allowance which may be up to $1,000 for a family." The allowance for a single person will be up to $100.

In the case of persons who have been unemployed for four of the previous six months, or persons who cannot get a local job after completing a training course, the government will give them grants instead of loans.

"For a single man or woman, the grant will be limited to actual transportation expenses. A family will be entitled to expenses of transportation and movement of household effects, together with a re-settlement grant of up to $800 for a childless couple and up to $1,000 if they are six or more dependents."

AID FOR FARMERS
The prime minister also said that the grants and loans will be available "also to other people, such as farmers, if they are in similar financial circumstances and can obtain employment by moving."

He said Parliament would be asked to approve a $5,000,000 revolving fund for loans and a $5,000,000 appropriation for the cost of grants in the present fiscal year.

Mr. Pearson said the repayment period for the loans will be not more than two years under normal conditions.

He said that apart from helping the unemployed, the program "should be of great assistance to industry."

"We cannot enjoy efficient economic expansion in Canada unless people can take advantage of employment opportunities despite the handicaps of distance. For the worker with dependents, those handicaps are very large. The effect of this proposal is that, for the first time, the doors of opportunity will not be barred to a family just because of where they live. We will be helping all Canadians to feel that their community is as broad as Canada itself."

Michael Starr, former Progressive Conservative labor minister, said the program appears to be an extension of something now in effect.

The labor minister is empowered to designate an area a labor surplus area and then assist in paying the costs of workers moving to jobs in other areas.

Mr. Starr said the two-year repayment period for a $1,000 loan appears to be too short.

New Democrat Leader Douglas said that unless the project is part of an over-all, co-ordinated manpower program it will have only limited benefit.

AMBASSADOR IS NEGRO WOMAN

Patricia R. Harris, an assistant professor of law at Howard University, is seen at her office in Washington after she was nominated Wednesday by President Johnson to be Ambassador to Luxembourg. She is the first Negro woman to be named to an ambassadorial post abroad. Her husband, William Brasley Harris, a Washington attorney, is in the background.
