Oil Sands Town Preparing For Expected Boom Period

FORT McMURRAY, Alta. (CP)—This oil sands town, 200 miles northeast of Edmonton, is a boom town unlike many others—it's prepared for it. Two years ago McMurray had about 1,300 people, mostly woodsmen, trappers and others who lived here because of rich timber, fur, and fishing. Today the town has 1,800 people, a weekly newspaper, a stepped-up house-building program and $2,600,000 worth of planned construction, all preparing for the opening of the Great Canadian Oil Sands oil extraction plant 25 miles to the north, scheduled for 1967. Ever since Great Canadian won permission to extract oil from the long-dormant Athabasca oil sands, McMurray has been preparing for expansion. With a variety of new buildings headed quickly, and little tax assessment, the town bought, and won, new town status from the Alberta government. This means it may borrow approved amounts above the 2 per cent of assessment allowed ordinary towns. McMurray's debt now stands at $450,000, on a 1964 assessment of $750,000. Western-Canadian capital, mostly from Alberta, helped finance a $750,000 40-room hotel and a $90,000 food market. It is also contributing toward a $300,000, 24-unit apartment block, two shopping centres with a total value of $900,000; a $300,000 trailer court and a $125,000 model. In addition, a $150,000 provincial government building and a nine-room separate school addition are going up. Last year building permits issued exceeded $2,000,000—nearly 1,000 per cent more than the 1963 total. Great Canadian's decision to house its 500 plant employees in the town has spurred municipal officials to plan a major house-building program of 200 to 300 dwellings next year. WAIT FOR ROAD A chipboard firm is considering building in the town, and further development is expected following the completion of a 260-mile gravel highway to Edmonton next year. This summer about two dozen taxis are expected to be operating, double the number around last spring. Several interests are bidding for the bus franchise for service between the town and the extraction plant.
