ELLEN'S DIARY

Papa Starling Anxious To Join His Folks Away

"Still here" we queried in some surprise this morning when we came to spread a rug on the clothesline to air.

"Still here," Papa Starling on the garage roof above offered gloomily, "though by rights we should be miles away right now from this place. I've been anxious to get away—numbers of folks have gone already. But 'dat woman' of mine" he shook his head sadly, "there can be no moving her before her mind is made up!" He smiled suddenly "those of the gentler sex are."

"Yes?"

"...puzzling to say the least. The longer one lives with them, the less he understands them."

"Every try logic?"

"Logic?"

"Yes."

"Might as well" he chuckled ruefully "talk logic to a babe. I've tried it, but just when I think I've convinced her about something, she 'gets a feelin'!"

"Why don't you go without her?"

"Leave her—to make her way alone? Oh dear!" he gasped at the thought, "I couldn't do that. I guess it's as someone says 'if you can't live with them you can't live without them'...for" he smiled wistfully "no matter their faults, they do have their darlin' ways."

Sun and the bluejay's calls from the spruces down by the dam this morning. And this afternoon quiet mist of showers over the harvest lands. And the Summer wanes. A chicken-that was now greets the day-dawn with a thin piping crow; in the piggeries the first of the Fall's litters, pink and pretty appear; calves turn into sizable youngsters... a lad looks into the pumpkin patch in the garden to see how a Jack O'Lantern is fleshing up for Halloween.

"No," Mack replied to a visitor's question this afternoon, "we had no kittens this year. I can't say what happened; for we did expect some. 'But' he smiled, 'you should see our goat! He's off with the sheep. When we put him on pasture there he was only a kid. But now his horns have lengthened so much — well I shouldn't like him to get cross at me! And he has grown the nicest whiskers you'd see. It would 'chuckled at the memory, 'make you laugh to see him — pointed the beard is! I wish,' he commented 'we had a nanny, the kids would be cute to see.'

Summer wanes. Verandahs are deserted tonight. The fire, and the kettle's song, are back with us again.

Until tomorrow — Diary, Good-night.

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT RICHARD REEVES

Young Couple Wed In Ceremony At St. Malachy's

St. Malachy Church, Kinkora, was the scene of a pretty wedding when Mary Yvonne Alvina, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Gauthier, South Freetown, became the bride of Robert Richard Reeves, son of Mr. and Mrs. Goulding Reeves, Summerside.

Rev. Harold Croken performed the ceremony and LeRoy and Louis Gauthier, cousins of the bride, were altar boys. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion with baskets of mixed flowers in the sanctuary and white and yellow mums on the altar. The organist, Mrs. Raymond Smith, accompanied Miss Francis Doucette, as she sang "Panis Angelicus", "Sweet Sacrament Divine", "O, Lord I Am Not Worthy" and "Mother At Your Feet We're Kneeling".

The bride, given in marriage by her father was lovely in her floor length wedding gown of white nylon chiffon, the fitted bodice featured a scalloped neckline of Alencon lace and long lily point sleeves. The full gathered skirt had matching lace bands of gathered chiffon falling to the floor. The finger tip veil of pure silk illusion was held in place by a jewelled crown of tiny pearls and sequins. She carried a crescent of white carnations and red roses. Her only ornament was a cultured pearl necklace, gift of the groom.

Miss Marie Gauthier, sister of the bride, as maid of honor, Miss Eleanor Reeves, sister of the groom, and Miss Myra Heffell, cousin of the groom, as bridesmaids, were identically gowned in waltz length nylon chiffon in a soft shade of Cotillion blue. The wide necklines were pleated with chiffon and caught with a tiny bow, the full skirts were gathered at the waist. The bridesmaids were matching picture hats with velvet trim. The maid of honor carried a crescent of pink carnations while the bridesmaid's carried nosegays of yellow roses.

Mr. Michael Harford of Toronto, was the best man, while Arthur Gauthier, brother of the bride, and Danny Bracken ushered the guests to the pews which were marked with white satin bows and blue rosettes.

Mrs. Gauthier chose for her daughter's wedding a Parisian rose lace over taffeta with champagne accessories and a corsage of white carnations. The groom's mother was attired in a powder blue duster ensemble with darker blue trim and white accessories. Her corsage was of pink carnations.

A reception for one hundred guests was held at Summerlea Restaurant, where the bride's table was centered with a three-tier tier wedding cake, beautifully decorated by the bride's uncle Eric. Rev. Reginald MacDonald was toastmaster and the music was furnished by the Hi Fi's. Telegrams were read from Mr. and Mrs. Myer Diamond, Winnipeg; Mr. and Mrs. Morton Fisk, N.Y.; Yetta Cohen, N.Y.; Mr. Jerry Gauthier, Gander, Newfoundland; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Siegle, Toronto; employees of Arco Company and Setanni Company, Toronto; Erma Patterson, Toronto; Earl Blanchard, Saint John; Elaine Murray and Alberta Rowe, Cork, Ireland; Louise and Gertrude Hartford, Toronto.

For the honeymoon trip through the Maritimes and the Eastern United States, the bride traveled in a mint green linen suit, with white feather hat, white accessories and corsage of yellow roses.

Out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. John Walsh Gwen Row, Myra Heffell, Michael Harford and Danny Bracken, Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Blanchard, Mrs. Earl Blanchard, Saint John, Mary McGrath, Halifax; Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Ruied, South Weymouth, Mass., and Mrs. Lydia Fields, Boston.—Photo by Heckbert

Given in marriage by her father, the bride looked lovely in a floor length gown of white bridal glow taffeta. The fitted bodice featured a sabbina neckline with sequins and seed pearls. The sleeves were long and tapered over the hands. Jewelled lace motifs enriched the bouffant skirt which was drifted to a chapel train over tulle and hoops. She wore ivory taffeta slippers. Her finger tip veil of nylon illusion fell from a tiara headdress trimmed with opalescent sequins and pearls. She carried a crescent bouquet of white and red roses.

The bride's attendants were Gloria Gallant and Patricia Gallant, dressed in yellow and blue nylon taffeta dresses. They carried bouquets of white carnations. The flower girl Monique Arsenault was dressed in a gown of blue nylon taffeta and carried a bouquet of mixed carnations. Mr. Joseph Arsenault, brother of the bride, attended as best man. The ushers were: Leo Arsenault and Gavin Gallant.

The bride's mother chose for her daughter's wedding a black taffeta dress, with white accessories and a corsage of white roses.

The happy couple left the church for the bride's home where a wedding breakfast was served to a hundred guests. The bride's table was centered with a three-tier

Clubs For Homemakers Have Varied Program

"We have 26 Homemakers Clubs in this section," said Miss Orsina McClellan, Home Demonstration Agent for Dallas County, Texas, "with members in cities, towns and on farms. The membership is almost 700.

EMPHASIS ON PROBLEMS "We are planning to reach more young homemakers," she continued, "with special emphasis on the problems they find most troublesome — home management, food-buying and meal-planning. These meetings are conducted by trained leaders, in neighborhood groups."

"How about the baby-sitting problem?" I asked.

HIRE BABY SITTER "The clubs hire a baby sitter to mind the children either at

"To reach the potential homemaker population of the country, I conduct a weekly radio program featuring food, use-TV and have a weekly newspaper report discussing plentiful foods that are reasonable in price."

VARIETY OF COURSES "In addition to food programs we have courses in home sewing, shop, all up-to-the-minute and decorating and a drapery work very popular."

"Which clearly indicates," I added, "that Texas women are more interested in homemaking than ever."
