HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY. FRIDAY, March 17. COD AND MACKEREL FISHERIES—BOUNTIES.

(Debate closed.)

Hon. the ATTORNEY GENERAL.—Some years ago, he was a very warm advocate for bounties, under the impression that the granting of them would be the means of causing the fisheries to be prosecuted with more vigour and success...

Mr. H. HAYLAND. The question was evidently not one which he could give his colleagues opportunity to each other, with respect to it, but the Government themselves were divided upon it...

Hon. Mr. CONROY.—It was very easy to answer the hon. and learned gentleman [Mr. Hayland]... by means of a legislative grant, to improve the breed of cod-fish and mackerel...

consented upon the high seas. Their returns to the Treasury, on that account, exceeded the amount of bounties received by them...

Mr. BEAN.—Ernest Edmonds was essentially an agricultural country, and, therefore the encouragement of agriculturists should always be a leading object with the Legislature...

Hon. Mr. MACALAY.—It occurred to him that what the voice of the Committee was against bounties, they were not sufficiently fully in favour of encouraging a paper-fish sufficient for home consumption...

Hon. Mr. MONTROSE.—As far as his recollection served him, it was understood, when the hon. and learned gentleman [Mr. Hayland] had just expressed, that it would be the last time they would endeavour to give a stimulus to the fishery...

Hon. Mr. CONROY.—It was very easy to answer the hon. and learned gentleman [Mr. Hayland]... by means of a legislative grant, to improve the breed of cod-fish and mackerel...

Hon. Mr. CONROY.—The Legislature had not made any provision for the grant of such premiums and bounties as, in amount, would be sufficient to induce a due prosecution of the fishery...

in the purchase of provisions, from an egg to an ox. This would be the bringing of a foreign market, if he might so speak, to our shores...

of a very good idea, it is, and from what has transpired, Austria and Prussia, go hand in hand with us in all the measures taken...

The revolt in the Sandjak of Janina is increasing. The inhabitants, 400,000 principally Greeks and Armenians, have armed themselves, and united with the tribes inhabiting the Mazozes and Agrafa mountains...

The news from India, with dates from Bombay to the 26th January, and King of the 11th January, is interesting. The King to the General, after fixing the boundary line beyond Meaday, had returned to the north-western frontier...
