To My Customers and Prospective Customers:—

Permit me to call your attention to the fact that I am better prepared than ever before to supply your wants in Fresh Oysters. It is a fact that in order to be successful in the Oyster business one must be able to handle them in large quantities. With this object in view, I beg leave to solicit your patronage, and can assure you of satisfaction.

I may say that my Oyster Parlor will be conducted in the usual first class manner, where the delicate Bivalve may be obtained in every style to satisfy the taste of the most exacting epicure.

Yours, &c.,
JOHN P. JOY,
The P. E. I. Oyster King

Dewey's Big Reception by Bostonians.

THE ADMIRAL CAN HAVE ANYTHING FOR THE ASKING

Interesting Paragraphs Regarding Islanders and Their Positions

(Special Correspondence.)

Boston, Oct. 19.—What with Dewey's reception a few days away; the air surcharged with matters political; international yachting excitement on tap, and the football season at hand, interest in current affairs is just a trifle warm. Had the average person been asked the question a year and a half ago, "Who commands the American ships on the Asiatic station?" he probably would have looked queer and said he didn't know. To-day George Dewey is known throughout the civilized world as one of the greatest sea fighters known to history, beside whose name that of Nelson (at least in the minds of Americans) seems somewhat obscured. Ever since the exact time of Dewey's visit became known the somewhat hurried matters of celebration have been assuming practical form, and classic Boston quickly got into shape to do its share towards honoring the man who made Montejó and the Spaniards look like novices in the art of modern warfare.

Dewey, who had been resting up among his native hills of Vermont, arrived in Boston on Friday evening about 6.30. Mayor Quincy welcomed the hero on behalf of the city, and Dewey then proceeded to the Touraine escorted by cavalry, Spanish-American veterans and civic bodies. The Admiral was on Saturday morning presented with a magnificent time-piece on behalf of Boston, the presentation taking place at City Hall. From there the party proceeded to the Common, where about 25,000 of the school children of Boston welcomed the hero and sang patriotic songs. Then came the great army and navy parade which began about 12 o'clock on Saturday. The parade was reviewed at the State House by Governor Walcott and Admiral Dewey, and grouped on each side of the reviewing stand were the gallant tars of the Olympia. On the Common after the review the state troops returned the colors carried during the Spanish-American war. In the evening Dewey was banquetted at the Algonquin Club and the "jockies" were given a taste of Boston hospitality in Music Hall, where the best of everything was sampled.

Dewey stands to-day a unique figure in American history. Nobody knows to which party his sympathies lean. He can have anything he wants simply by expressing his desire. He can have the presidency beyond the possibility of reasonable doubt. But nothing has as yet transpired to show that he has any political ambitions whatsoever. It certainly is somewhat refreshing in this age of rivalry for political honors to have the greatest man of the people cite the various reasons which make him especially unfit to govern this great Republic. Probably little will be made public of Dewey's future until after the Philippine muddle has been straightened out. One thing is certain, Dewey's word in regard to Philippine matters will be followed out strictly. Dewey is a thorough expansionist, and as a result of his first conference with McKinley, the Brooklyn and several smaller ships have been ordered to Manila. While many of the so-called interviewees with Dewey were merely newspaper conjuring, enough is known to show that the hero is far from satisfied with General Otis as the man capable of subduing the Filipinos. At any rate it is quite possible that before another Presidential election comes around the vexed question of expansion shall have long since ceased to be a live issue with the masses. It will be interesting to see what McKinley and Hanna will do to side-track Dewey, should the latter develop Presidential aspirations.

The P. E. Island club had its first dinner of the season of '99-'00 at the United States Hotel a few evenings ago. After an excellent bill had been disposed of a most enjoyable evening was spent with speeches, vocal and instrumental music. Several new members were admitted. The club will hold its annual reunion in February. The President, Dr. Johnston, and the energetic Secretary, Mr. E. W. Doyle, were responsible for the enjoyable evening spent by all present. The next dinner will be held in January.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

—This telegram by Lt. Col. Jones of St. John has the proper ring about it:
St. John, N. B., October 17.

In my opinion the present occasion affords a unique opportunity for a demonstration to the world that we exist, neither as colonies or nations, but as one indivisible empire. Canada should realize the importance of the moment which can never be recalled, by sending at her own expense, a fully equipped contingent for the service of our Queen and Empress.

Geo. West Jones,
Lt. Col. Commanding 3rd Regiment, Canadian Artillery.

"Let the Searchlight of Practical Illuminate the dark places of Theory"

A THOROUGHLY Progressive, Practical Institution, in which young men and women are not only taught Bookkeeping (in all its applications to Commerce) both by single and double entry, but are trained how to do business by actual business transactions. The students act as buyers, sellers, traders, bankers, book-keepers and accountants in actual business operations, and the currency issued by the College Bank, and the mds. issued from the Emporium are used in bona-fide business transactions, just the same as in mercantile and banking houses. Book-keeping in itself may be learned at home, but a knowledge of how to transact business cannot be thus acquired. That our course and system of training is eminently practical write for testimonials from business men and from students who are now holding lucrative and responsible positions.

SUBJECTS:
Book-keeping by single and double entry theoretical and practical Actual Business Practice, Business Penmanship, Business Correspondence, Commercial Arithmetic, Commercial Law, Railroading, Steamboating, Banking (actual practice in the College Bank), Typewriting, Shortband, and Navigation.

FACULTY:
I. B. Miller, Principal, Teacher of Book-keeping, Arithmetic, Business Practice, Business Correspondence, Typewriting and Navigation.
A. C. McMillan, Vice Principal, Teacher of Railroading, Steamboating, Banking, accounting and Actual Business Practice.
J. Harry Williams, teacher of Business Penmanship.
Wm. Moran [licensed] Teacher of Short-hand.
George S. Enman, Esq., [Law Firm McDonald & Inman] Lecturer on Commercial Law.
